EISENHOWER REJECTS TAFT VIEW THAT U. S. SHOULD GO IT ALONE IN KOREA WAR

WILLIAMS SEEKS INQUIRY INTO RFC, KAISER-WILLYS DEAL AND SNYDER

He Cites Acceptance by St. Louisan of Auto Firm Post After Being on Board of Agency Handling Loans.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 28 — A thorough investigation by a Senate committee of the Kaiser-Frazier Corp., its merger with Willys-Overland Motors Inc., and the part played by the Reconstruction Finance Corp., in that deal was asked for today by Senator John J. Williams.

In a speech on the Senate floor, the Deleware Republican said the proposed investigation of "this pampered stepchild of a discredited Government agency" should include a demand upon the Government officials "who in their official capacity failed to adequately protect the Government's interest," to explain their actions.

The officials singled out by Senator Williams were former Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder of St. Louis, and Harry A. McDonald, former administrator of the RFC.

Government the Loser.

Williams said he was convinced after a personal investigation of the situation that the Government stood to lose several million dollars through failure of the Truman Administration representatives to protect the interests of the Government.

Williams's curiosity was aroused, he said, by the public announcement that Snyder, nine days after leaving the Government service, had accepted a position as vice president of Willys-Overland.

It was pointed out by Williams that the merger arrangements were approved by the old Policy Board of the RFC, of which Snyder was the key member.

He described as reprehensible "the manner in which the RFC released several millions of dollars worth of good collateral in favor of the merging companies," thereby "placing the Federal Government as far as collecting its unpaid balance (on outstanding loans) in an even more precarious position."

He said the new Policy Board which took over with the new administration in Washington "objected strenuously to the agreements which had been reached by the old regime and issued an emphatic rejection of any proposal that the RFC relinquish any preferred position as regards to collateral which they then held."

Relinquished Securities.

However, he went on, McDonald "exercised his legal right as the holdover administrator of that agency to override the recommendations of the Policy Board and signed on behalf of the Federal Government the agreement relinquishing $5,000,000 in Government securities and other collateral" to make possible the merger.

"It is significant," Williams said, "and perhaps not without point, that Mr. McDonald, who so arbitrarily overrode the recommendations of some of the most important members of his new Policy Board in approving these merger agreements, submitted his resignation from that agency exactly two days following his notification that this entire transaction was under investigation."

Williams said McDonald had denied under questioning that he had discussed the merger agreement or its terms with Snydar while Snyder was in office, asserting Snyder during the weeks immediately prior to his separation from Government service last Jan. 20 was enjoying "a little relaxation away from his office."

"This explanation, however," Williams went on, "cannot be reconciled with Mr. Snyder's own action because I point out that upon his separation from Government service, he filed a claim for $5476 as accumulated annual leave on the basis that during his term of office he had been so busy attending to his official duties he had been unable to take any time off."

Record of Loans.

This is the record of Government loans to the Kaiser-Frazer interests as outlined by Senator Williams:

Kaiser-Frazer bought the Willow Run bomber plant, which cost $42,804,479, from the General Services Administration as war surplus in December, 1948, for $15,000,000, paying 10 per cent down and giving a 20-year mortgage on the plant.

Before the agreement was signed with GSA, Kaiser-Frazer applied to the RFC for a $34,400,000 loan to operate the plant. Because the RFC needed collateral, the GSA agreed to allow the Kaiser enterprises to use the plant as collateral for the $34,400,000 loan, the GSA recording its note as a second mortgage.

Subsequently, the RFC made two more loans of $10,000,000 and $25,000,000 each to the Kaiser group, both of which were secured like the first, by a mortgage on the bomber plant. The RFC received further security in a guaranty by the Henry J. Kaiser Co. of $20,000,000 backed by a pledge of $20,000,000 worth of Government bonds.

"In connection with the merger, the RFC released the $20,000,000 in Government bonds in return for a $15,000,000 payment on the notes, thereby "losing $5,000,000 of collateral security."

'Voice' to Keep Boy Broadcaster Canceled Because He Was Too Good

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

BILLY BROWN posing at microphone in New York.

NEW YORK, May 28 (UP) — A 17-year-old high school boy's chatty international broadcasts on American life won a reprieve today after a Voice of America budget cut threatened to silence him.

Acting Voice Director Robert J. Francis announced he will dig up the necessary funds somehow to carry the friend-winning commentary until some arrangement can be made for private financing.

"This is wonderful news," said Billy Brown, the broadcaster, of Yorktown Heights, N. Y.

Billy had been ordered off the air because he was so popular, from Pakistan to Scotland—that the Voice could no longer afford the expense of answering his fan mail.

Funds Are Offered.

Protesting civic groups and individuals offered to put up the money if Billy could just keep talking. Francis said he was extremely gratified at their interest.

But the axe still hangs over the program. If the private funds can't be raised, or the Government can't figure out a way to accept them, the program will have to go.

Although Billy gave his services free of charge, the $500-a-month expense of handling his correspondence had been borne by the Government.

Billy, captain of the Yorktown Heights high school football team, made an immediate hit last summer when he began 15-minute English-language broadcasts to Pakistan and North India over Voice of America transmitters.

He tried to give listeners a glimpse of America they would have little chance of getting elsewhere. He talked about his corner drug store and the soda fountain, football and basketball games, his high school classes and American home cooking.

Before long, Billy's broadcasts were being picked up by the British Broadcasting Corp. and radio stations in Australia. His audience included United States soldiers in Korea, happy to hear his homespun talks about things back home.

When a linguist translated his programs and repeated them in the Urdu dialect spoken widely in India, the fan mail came not only from Asia, but from a colony of Urdu-speaking residents in Glasgow, Scotland.

200 Letters in April.

Four months after he started the program, Billy received a personal visit from the Ambassador of Pakistan expressing that country's gratitude for his broadcasts.

Billy finally organized a club to help handle the flow of mail from young people in 35 countries. In April, these youthful correspondents answered 260 letters.

Billy, son of a plumber, was busy playing in a championship tennis tournament at Columbia University. He plans to attend Syracuse University next fall on a football scholarship.

LACLEDE GAS CO. GRANTED ANNUAL RATE INCREASE OF $2,500,000

Utility Sought $5,175,000 —State Board's Action Based Solely on Cost Increase of Gas Bought From Supplier.

By BOYD F. CARROLL
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 28—Laclede Gas Co. of St. Louis was authorized today by the Missouri Public Service Commission to increase its rates to consumers by $2,500,000 annually, based upon the volume of 1952 sales.

This is slightly less than half of the $5,175,000 it had sought in its revised application.

In a unanimous order, the commission based the increase solely on the increased cost to Laclede of the natural gas it buys from Mississippi River Fuel Corp. under a new schedule filed last April 10 by the pipeline.

Estimate on Return.

However, the commission required that some of the increased cost be absorbed by Laclede. It estimated the $2,500,000 a year additional revenue would yield a return to Laclede of 6.28 per cent on an estimated 1952 net plant valuation of $65,974,000. It held such a return would not be excessive.

"The rate increase authorized is based solely upon Laclede's increase in the cost of gas for resale from its supplier," the order read. "So long as these (pipeline) rates remain in full force and effect, Laclede's cost of gas should be based thereon."

It also was specified that in the event of a reduction in the pipeline rates by the Federal Power Commission which is now studying Mississippi River Fuel Corporation's new rate schedule, Laclede must impound any refund it would receive from the pipeline for ultimate return to its own customers.

Lower Rate Agreed On.

Although the new rate schedule of Mississipp River Fuel is under study by the FPC, a lower rate has been agreed upon by all the parties and it is this lower compromise rate upon which the Missouri commission based its order.

Whereas the new schedule of Mississippi is based upon a demand rate of $2 per 1000 cubic feet of gas and a commodity rate of 18 cents, the compromise calls for a demand rate of $1.80 and a commodity rate of 17 cents. This would be a material reduction if approved by the FPC.

As applied to wholesale gas rates, the term "demand charge" means a flat monthly payment based upon a stated maximum amount of gas the utility can demand on any day of the year. It is, in a sense, compensation to the pipeline company for the facilities it must have available to meet a high demand for relatively short periods. The "commodity charge" is for the actual amount of gas taken each month.

Laclede was ordered to file a new rate schedule within 10 days putting the new rate into effect.

The new schedule will be subject to approval by the commission as to the distribution of the increase among the different classes of customers.

$4,907,167 Net Revenue.

Testimony in hearings before the Commission placed Laclede's revenues from existing gas rates at $30,466,678 for the calendar year 1952, and operating expenses were $25,559,512. This provided net operating revenue of $4,907,167.

The commission estimated a gross increase of $2,500,000 a year in revenue for Laclede would result in an increase in operating revenue of $1,140,824 after payment of gross receipts taxes, and state and federal income taxes.

Adjusted to the increased costs of gas to Laclede from the supplier, the new rates should produce an operating revenue of $4,147,787, the commission found, or a return of 6.28 per cent on the average of $65,974,000 of plant in use in public service during 1952.

MEASURE TO LET 18-YEAR-OLDS VOTE OFFERED IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—Representative Keating (Rep.), New York, yesterday introduced a resolution to grant 18-year-olds the right to vote.

The proposal to lower the legal voting age from 21 is in the form of a constitutional amendment, subject to ratification by three fourths of the states after it is approved by a two-thirds vote of both houses of Congress.

Keating said his action was prompted by the statement Monday of Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall that such legislation is favored by President Eisenhower.

Keating stated: "We call upon 18-year-olds to defend our country. An 18-year-old wage-earner has the same tax deductions from his pay envelope to help run the Government as does his father. If he transgresses the law he is held fully accountable. In most respects he has all the duties, responsibilities and obligations that go with citizenship."

LT. GEN. BARCUS NAMED TO SCOTT AIR BASE POST

TOKYO, May 28 (UP)—Lt. Gen. Glenn O. Barcus will retire as fifth Air Force Commander in Korea June 1 and will become vice commander of the Air Training Command at Scott Air Force Base, Belleville, Ill., it was announced today.

Barcus is being replaced in Korea by Maj. Gen. Samuel S. Anderson.

At Scott base, Barcus will replace Maj. Gen. Kenneth P. McNaughton, who becomes vice-commander of the Far East Air Forces in Tokyo. McNaughton takes over from Maj. Gen. Samuel R. Brentnall, whose new assignment has not been announced.

In Washington, an Air Force spokesman said there is "nothing punitive in any way" in the reassignment of Barcus, who recently had irked some Air Force officials because he participated in several combat missions in a Sabre jet over North Korea.

In taking his new post July 15, Barcus will lose a star and revert to his permanent rank of major general. Again a spokesman emphasized this was "routine" since there was no three-star job open for Barcus to fill.

HAILSTONES UP TO 2½ INCHES DAMAGE PLANES AT DENVER

500 Windows Broken, Autos Battered, Bomber Pierced in Midair.

DENVER, May 28 (AP)—Hail, driven by gusts of wind up to 45 miles an hour, damaged 15 torpedo bombers and fighter planes caught in the open at the Naval Air station here yesterday. Some 500 windows were broken and automobiles battered at the installation just east of Denver.

One hailstone measured two and a half inches in diameter.

The hail bypassed Lowry Air Force base. However, an SA-16 was hit when flying to Lowry from San Marcus Air Force Base in Texas. Holes blasted through the plane caused no mechanical damage and the craft was able to land.

Rents Auto, Parks, Drives Wrong One, Stalls, Cops Find It, Etc.

When William C. McLaughlin, of Carmen road, Manchester, drove the wrong automobile away from a parking lot at Seventh and Market streets Tuesday, he touched off a comedy of errors, police reported yesterday.

Instead of the 1952 Plymouth he had rented from Hester Rent-A-Car Co., 3655 Olive street, he took by mistake a 1949 Plymouth of the same color belonging to James G. Hedges, a salesman, 8708 East Pendleton avenue, Brentwood.

McLaughlin parked the Hedges machine in the 2000 block of Gravois avenue, and when it failed to start again he telephoned the rental company to pick it up and took a taxicab. The company's man took one look, saw it was not his firm's machine and dropped the matter.

Yesterday, a motorcycle policeman, seeing the Hedges automobile parked illegally, had it towed away. By this time, Hedges had reported theft of his machine, and the rented car was found safe on the lot.

"I never heard of such a thing before, and I don't want to hear of it again," Hedges said today.

SENATE BODY OK'S EISENHOWER'S CHOICES FOR JOINT CHIEFS OF STAFF

Adm. Radford Says He Considers Long-Range Bombers 'Most Important' in Protecting U.S. Security.

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—The Senate Armed Services Committee today unanimously approved all of President Eisenhower's nominations for the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The Senate is expected early next week to vote confirmation of: Adm. Arthur Radford to be chairman of the Joint Chiefs; Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway to be Army Chief of Staff; Adm. Robert B. Carney to be Chief of Naval Operations; and Gen. Nathan F. Twining to be Air Force Chief of Staff.

The committee action came after both public and closed-door testimony from the nominees.

First Chairman From Navy.

Radford will be the first Navy man to head the top military organization established by the Armed Services Unification Act of 1947.

Committee Chairman Saltonstall (Rep.), Massachusetts, said the brief closed-door session was devoted to "a little talk and a lot of questions, particularly of Adm. Radford." He said it dealt mostly with the Far East and classified military information.

Radford told the Senators he considers the Air Force's long-range bombers "most important" in protecting the security of the nation.

He also assured the Senators that he had been able to agree with top-ranking Air Force officers on the key role of strategic bombing in the past and could do so in the future.

Radford, President Eisenhower's choice for chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, promised he would forget his past feuds with the Air Force if confirmed by the Senate in his new top appointment.

'Leader of Opposition.'

His testimony came after the committee's only woman member, Senator Margaret Chase Smith (Rep.), Maine, had described the admiral as "the leader of the opposition" to the B-36 bomber in the big intra-service row that erupted in 1949.

The B-36 at the time was the principal long-range weapon of the Air Force, and still is much depended on.

Replying to Mrs. Smith, Radford told her he had participated in conferences in recent years at which the air roles and missions of the Air Force and Navy were worked out.

He said he was in entire agreement with Gen. Carl Spaatz on these matters and that so far as he knew, they still agreed. Spaatz, now retired, was former Air Force chief of staff.

Senator Bridges (Rep.), New Hampshire, asked Radford if he believed the strategic air force "with the atomic bomb" is of primary importance to the safety of the United States.

"I believe they are most important," was the answer.

Replying to a question from Senator Russell (Dem.), Georgia, Radford said he considered the bombers "one of the most important arms of our national defense."

Favors 'Powerful' Air Force.

"We must have a most efficient and powerful strategic air force," he said.

No clash developed between Radford and Senator Stuart Symington (Dem.), Missouri, former Secretary of the Air Force.

As first secretary of the separate Air Force, Symington engaged in a public quarrel with Radford and other Navy advocates over the respective value of long-range Air Force strategic bombing and carrier-based naval airpower.

Symington was tardy at today's hearing and when his turn at the questioning came, he simply recalled that Radford had "worked hard for the Navy" and asked if he would work as hard for the Air Force and the Army.

"I'll work primarily for the United States, and not to favor any particular service," Radford replied quickly. "I'll call my shots as I see them."

"I think that's a fine answer and I have no further questions," Symington told the admiral.

The four-star admiral called his selection to head the Joint Chiefs the "highest honor" that could come in his profession. He promised to work "solely for what I consider the best interests of the United States."

"The chairman should be expected to divorce himself from any service affiliation," Radford said, and "be as impartial in his judgments as anyone can be."

Committee Chairman Saltonstall (Rep.), Massachusetts, referred to the admiral's testimony in 1949 saying he then opposed strategic bombing and atomic blitz attack.

SOUTH KOREAN NOTE LISTS OBJECTIONS TO TRUCE PLAN

Contents Not Made Public, but ROK Leaders Charge Appeasement by U.N. Command.

SEOUL, May 28 (AP)—Bristling with charges of Allied appeasement and sellout in Korea, the South Korean Government today spelled out its opposition to the latest Allied truce proposal in a note to the United Nations Command.

Maj. Gen. Choi Duk Shin, South Korean truce delegate, delivered the message late today to Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison, senior Allied negotiator, at the Allied truce camp at Munsan.

Contents of the note were not made public, but a Republic of Korea spokesman described it as "very important." He said it gave detailed expression of the ROK government's recommendations, but was in no way an ultimatum.

(The United Press said Choi demanded that his letter be passed on "in the proper channels at the proper time." This was taken to mean that he wanted it referred to President Eisenhower and Gen. Mark Clark, U. N. commander.)

Choi's trip came amidst an increasing drumfire of opposition from leaders of this war-battered republic.

United States Ambassador Ellis O. Briggs hurried from Pusan and went into conferences with President Syngman Rhee. It was not known what they talked about, but undoubtedly Briggs was trying to stem the rising storm of Korean criticism. He has been in close touch with Rhee on the armistice negotiations.

South Korea's Foreign Minister, Pyun Yung Tai, threatened to resign if his government approved the still-secret Allied proposal for breaking the prisoner-of-war deadlock submitted to the Reds Monday.

While never revealed officially, South Korean sources this week disclosed most features of the plan.

Referring to two Red satellites —Poland and Czechoslovakia— nominated for a five-nation commission to handle prisoners who refuse to go home, Pyun said:

"Our country will fight troops from such countries."

(The United Press reported that

IDEA OF HOLDING ROMANIAN IN U.S. AS HOSTAGE REJECTED

WASHINGTON, May 28 (UP)—The State Department today turned thumbs down on suggestions that this country hold Romanian diplomat Christache Zambeti as a hostage until Romania frees the sons of V. C. Georgescu.

A spokesman branded the idea "gangster tactics" and said the United States could not be a party to such a move.

Zambeti has been ordered out of the United States for trying to blackmail Georgescu, a naturalized American of Romanian descent, into spying against the United States for the Communist regime in Romania. Zambeti told Georgescu he might get to see his two teen-age sons held in Romania if he would "collaborate politically." Georgescu spurned the offer and went to the FBI and State Department with the story.

The State Department today gave Zambeti permission to travel to New York by automobile. Zambeti is expected to leave New York tomorrow by plane, en route back to his homeland.

Zambeti denounced the charges against him as "only a frame-up."

EX-RED REINSTATED IN WASHROOM JOB BY COURT'S ORDER

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 28—State Supreme Court Justice Aron Steuer ruled yesterday that past Communist party membership on the part of a city washroom attendant does not constitute a threat to the nation's security.

In ordering that Bonaventura Pinggera be reinstated in his job with the city's park department despite his admission that he had been a Communist from 1936 to 1939, Justice Steuer declared:

"It is a bit difficult to visualize how a washroom attendant in his official capacity can give aid to his country's enemies. To believe that the conspiracy involved in 'going underground would be employed to obtain such a position borders on the fantastic."

Pinggera, 57 years old, had been dismissed by the municipal civil service commission after a hearing in December.

SEOUL, Korea, May 28 (UP)—Sirens wailed and anti-aircraft gunners went to their positions today when blips appeared on the radar screen.

RUSSIANS APPOINT 'COMMISSAR' FOR EAST GERMANY

Army Chief Limited to Handling Troops—Soviet Control Commission Abolished.

BERLIN, May 29 (AP)—Russia took its control over East Germany out of the hands of the military today. It could mean withdrawal of troops, eventually.

The announcement said the Soviet Control Commission is abolished, that Gen. Vassily I. Chuikov will handle only troops henceforth, and that Vladimir Semyenov returns to Berlin as supreme commissar for the Soviet Union.

Sempenov thus becomes civilian boss of affairs for 18,000,000 East Germans. He served here before as political adviser to Chuikov.

Gen. Chuikov undoubtedly will not remain here long merely to direct 300,000 occupation troops. It might be, Allied sources said, that his last job in Germany will be to "take Ivan home."

Target Date.

Western circles heard last February that the Russians had fixed June 1 as a target date to withdraw troops.

The selection of Semyenov to be top man in East Germany is in some respects an imitation of the western powers who have chosen "ambassadors" to West Germany. As soon as the European defense treaties are ratified by all six participating nations, the American, British and French high commissioners will be "ambassadors" to what amounts to a sovereign state.

Text of the Moscow anncuncement follows:

"The U.S.S.R. Council of Ministers has decreed the abolition of the Soviet Control Commission in Germany and the freeing of the supreme commander of Soviet troops from performing duties of control in the German democratic republic, his activity to be limited to the command of Soviet troops in Germany.

"The U.S.S.R. Council of Ministers has decreed that a post of supreme commissar of the U.S.S.R. in Germany be instituted, domiciled in Berlin, and has entrusted him with representing the interests of the Soviet Union in Germany and watching over the activity of authoritative organs of the German democratic republic from the point of view of their fulfilment of undertakings arising from the Potsdam decision of the Allied powers on Germany, as well as maintaining appropriate rela-

Ancient English Tradition of Pub Visiting Giving Way to Television

LONDON, May 28 (AP)—TV is raising havoc with one of Britain's most respected institutions—the pub.

There are 4468 pubs in London alone. So far they have resisted the intrusion of television.

Business is getting so bad that a pub in Beaconsfield applied for a license to sell ice cream.

Englishmen still patronize the pub for lunch—and a few mild-and-bitters. But after nightfall the pubs aren't the same—no longer the favorite club for small talk and intellectual philosophy.

More and more the beer-drinkers are going straight home—and staying there—to watch TV. Many drinkers buy their beer at package stores and take it home instead of hanging around the pub.

Along with competition from TV, there's a general tightening of money with higher costs of living.

Beer sales are dropping. Britons drank 252,000,000 gallons less last year than in 1946; even during the past year consumption fell off 90,000,000 gallons.

NO SINGLE FREE NATION CAN LIVE ALONE IN WORLD, PRESIDENT SAYS

Voices Confidence Cuts in Military Budget Will Not Jeopardize U.S. — Against Admitting Red China to U.N.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 28—President Eisenhower today bluntly disagreed with Senate Majority Leader Robert A. Taft that this country "might as well forget the United Nations as far as the Korean war is concerned."

Responding to questions at his press conference, Eisenhower conceded that the Ohio Republican had a right to express his conviction, but asserted that if you go it alone one place you have to go it alone every place.

No single free nation, he said, can live alone in the world today —we've got to have friends.

Shares Frustration.

The President spoke impassionedly but without rancor. He said that he, not being particularly patient, shared the frustration that comes to every man who finds himself balked by ignorance, error and resentment.

He continued that the United States was trying to develop a coalition of understanding based on decency, justice and government by free men. Then, he added, you've got to make compromises to serve the best good of all — that's what we're up against.

The importance Eisenhower attached to his remarks was emphasized when the White House, several hours after the conference, authorized direct quotation of them. Ordinarily, his press conference statements may not be quoted directly.

Other Comments.

Other important developments of the 37-minute conference were:

1. The President did not directly answer a question by the Post-Dispatch as to whether the Joint Chiefs of Staff had approved his recent estimates of military appropriations and expenditures needed for fiscal year 1954. He said he was thoroughly convinced that the military high command in general believes the proposed defense budget is the very best answer for this country at the moment. He said he could give his personal assurance that the proposed cuts in the Air Force appropriations and expenditures would not reduce the nation's defenses beyond a margin of safety.

2. He said he is opposed to admitting Red China into the United Nations.

3. He said certain kinds of East-West trade, in Europe and in Asia, should continue—that international trade is a great influence in the hands of diplomats. He conceded that his Administration had at present no permanent philosophy on the subject and added that he had some personal views that might not be acceptable to others. He pointed out there have been instances when the Communists have been helped by certain types of goods and also instances when the free world has benefitted.

4. He disclosed that his mail showed no signs of a growth of isolationism in this country. On the contrary, he said, he thought the great mass of the people obviously believe there is no safety in one country going it alone.

5. He said the prospective Big Three conference in Bermuda between himself, British Prime Minister Churchill and the head of the French government, to be selected, may not lead to a Big Four conference with Soviet Russia. Developments, he said, would have to justify a meeting with Soviet leaders. He said he had hoped to keep the delegations small so that the principals could sit around and discuss the same sort of questions that were being brought up at the press conference.

6. He said he had read newspaper accounts but had no official report of the unsuccessful attempt of a Romanian legation official to blackmail a nationalized American citizen into spying for the Communists.

7. He said he had nothing to add to Under Secretary of state Smith's recent comment on the delay in clearing of Mildred McAfee Horton to a United Nations position and then observed that the necessary investigations are detailed and laborious. This, he said, was an example of the slow progress being made in changing the face of government.

8. He avoided a direct answer as to whether we should proceed with armistice terms in Korea when they are opposed

EFFECT OF TAFT SPEECH ON U.S. FAR EAST POLICY WORRIES ALLIES

'Terrible Blow to U.N.' if Senator's Advice Is Adopted by Administration, Says Canada's Pearson.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—Worried Allied diplomats wondered today whether the Republican Administration may seriously consider radical changes in Far Eastern policies if Korean truce talks collapse.

Their concern stems from efforts to measure the ultimate impact on future decisions by President Eisenhower of ideas which Senate Majority Leader Robert A. Taft put forth in a speech read for him at Cincinnati Tuesday night.

At Vancouver, B.C., Canadian External Affairs Minister Lester Pearson said if Taft's advice "became United States policy it would be deplorable and a terrible blow to the United Nations."

Pearson told members of the Canadian Club that the danger of World War would increase rapidly if there were any major splits in the Western alliance. Great efforts are being made to divide the democracies, he said, to convince them there was no threat to their security.

"Security—like peace—is indivisible," he said.

Taft said if armistice negotiations fail the United States should tell England and other Allied nations "we are withdrawing from all further peace negotiations in Korea." He asserted also the United States "might as well abandon any idea of working with the United Nations in the East and reserve to ourselves a completely free hand."

These and other statements he made appeared to diplomats here to suggest a change of direction and a severing of ties between the United States and its Allies which the Eisenhower Administration has so far generally observed and protected.

The proposals come from a powerful figure in the governing party, moreover, at a time when truce negotiations are in what may prove to be the showdown stage and the need for new decisions may be almost at hand.

Taft's speech got no indorsement from those of his colleagues on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee who were willing to comment. One of them, Senator Sparkman (Dem.), Alabama, said it "may have torpedoed chances for a truce in Korea . . . and it may even have thrown a harpoon into the Big Three talks in Bermuda."

President Eisenhower, British Prime Minister Churchill and the French Premier are scheduled to meet in Bermuda next month.

"I can't understand the very bad timing in this thing," Sparkman said in an interview. "Communist Russia has been trying to drive a wedge between the United Nations Allies, and now Senator Taft's speech appears to do it for them."

He called the Taft speech "a diametrical contradiction" of Eisenhower's policy. "It amounts to telling our Allies, England, France, India and others, that 'we don't need you and don't want you,'" he said.

Sparkman, the Democrats' vice presidential nominee last year, is a former American delegate to the United Nations.

Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr. and James E. Doyle, co-chairmen of Americans for Democratic Action, said the Taft speech was "in direct contradiction" to Eisenhower's stated policy. In a statement, they called on the President to "reassert his leadership of a United States foreign policy which has the United Nations as its keystone."

Hickenlooper's Statement.

Senator Hickenlooper (Rep.), Iowa said he was "not prepared to agree with Senator Taft yet." Senator H. Alexander Smith (Rep.), New Jersey, said "this is such an important matter I'm not going to say anything."

Chairman Wiley (Rep.), Wisconsin, of the Foreign Relations Committee, recalled that a Norwegian statesman said in a time of tension with Sweden 50 years ago that "now is the time to keep one's mouth shut." Wiley added he was making "no personal application" but had in mind "all of us."

The Senator went on to say his view was that "it's up to us to see that nations with kindred thinking hold together. If we don't, it doesn't take a prophet to see what our future problems will be."

"I don't think we can take the position that if a particular negotiation doesn't turn out well we should get out of the United Nations," said Senator Fulbright (Dem.), Arkansas.

Senators Tobey (Rep.), New Hampshire, and Humphrey (Dem.) Minnesota, in speeches at Cincinnati last night, reaffirmed their support of the U.N. and, at a press conference, Humphrey called Taft's speech "very unfortunate."

Sends Wire to Taft.

Clark M. Eichelberger, executive director of the American Association for the United Nations, a private group seeking to win support for the U.N., disclosed in New York he had wired Taft:

"We believe your counsel to abandon working through the U.N. in Asia is disastrous. If we go it alone in Asia we will be accused of an imperialism of which Asiatics are afraid."

Some officials believe the reply which the Communists are due to make Monday to the last U.N. command offer for breaking the prisoner of war deadlock will determine whether it is now to be peace or more fighting in Korea.

Even if a truce is agreed on, a whole new range of questions about Korean unity, the Indochina war and long-term relations with Red China will demand answers from the Eisenhower Administration.

On this point, Taft said the best possible truce would be unsatisfactory because it would leave Korea divided and Red Chinese forces free to strike elsewhere in Asia. Nevertheless, he declared the United States should do everything possible to obtain an armistice.

But issues which in the long run may prove to be far more serious seem certain to arise if negotiations fail through next week and hope for a negotiated settlement is abandoned.

England and other Allied governments have long counseled the United States to avoid any action which might extend the conflict beyond Korea. Now they are understood to be apprehensive of a surge of demand in this country for such action if peace by negotiation fails.

To date the Eisenhower Administration has preserved the Truman pattern of conducting the war under U.N. sanction. Its management of the truce talks has been handled in consultation with 16 other governments which also have forces fighting in Korea.

Taft, who said, "We might as well forget the United Nations as far as the Korean war is concerned," did not specify what steps he thought this country might take in the Far East if it did declare a "free hand."

Silent on Other Ideas.

He opposed sending troops to the Asian mainland, but he neither advocated nor rejected various other measures which have been put forth in past public debate—bombing Red China bases north of the Yalu boundary of Korea, bombing military targets elsewhere in Red China, instituting a naval blockade of the China coast.

Such actions have been rejected in the past by military leaders here as well as by the White House. But foreign diplomats are no longer certain what the attitude of the military will be when a new group moves into the Joint Chiefs of Staff offices in a few weeks.

After his post-election trip to Korea, at a time when truce hopes were low, Eisenhower favored arming additional South Koreans at maximum speed as the best means of eventually disengaging American forces. Secretary of State Dulles has argued that once the Communists were unable to tie down United States forces in Korea they would quickly agree to end the war.

Whether this policy will stand if truce hopes now vanish remains to be seen. The immediate significance of Taft's speech may be to foreshadow a major debate on what course the United States should adopt in that event.

If that is the case, the whole range of foreign policy relating to the United States Government's attitude toward the U.N. and Allied governments may become involved in controversy.

Senate Body Approves Joint Chiefs

Radford told the committee he had "modified" his views since then. He added:

"There have been developments, improvements in materiel and certain other changes since then which naturally would cause me to modify my views.

"We are going ahead too fast for anyone to have fixed views."

Radford was serving as commander of the Pacific fleet when selected by President Eisenhower to be chairman of the Joint Chiefs, which includes the top Army, Navy and Air Force officers.

Yesterday he made a number of courtesy calls at offices of Senators who will pass on his confirmation.

"It was just a social call," said Senator Byrd (Dem.), Virginia, a member of the Armed Services Committee. "I expect him to be approved."

Asked to testify after Radford were Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, due to become Army chief of staff; Adm. Robert B. Carney, to be chief of naval operations; and Gen. Nathan F. Twining to be chief of staff of the Air Force.

Lunch With Eisenhower.

All four of the nominees, along with Secretary of Defense Wilson and the retiring Joint Chiefs, had lunch at the Pentagon yesterday with Eisenhower. It was the President's first Pentagon visit since entering the White House.

Representative Hoffman (Rep.), Michigan, introduced in the House yesterday a resolution to strike from the pending presidential reorganization plan for the Defense Department provisions to increase the power of the Joint Chiefs chairman.

Hoffman did not explain exactly how this was to be done. The reorganization law provides that presidential plans shall be accepted or rejected in their entirety by Congress. It has no authority to amend them.

Hoffman said in a statement the proposal to increase the power of the Joint Chiefs chairman could lead to establishment of a military dictatorship. It calls for the chairman to replace the Joint Chiefs themselves as the hiring and firing authority for the staff of the Joint Chiefs.

Meanwhile, Representative Yorty (Dem.), California, accused Secretary Wilson of proposing cut-backs in military spending without knowing what effect they would have.

Yorty, who has called for Wilson's resignation, said he has sought in vain for an explanation he could accept as to why the Eisenhower Administration reduced defense spending requests of former President Truman.

The only "logical reason" he could find, Yorty said, was what he called the Republicans' "now embarrassing campaign promises of something for nothing—tax reductions, a balanced budget, and a better defense, all at the same time."

"I think Secretary Wilson was so patently unable to explain the effect of the cuts," Yorty said in a speech prepared for House delivery, "because he did not know their effect. The cuts were made without a study of their effects."

Along with his speech today, Yorty made public copies of telegrams he said he sent last Monday and Tuesday to Eisenhower, the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Secretary of the Air Force Talbott and Secretary of the Navy Anderson. No replies have been received, the Congressman said.

Yorty asked Eisenhower for an appointment to discuss the proposed 5 billion dollar cut in Air Force funds. He asked Talbott and Anderson for any data they had on the effect of such reductions. He asked the Joint Chiefs whether they proposed, approved or were consulted on the Navy and Air Force cut-backs.

Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, retiring Air Force chief, has said his views were neither sought nor offered on cutting the defense budget for the year starting July 1.

In his speech, Yorty argued that the lessons of World War II and Korea proved "our urgent need for a stronger, more fully modern air force and naval air arm."

During the Truman Administration, he said, many Republican leaders—he named Senate Leader Taft of Ohio, former President Hoover and former Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, now United States delegate to the United Nations—called for "more, not less, emphasis on airpower."

"It seems to me," Yorty said, "we are entitled to know what new facts, if any, justify the slackening of our efforts and the change in our plans. Upon what premises are the changed conclusions based?"

He then listed arguments he said had been advanced—among these a contention that appropriations could be trimmed since funds voted by Congress in past years had outdistanced the delivery of military goods.

Of this funds-delivery imbalance, Yorty said:

"This can, of course, be remedied by speeding production and this is the field in which we were assured the new Secretary was superb. But he does not seem to be concentrating on greater and faster production. He is cutting it back . . ."

Yorty said paying taxes was about the only contribtuion most citizens were called upon to make in the Korean war. He called the proposed cut-backs "gambling with American lives and American liberty."

The reductions were decided, he added, "in quiet, smoke-filled rooms, between puffs on good cigars and defeatist laments about the unbearable taxes required to build America's defenses."

Manchester Guardian Criticizes Taft Remark.

LONDON, May 28 (UP) — The liberal Manchester Guardian attacked today Senator Robert A. Taft's remark that the United States might as well forget the United Nations as far as the Korean war is concerned."

It was particularly critical of Taft's view of the Far Eastern situation and said it was not certain he held "any coherent view whatever" of American policy on the Orient.

The Guardian said some of Taft's statements "will please the Communists vastly."

"That Mr. Taft has chosen this moment to speak his mind is a sign of the President's difficulties," it continued.

"And to think that when Sir Winston Churchill proposed a meeting of the heads of the great powers the Administration wondered whether any one man could speak for Russia!"

REDS HURL 4500 MEN AT OUTPOSTS NEAR PANMUNJOM

SEOUL, May 28 (AP) — The Chinese Reds sent 4500 troops smashing into western outposts near Panmunjom tonight after 6500 Communists seized five hills in central Korea.

In one of the biggest attacks of the year the Reds struck behind thunderous artillery fire in the west, hitting outposts Vegas, Carson, Elko, East Berlin, Berlin and The Hook.

The Hook and Vegas, two of the most bitterly fought-over hills in the west, took the brunt of the Chinese attack and apparently held firm.

Three Battalions Hit Hook.

The Hook, one of the major positions guarding the invasion route to Seoul from the northwest, was hit by three Red battalions, nearly 2000 men, in three assaults. The main blow was parried, but fighting still was going on.

An officer at the front, where earlier attacks by the Reds had been reported stalled, said the skies over the Hook were lit continually by the fierce artillery barrages.

The attacks began about 8 p.m. By midnight the Chinese had overrun one outpost position in front of the Hook.

The chief Red thrusts against the main positions were repulsed in fierce hand-to-hand fighting. Allied soldiers on Vegas counterattacked and were fighting with Chinese soldiers who had swarmed into the trenches on one finger of the hill.

The situation at Carson, Elko, East Berlin and Berlin, a string of hill positions near the Hook, was not clear. However, the officer had reported earlier that "we are in control of the situation."

Outposts Are Captured.

Heavy fighting also was in progress on the central front, where early today 6500 Chinese seized five outposts along a 20-mile sector, and were battling South Koreans for four more. The South Koreans had beaten the Reds back from five other outposts.

The Chinese swarmed across no-man's land in the wake of an artillery barrage which sent an estimated 10,000 shells into Allied territory.

One Red regiment hit ROK positions near Finger Ridge Wednesday, rolling over two outposts quickly. The Communists drove South Koreans off two other outposts after savage fighting, at times hand to hand. The ROKs clung stubbornly to a fifth outpost.

To the east, in the Texas Hill area, fighting raged around five outposts which were under attack by a full battalion, the Eighth Army said.

West of Finger, four battle-scarred outposts withstood frantic Chinese attacks although the Red assault carried Chinese troops into the ROK trenches.

In addition to the major attacks, the Eighth Army reported seven harassing attacks along the front.

State Department Has Evidence British Ships Hauled Red Troops

Lists Vessels as Perico and Miramar Owned by Hong Kong Firms—Report Made Public by Senate Group.

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—The State Department confirmed today it has evidence that two ships owned or operated by British firms in Hong Kong in transported Chinese Communist troops along the China coast during the Korean war.

It named them as the Perico, registered by Wallem & Co., Ltd., of British Hong Kong, and the Miramar, then owned by Wheelock Marden & Co., also of Hong Kong.

The report was made public at a press conference by Senator Mundt (Rep.), South Dakota, acting chairman of the Senate Investigations subcommittee which had requested it.

Panama Registry.

(The United Press reported that both ships were registered under the Panamanian flag at the time of the trips. The Perico was later sold for scrap. The Miramar is now in Chinese Communist hands. The report was given to the subcommittee by Assistant Secretary of State Thruston B. Morton.

(The details as stated in Morton's letter, according to the U.P.:

(1. In July, 1951, the Perico, flying the Panamanian flag and owned by Wallem & Co., Ltd., "made a voyage from a Yellow sea port to the Pearl river estuary . . . carrying Chinese Communist troops. Further information indicates that this ship carrying Chinese Communist troops sailed from Hainan island to the Pearl river estuary during July, 1951." There was no indication that the ship changed hands until it was sold for scrap in Hong Kong in April, 1952, but its Panamanian registry was canceled by the Panama Government on Oct. 24, 1951.

(2. The department has "reliable information alleging" that the Miramar arrived in Shanghai during June, 1952, with Communist Chinese troops. Panama canceled its registry in 1952. The Miramar was bought by Wheelock Marden & Co. from Wallem & Co. in early 1950. "It has been reported that subsequent to June, 1952, this vessel came into the hands of the Chinese Communists."

Mundt said the report leaves "the next step up to the British now." He said it answers British contentions that prior testimony concerning the ship incident was too vague.

British Reply.

(The British ambassador, Sir Roger Makins, the U.P. said, promptly retorted that the ships were not flying the British flag, were not subject to British law, and at the time 'appear' to have been under the effective control of the Chinese Communists."

(He agreed that British companies "had ownership or an interest" in the ships, but he said the important question "is whether at the relevant times the ships were still even technically under the control of British interests."

(In any case, Makins asserted, "the last thing that should be done is to use such isolated and doubtful cases to cast aspersions on the loyalty of the British Government and people in the great effort which they are making in the common cause.")

Report Made to McCarthy.

The State Department report was addressed to subcommittee Chairman McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin.

Robert Kennedy, a subcommittee investigator, testified last week that at least one ship operated by the Wheelock Marden Co. carried Chinese Communist troops along the coast of China in 1952. The company promptly issued a denial.

John Leddy, Deputy Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, testified at the same hearing before the subcommittee that the State Department had investigated another case, in 1951, in which a British-owned ship was alleged to have carried Chinese Communist troops. He did not name either the company or the ship.

FINAL MT. EVEREST EFFORT BY BRITISH REPORTED FAILURE

KATMANDU, Nepal, May 28 (AP) — Reliable reports reaching this Himalayan capital said today a British expedition failed in its final attempts to push to the top of unconquered Mt. Everest, the world's highest peak.

The reports said the climbers, who had hoped to put the British flag atop the monarch of the Himalayas in time for the coronation of Queen Elizabeth, will start the descent from their base camp the first week in June.

There will be no further attempts this season, the sources said, but they plan another assault on the 29,000-foot mountain when the monsoon season just beginning—is over.

SENATE UNIT BARS FUNDS FOR U.N. IF RED CHINA GETS IN

Rider by Dirksen Put on $1,104,000,000 State, Commerce, Justice Depts. Bill.

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—Senators who hold Government purse strings have indicated plainly they believe the United States should quit the United Nations if Red China is admitted.

The Senate Appropriations Committee voted late yesterday to shut off American contributions to the U. N. if Communist China ever takes a seat on the U. N. Security Council.

Under the U.N. charter, China is entitled to a permanent seat on the Security Council. Nationalist China now occupies it.

Chairman Bridges (Rep.), New Hampshire, said only three of the group's 23 members opposed the bar which was sponsored by Senator Dirksen (Rep.), Illinois. Bridges indicated he thought the Senate would uphold the provision.

The rider was put on a $1,104,000,000 bill carrying funds to run the State, Commerce and Justice Departments in fiscal 1954. The House did not include in the measure any provision like the Dirksen rider.

The bill carries about $25,000,000 for United States contributions to the U.N. in the fiscal year starting July 1. This country has been paying about one-third of the cost of running the international organization.

Admission of Red China to the U.N. has been an explosive issue as the Korean truce talks have reached a critical stage. The British government has indicated it would favor the seating of Red China in the U.N.

The Dirksen rider does not mention Red China by name. But it says no United States funds should be paid to the U.N. if any nation which has been declared an aggressor by the U.N. is admitted to the Security Council. Red China has been held an aggressor in the Korean fighting by a U.N. resolution.

The rider would apply only in fiscal 1954. It would have to be re-enacted from year to year to be effective permanently.

The State - Commerce - Justice bill as approved by Bridges' committee is about $38,000,000 under the House figures—a departure from past custom in which the Senate usually increased the House allotments.

The Senate voted to give the Secretaries of State and Commerce and the Attorney General blanket powers to fire any of their employes without the usual civil service safeguards. The House rejected a similar rider on the floor.

SINGING BERKELEY MAYOR WANTS TO BE 'JUST PLAIN BILL'

Wilfred Martin Bangert, Mayor of Berkeley, baritone singer and noted athlete, petitioned the circuit court at Clayton today to change is name to just plain Bill Bangert.

Almost from birth, he has been known among his friends "and the public generally," as Bill Bangert, the petition related. Few persons know him by any other name and almost none, except members of his immediate family, know him as Wilfred Martin Bangert.

In the sports world, which knows him as a champion shot-putter and weight tosser, and even in signing of legal documents, partly-blind Bangert said, he is always Bill. For the sake of brevity and "to conform to the name by which he is known," he asked Circuit Judge Raymond E. LaDriere to simplify things by legally making him Bill Bangert.

STATE SENATORS PUT PRESSURE ON THEIR LEADERS TO END STALEMATE

Messages to Appropriations Chairman Urge Him to Reopen Negotiations With House on Money Bills.

By HERBERT A. TRASK
State Political Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 28—Signs of a growing "revolt" of state Senators against their own leadership, prompted by refusal of the leaders to attempt to settle the Senate-House deadlock on appropriations before the session ends Sunday, were in strong evidence today.

Four members of the Senate have sent telegrams to Senator John W. Noble (Dem.), Kennett, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, urging him to reopen negotiations with the House so an agreement can be reached on the vital $738,500,000 state budget bills.

Reports have reached Jefferson City that many other Senators are unhappy about the critical public reaction to the legislative breakdown.

Criticism in State.

There has been sharp criticism throughout the state of the prospects of an immediate special session because of the failure of the Legislature to approve funds needed to finance state operations after July 1.

It is problematical at this time whether the festering "revolt" will break out into an open rebellion when the Senate returns to work at 4 p.m. Saturday, just 36 hours before the mandatory final adjournment of the session at midnight Sunday.

Ordinarily, the Senate adheres closely to its tradition of virtual blind obedience to the dictates of its leaders, but the growing displeasure with the legislative stalemate may force the Senate leaders to relent and accept a compromise with the House.

Frieze Sends Telegram.

Senator Arkley W. Frieze (Rep.) Carthage, yesterday sent a telegram urging Noble to reconsider his decision refusing to grant the House a further compromise conference on the appropriations.

"It is the feeling of a majority of the people in my district that the differences between the Senate and House should be composed and adjusted so we can avoid a special session, which would be expensive and unjustified," Frieze told the Senate appropriations chairman.

Frieze said that if the dispute could not be settled during the remaining hours of the regular session, there was no assurance the two Houses could agree later if an extra session of 60 days is called by the Governor.

Mrs. Virgil Loeb, a former president of the St. Louis League of Women Voters, said the Senate and House should agree at once on a compromise, "if the public is not to lose all confidence in our present two-house Legislature."

Mrs. Loeb, active in previous movements for a unicameral legislature, added: "All proposals to increase the pay of the legislators and shorten the sessions of the General Assembly have failed to attract the efficient type of legislator and produce the effective legislation hoped for.

"The public, I believe, will turn to a single-house legislature as the only alternative."

Other Messages Sent.

Three other Senators previously sent telegrams to Noble urging a further conference to end the deadlock. They are Meredith Garten, Pierce City; Allen Bowsher, Clinton, and Clayton W. Allen, Rockport, Republicans.

Noble, who has been in Biloxi, Miss., this week, rejected a third House compromise proposal yesterday, further dimming hopes for settlement of the inter-House fight before final adjournment.

The offer was made by Speaker Lester A. Vonderschmidt (Rep.), Mound City, and Representative Max Myers (Rep.), Webb City, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee. Both held 30-minute telephone conversations with Noble.

Myers proposed that most of the appropriation bills be enrolled in advance of the closing sessions on the basis of tentative agreements reached by the joint conference committee before it walked off the job last week.

He suggested that the eleemosynary fund bill, the big stumbling block in the controversy, be enrolled on the basis of a "reasonable" split between the Senate and House figures, and that the final appropriation measure, the catch-all bill, be held up for last-minute negotiation.

Noble refused, saying that the House should enroll all of the bills as they had been amended by the Senate, so the House could pass the measures when it returns to work at 1 p.m. tomorrow.

Despite the failure to come to terms, the House leaders yesterday ordered the clerical staff to begin to enroll the bills on the basis proposed by Myers. This means that they will not be passed before adjournment unless the Senate tipsets its leadership and agrees to approve the bills on the basis refused yesterday by Noble.

ANTARCTIC MUD GETS COAST GUARD OFFICER A DEGREE

A sample of mud he dredged from Antarctic ocean depths has led to a master's degree, earned in night and Saturday classes, for Capt. Charles Ward Thomas, commander of the Second Coast Guard District here.

Twenty-eight years after he received his first degree, Capt. Thomas will be awarded a master's in geology June 10 at Washington University. His thesis describes a method of determining the age of ocean ooze deposits based on the amount and type of skeletal remains of radiolaria, one-celled micro-organisms. It suggests that the Antarctic has been getting colder for the last 5000 years.

Capt. Thomas was in command of an expedition which destroyed a Nazi weather station in Greenland in 1944, and commanded an ice-breaker which took the ocean-bottom samplings in the fourth Byrd Antarctic Expedition in 1946.

Capt. Thomas recently received orders to assume command of the Coast Guard shipyard at Curtis Bay, Md. His transfer has been postponed until after commencement, and he will leave St. Louis June 13.

WOODMEN NEEDED BY CITY TO GET TO ROOT OF TROUBLE

An urgent need for emergency wood-choppers was brought to the attention of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment today.

The trouble is caused by large trees whose roots raise sidewalks, break the slabs, sometimes damage sewer lines and could make the city liable for damage suits, Alderman Louis J. Berra said.

Berra, majority floor leader of the Board of Aldermen, said property owners complain to their alderman, the alderman report the matter to the city forester and the city forester puts the complaint on his list.

But the city forester now is 600 trees behind and needs a temporary addition to his 22-member crew to help catch up, Berra said. He asked for a special appropriation which, he said, might run as high as $25,000.

FINNEGAN APPEAL FOR REHEARING DENIED

Shenker to File for Stay of Court Mandate, Will Seek High Court Writ.

Former Internal Revenue Collector James P. Finnegan's motion for a rehearing on his conviction of misconduct in office was denied today by the United States Court of Appeals.

Morris A. Shenker, attorney for the former collector and Democratic politician, told the Post-Dispatch he will file an application for a stay of the court's mandate and will file an application for a writ of certiorari in the United States Supreme Court within 30 days.

Convicted on two charges of misconduct in office, Finnegan is under two-year prison sentence. He also was fined $10,000 by United States District Judge Rubey M. Hulen March 24, 1952, after a jury found him guilty. He was acquitted on three counts of accepting bribes.

Denial of the motion for a rehearing of the issues in the case was made by Chief Judge Archibald K. Gardner of the Court of Appeals. The brief order merely said that the petition had been considered "and is hereby denied."

Finnegan was convicted of accepting $5000 from the Warwick Hotel Co. for his services in helping the hotel owners collect a $40,000 claim from the Coast Guard. He was also found guilty of receiving $3000 from the American Lithofold Corp. for helping the firm obtain $565,000 in loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

TWO ROBIN'S EGGS RIDE 3000 MILES ON PLANE'S TAIL

A mother robin at Lambert-St. Louis Field built her nest well. It was found intact, with two little blue eggs in it, when a Navy bomber landed yesterday at Alameda, Calif., and ground crewmen inspected the plane's tail section.

The nest, tucked in a pocket on a stabilizer hinge, had survived a 3000-mile flight at speeds over 200 miles an hour, passing through a rainstorm en route to California. A pair of robins chose their mobile nesting place during the big plane's 10-day stopover here.

The report on the stowaway eggs was supplied by the plane's co-pilot, who made arrangements to have them hatched by a substitute mother, if one can be found. The gallant airman's name is Comdr. Robin Larson.

MOTHERS BOG DOWN ON 'SWAMPY' STREET, PROTEST

Nine embattled mothers and nine children picketed the St. Louis county courthouse at Clayton today in an effort to get action from public officials to correct a constant "swampy" condition in the 7700 block of Delmont avenue, Lakewood.

Highway Engineer Fred Kiburz invited three of the women to his office. He told them the county could not build a satisfactory drainage ditch to relieve the situation and what they really needed was a storm sewer. However, he explained, there are no funds to build such a sewer in that area. Unincorporated Lakewood has no sewer district.

Meanwhile, the other mothers and their children, one in a stroller, paraded along the Forsyth boulevard side of the courthouse. They carried signs reading: "Our taxes go to county seat, we want drainage for our street." "We hired a lawyer without success; we find our street is still a mess." "We can't swim and we can't float, so what we need is a boat." A child carried this sign: "I don't want to fall in stagnant water no more." Nineteen-month-old Nancy Garafola, in the stroller, had a sign reading: "Haven for mosquitoes."

The picketers—mothers and children—decided they will call on the County Council at its meeting Wednesday to demand action.

DEPORTATION ORDER AGAINST BRITISH PACIFIST SET ASIDE

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—The Board of Immigration Appeals today set aside an order deporting Stuart Denton Morris, British pacifist.

The decision, in which Attorney General Brownell concurred, reversed an Immigration Service hearing officer who held that Morris should be ousted because there was reason to believe he came here to engage in activities prejudicial to the public interest and security of the United States.

Morris has been detained on Ellis Island for the last two weeks. He was brought to the United States May 15 by Quaker groups and planned an eight-week, nation-wide speaking tour under the auspices of the American Friends Service Committee and the War Resisters League. Morris is general secretary of Great Britain's Peace Pledge Union.

In canceling the exclusion order, the appeals board said that neither Morris nor the organization to which he belongs urges resistance to military conscription or illegal avoidance of conscription.

TWO UNION AGENTS INDICTED AGAIN BY RACKETS JURY

Bianchi and Thompson Named in Extortion Charges—9 True Bills Returned So Far.

Carl J. Bianchi and L. A. A. Thompson, business agents of AFL unions, were indicted again today by the United States grand jury on charges of violating the anti-racketeering law by extorting or attempting to extort money from contractors in interstate commerce.

The new indictments bring the total to nine since the labor racketeering inquiry began. In all, 12 labor officials have been charged.

Bianchi, known as "Dutch," out-state business representative of Local 513 of the Hoisting Engineers' Union, was named in both of today's true bills. Thompson, business representative of Local 574 of the Teamsters & Chauffeurs Union, was named in one of the new indictments.

Extortion Attempts.

Bianchi and Thompson were charged today with obstructing commerce by attempting to extort $6500 from the Mid American Engineering Corp. In the second indictment, Bianchi was charged with delaying interstate commerce by attempting to extort $1000 from Strebler & Landvatter, Inc.

There were three counts in the first indictment. From Feb. 23 to Dec. 4, 1950, it was charged, Bianchi and Thompson "conspired to obstruct and delay interstate commerce by extortion of property from the Mid American Corp. with its consent, induced by wrongful use of actual and threatened force, violence and fear and under color of official right."

At the time, the Mid American firm was resurfacing a section of U.S. Highway 61 near Sikeston and New Madrid, Mo.

In the second count, the Government charged that during the same period both union agents "obstructed commerce by extortion of $6500 from the corporation with its consent." Language in the third count was the same except that the defendants were charged with attempting to obstruct interstate commerce.

Second True Bill.

In the second true bill, the grand jury charged that Bianchi about April 29, 1951 "obstructed interstate commerce and movement of articles and commodities in interstate commerce by extortion of $1000 from the Strebler & Landvatter corporation with its consent, unduced by wrongful use of actual and threatened force, violence and fear and under color of official right."

At the time, the Strebler & Landvatter firm was reconstructingpart of an interstate pipeline near Labadie, Mo.

The second count made the same charges except that Bianchi was accused of "attempting" the extortion.

Both Bianchi and Thompson already are under $25,000 bond each. Thompson will be required to post $25,000 additional bond and Bianchi $50,000 additional.

After returning the newest indictments to Chief Judge George H. Moore of the United States District Court, the jury recessed until next Tuesday.

U.S. to Suspend Planning Funds Until City Acts on Plaza Proposal

$70,825 Advanced by Federal Agency to April 1—Bond Issue Election Bill to Be Offered Tomorrow.

The movement for another election on the plaza bond issue proposal gained impetus today after the Federal Government announced that it will supply no more funds for the St. Louis Land Clearance for Redevelopment Authority until the city takes steps to pay its share of the plaza improvement project.

Up to April 1 the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency had advanced $70,825 to the municipal authority to finance its urban redevelopment planning. In a letter made public yesterday by Mayor Raymond R. Tucker, the agency said it was suspending further funds because of the city's failure to meet its financial obligation in the plaza undertaking.

Plans for Plaza Area.

The St. Louis Urban Redevelopment Corporation plans to rehabilitate the plaza area, using private capital, by erecting apartments for 1350 middle-income tenants. The Federal Government will pay two-thirds of the net cost of buying the blighted property, clearing it and selling it at reduced price to the redevelopment group, provided the city pays the remaining third.

A park connecting Aloe and Memorial Plazas would serve as a recreation area for the apartment tenants, and would be accepted as the city's full contribution to the project. But a proposal to issue $1,500,000 in bonds to finance the park construction failed by a narrow margin to get the required two-thirds approval when submitted to the voters March 13.

Election Bill to Be Offered.

An ordinance authorizing resubmission of the proposal in a special election this fall is to be introduced in the Board of Aldermen tomorrow.

Discussing the suspension of federal funds for urban redevelopment planning here, Mayor Tucker said: "This would not have occurred if the bond issue proposal had been approved in the primary. It makes passage of the proposal in another election a necessity."

Former Mayor Aloys P. Kaufmann, who is executive vice president of the Urban Redevelopment Corporation, said: "I believe that approval of the $1,500,000 bond issue in the election this fall would put the urban redevelopment program back on the right track."

Mayor Tucker said suspension of federal funds will make it impossible for the municipal Land Clearance Authority to continue urban redevelopment surveys, and will mean dismissal of the authority's five salaried employes. These employes are John V. Boland, executive director; James Mohan, his assistant; an auditor and two stenographers.

Five commissioners directing operations of the authority receive no salary and will not be affected.

Mayor Tucker said William Murray, an assistant city counselor who has been devoting most of his time to the authority, will keep the office going for the time being with stenographic help borrowed from other city departments.

Plans for rehabilitation of the plaza, classified as Urban Redevelopment Area A, have been completed, and the authority has been working on a survey of Area C, adjoining the De Soto-Carr public housing project.

Nathaniel S. Keith, director of the slum clearance and urban redevelopment division of HHFA, wrote Leo Havey, chairman of the Land Clearance Authority:

"After a review of the current status of the redevelopment program in St. Louis, it has been decided that all further obligations of funds should be suspended until such time as you can submit satisfactory assurance that the city can provide local grants-in-aid in an amount at least equal to one-third of the net project costs on Area A."

POLICE TO HAUL IN AUTOS PARKED TOO NEAR MAILBOXES

Automobiles found parked within 10 feet of United States mailboxes will be towed away by police after due search for owners, Chief of Police Jeremiah O'Connell announced today. Drivers will receive traffic tickets and in addition must pay $5.25 towing charge and 50 cents a day for storage.

The decision to clear mailbox areas followed a conference attended by O'Connell, I. A. Long, president of the Board of Police Commissioners, Postmaster Bernard F. Dickmann, and other police, traffic and postal officials. Dickmann requested the meeting.

George Bruemmer, superintendent of carriers, said a mail truck driver double-parked several days ago to make a parcel post delivery and received a traffic ticket. Since then, he said, there have been 22 instances in which drivers omitted to make collections at mailboxes where vehicles were illegally parked.

Clear space in the vicinity of mailboxes is essential to efficient mail service, the Post Office contended. Capt. William Cibulka, chief of the police traffic division, said more than 700 cars had been towed in for illegal parking since the new traffic plan became effective last month. He said the policy had virtually eliminated infractions.

BONDS CITY PLANS TO SELL BOOSTED BY $1,625,000

Estimate Board Makes Increase — Additional Sum to Be Used for Parks, Playgrounds.

The Board of Estimate and Apportionment today decided to increase by $1,625,000 the amount of bonds the city will offer for sale shortly.

This increase brings to $18,912,000 the amount of bonds to be sold under issues authorized in 1934 and 1944. While the bulk of the proceeds will be used to reimburse the city treasury for expenditures for improvements made from general revenue funds, the $1,625,000 will be spent on parks and playground facilities, the board announced.

The interest rate on the bonds was fixed at 2¼ per cent by the board, which also specified that the syndicate purchaser name a St. Louis bank as paying agent for the city. Previously, the paying agent has been a New York bank.

Development of 15 park and playground sites at a cost of $920,500 was approved recently by the Citizens Bond Issue Supervisory Committee. These undertakings, which will be paid for from the additional bond funds authorized today, include establishment of North Hampton Park on a 23-acre tract to be acquired at Hampton and Fyler avenues. A second new facility will be a playground at Lillian and Oriole avenues.

Questions concerning the legality of selling municipal bonds authorized years ago were raised Tuesday by Comptroller Milton Carpenter on the advice of Carl Trauernicht, authority on municipal bonds. Trauernicht recommended that the city sell its bonds before making the improvements, and abandon the practice of using general revenue funds for bond issue purposes and reimbursing the treasury when the bonds are finally sold.

Which is first... fear or sickness?

Most people feel that fear comes when sickness is threatening or dangerous. Christian Science shows that the fear precedes the sickness, and is the controlling cause of it—even though fear may perhaps be unconscious or unspoken. Many thoughtful doctors today agree that this is so.

Why is it important to understand this fact? Because Christian Science points out how to eliminate the fear, and thus the sickness. Study of by the South Koreans. He said we had to go ahead step by step and if we could get an agreement now we could go to others.

Eisenhower Rejects Taft's View

Eisenhower's responses to questions about Senator Taft's speech in Cincinnati Tuesday evening indicated he did not expect a break with the Senate majority leader. He said he had not read the speech in detail and declined to agree with a reporter that Taft was confining his opposition to the United Nations only in regard to the Korean truce negotiations.

The opening question was: "Do you share Senator Taft's view that we should forget the United Nations so far as the Korean war is concerned?"

Hesitating only a second or so, he answered, no.

Obviously realizing that more comment was required because of the dismay and consternation the Taft speech has caused in Congress, throughout the country and over the world, he continued to say that if one talks about foreign relations one gets into a lecture.

At the risk of being berbose, he said, he would like to explain one or two things.

Referring to his wartime and postwar services, he observed that he had a great deal of experience in dealing with coalitions and had filled positions of responsibility under them. He conceded that, if one nation is acting alone, its decisions are likely to be better than that of a group of nations, but added that if you go it alone one place, you have to go it alone every place.

Must Be Compromises.

You can't, he continued, have co-operative action in these great matters only in isolated cases. There must be compromises, he said, which will serve the best good of all of us.

He started to compare the United Nations with a marriage but changed the metaphor to a business partnership. Not being a patient man, he said, he shared in the frustrations and irritations in the business of trying to win world peace and being balked by ignorance and errors. With obvious feeling, he observed that only patience, optimism and a very deep faith can carry America forward—that we cannot desert our great purpose.

He apologized for speaking at length but said he felt something had to be said. Later when a reporter read part of Taft's speech to bolster the reporter's interpretation that Taft was confining his views to the Korean situation, Eisenhower, revealing he had not read the speech in detail, said there was obviously some confusion as to Taft's meaning so he had better not comment further.

On Views on Red China.

A Hearst reporter asked: "Should the United States take every possible step to keep Communist China out of the United Nations?"

Eisenhower said that no one in Government, so far as he knew, had seriously proposed that Red China be admitted to the U. N. He added that in the case of a nation subservient to Moscow, the country should not be admitted.

Roscoe Drummond of the Christian Science Monitor asked whether the President thought this country should serve advance notice that this country would withdraw its financial support of the U.N. if Red China was admitted.

Eisenhower replied he always disliked to answer hypothetical questions and didn't believe the circumstance would arise.

Drummond pointed out that the Senate Appropriations Committee had voted yesterday to prohibit the use of American funds for the U.N. if China became a member.

Eisenhower then agreed that the question had not been hypothetical and remarked he had not read the newspaper very accurately. The quesion, he conceded, had not been hypothetical, and he commented that the committee was proposing a very drastic cure for something he considered a grave error.

He later said he did not know whether he could go along with the committee's action — he would like to think that over.

As to Military Cuts.

A Post-Dispatch reporter noted there had been some confusion whether the Joint Chiefs of Staff had approved the budget cuts in appropriations and expenditures for fiscal year 1954 and asked if the reductions had been approved by them.

Eisenhower replied that while his heart and background were tied up in that work, he could not be at every meeting of the military and budget groups. He said he would assume there had not been 100 per cent approval of every proposal made.

If there was only one side to a question, he observed, there would be no problem. He said they came up with what they think best and the answers are rarely those of any individual in the group.

The reporter remarked that some of the Joint Chiefs had said that cuts would endanger national security.

The President said he did not doubt that—all his life from the time he was a Major he had made recommendations for greater national security. He observed that no one can assume that any amount of military strength will be enough in the event of an attack. He and his advisers, he said, were dealing in their defense planning with equations in which every factor is unknown. All they can do, he said, is to try for a reasonable posture of defense and chart a course that will give the United States the greatest strength in the years to come that it is able to maintain.

"Who was responsible for the final figures?" the reporter asked. "Did you make them this time?"

The President thought he had said all he would like to say.

Assurance on Safety.

Another reporter told the President that some Republican Senators would like his personal assurance, based on his long military career, that the proposed cuts in the Air Force budget would not reduce the nation's military defenses below the safety point.

Eisenhower said he certainly could give that assurance as of this moment, assurance that the cuts do not jeopardize what he called this country's reasonable posture of defense.

A reporter recalled that Churchill and former French Premier Mayer had said they hoped the Big Three conference at Bermuda would lead to a Big Four conference with the Soviet Union. Eisenhower said he did not share that objective—not in those terms. He observed that it might lead to a four-power meeting but added quickly that he did not think it necessarily would. He said also the Bermuda conference could be postponed over the delay by the French Government on the selection of a new Cabinet.

Asked whether he would invite congressional leaders to be with him at Bermuda, he said the conference was taking on larger proportions than he had originally intended. He said he would like to have others there but he had been very anxious to keep the meetin gsmall, even without an meeting small, even without an affair. He thought a meeting of friendly powers would be valuable for itself alone without any reference to a later international meeting. He said he had originally proposed a meeting in the northeast section but that when Churchill had suggested Bermuda he had immediately agreed.

Eisenhower Reply on Taft View

WASHINGTON, May 28 (UP)—The White House today released the following transcript of the question asked at President Eisenhower's press conference regarding Senator Robert A. Taft's views on Korea and the President's reply:

Q. (By Merriman Smith)—Mr. President, Smith of the United Press. Do you share Senator Taft's view that we should forget the United Nations as far as the Korean war is concerned?

President Eisenhower—No. I think that you will understand that if you attempt to talk about this whole business of foreign relations, one is apt to get into a lecture that runs a little long. But at the risk of being a bit verbose, let me explain one or two things.

I have had a great deal of experience in dealing with coalitions, in filling positions of responsibility under them. It's always difficult. And I am quite certain that there arise occasions when if one—any one nation or any one authority — were acting singly, possibly the decision in that point would be better than to subject it to all of the trimmings and the compromises that come out of the effort to achieve some kind of unanimity of opinion.

But you can't have co-operative action in these great developments and procerses in just the spots of the globe, or in just the particular problems that you would like to select.

If you are going to go it alone one place, you, of course, have to go it alone everywhere. If you are going to try to develop a coalition of understanding based upon decency, on ideas of justice, common concepts of governments established by the will of free men, then you have got to make compromises. You have got to find the way in between the conflicting partisan considerations that will serve the best good of all.

Now, that is what we are up against today, because our whole policy is based on this theory: No single free nation can live alone in the world. We have to have friends. These friends have got to be tied to you, in some form or another. We have to have that unity in basic purposes that comes from a recognition of common interests. That is what we are up against.

Now, not being a particularly patient man, I share the irritation and the sense of frustration that comes to everybody who is working for what he believes to be a decent purpose and finds himself balked by what he things is the ignorance, or the errors of someone who is otherwise his friend.

I understand those things, but I will tell you, only patience, only determination, only optimism and only a very deep faith can carry America forward.

Here at home we have our differences on these things, because we are 160,000,000 people. But I earnestly believe we cannot desert the great purposes for which we are seeking—for which we are working.

I apologize for the length of my answer but I think the subject deserves that much explanation.

The White House edited the transcript of the press conference in providing the above text. White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said some repetitious matter was cut out but that only two words were changed to clarify the meaning of the President's remarks.

HOUSE SPEEDILY APPROVES ASYLUM FOR POLISH FLYER

WASHINGTON, May 28 (UP)—The House approved and sent to the Senate today a bill to grant permanent asiyum in this country to Franciszek Jarecki, a 21-year-old Polish pilot who made a freedom flight to Denmark in a Russian jet fighter plane.

While the flyer looked on from the gallery, he House put aside its usual rules to act with unusual speed on the legislation. There was no dissent.

Representatives Charles A. Halleck, Republican floor leader, and John W. McCormack, Democratic whip, said the quick action would demonstrate to others behind the Iron Curtain that there is a haven in this country for opponents of Communism.

Representative Antoni N. Sadlak (Rep.), Connecticut, added a touch by looking toward Jarecki and addressing him in Polish.

Special legislation was necessary to admit Jarecki to this country because, as a member of the Communist party of Poland, he could not otherwise qualify for admission. He renounced Communism when he made his freedom flight.

INDICTED IN ALLEGED THEFT OF FURS VALUED AT $2150

An indictment was voted against Mrs. Maxine Frances Smith, wife of Dr. Milton Smith, a physician, 13 Mary Hill drive, Ladue, by the circuit court grand jury yesterday on two charges of grand larceny involving alleged theft of two fur pieces valued at $2150 from two downtown stores.

Mrs. Smith was arrested last March 19 after St. Louis detectives, supplied with a search warrant and accompanied by St. Louis county deputy sheriffs, recovered furs at her home which they said had been stolen.

The indictment referred to garments taken from Thomas W. Garland Co., Inc., 410 North Sixth street, and Leppert-Roos Co., 919 Locust street. Police said Mrs. Smith had signed a statement admitting the thefts. She was quoted as saying she did not know why she stole them.

CZECHS ON BUYING SPREE, RUMOR OF CURRENCY CHANGE

VIENNA, May 28 (AP)—A buying panic, resulting from rumors of an imminent currency reform, has broken out in some parts of Czechoslovakia.

This was disclosed by the Moravska Ostrava newspaper Nova Svoboda, which also denied that any revaluation of the Czech crown is planned by the Government.

The newspaper said workers were buying up large quantities of potatoes, salt, dishes, cloth, corduroy and other short items.

STRIKING DRIVERS AND CONTRACTORS IN SECOND TALK

Some Progress Reported in First Session of Teamsters and Contractors.

A second conference of representatives of the AFL Teamsters Union and the Associated General Contractors' Association was to be held with the United States Contractors' Association was held with the United States Conciliation Service today in an effort to settle the strike of construction and building material chauffeurs, now in its second week.

Some progress was reported yesterday, following an initial five-hour session at Hotel Sheraton in which conciliators Nicholas Fillo and H. H. Griffith participated. A brief joint statement reporting progress and announcing today's meeting was issued by Joseph E. Latta of the contractors committee and Thomas E. Flynn, international representative of the Teamsters Union.

Fillo said he had been unable to arrange meetings between the union and four other employers' groups involved in the strike of 1200 members of Teamsters Local 682, who have demanded wage increases in some instances and increases plus contract changes in others.

"I believe that if we are able to come close to a settlement in the present conferences we will be able to get something started with the other groups," Fillo said. There appears to be no prospect of an immediate settlement, however.

General Subjects Discussed.

It was learned from other sources that yesterday's long discussion was devoted to general subjects rather than to a wage increase, the real issue between the general contractors and the striking truck drivers. It is presumed that the contractors' last offer and the union's demand would be taken up today.

The general contractors offered 10 cents an hour over the old $1.90 wage rate for a one-year contract, and 7½ cents more next May 1 for a two-year agreement. A premium of 5 cents an hour for heavy hauling also was offered. The union demanded 15 cents an hour now, plus the 5 cents for heavy hauling.

Howard Elliott, attorney for St. Louis and St. Louis county lumber dealers, declared yesterday the strike resulted from "overall organizational policies of the Teamsters International Union, rather than issues between employers and their employes."

Change in Leadership.

The attorney's reference apparently was to the recent change in the Teamsters leadership here, under the direction of Flynn, who is aid to union president Dave Beck.

Other employers' groups were reported as not sharing Elliott's opinion. Henry S. Till, manager of the Associated General Contractors, said his group "has not reached the same conclusions as the lumber dealers' spokesman."

Elliott added that, despite his opinion as to the cause of the strike, lumber yard operators are willing to discuss issues with the strikers. The union is demanding an increase of 20 cents an hour for lumber truck chauffeurs.

Conferees in Truck Drivers' Strike

SOUTH KOREA NOTE LISTS OBJECTIONS TO TRUCE PLAN

Informed sources in Washington said the new truce plan would permit only India to send troops to Korea. It added that it was learned in Seoul, however, the plan calls for 5200 armed foreign troops, including 100 Communists, to take over guard duties. The breakdown includes 5000 Indians and 50 each from the four other neutral nations—Poland, Czechoslovakia, Switzerland and Sweden.)

Meeting With Harrison.

A few hours before delivery of the government note, nine ROK national assemblymen met for an hour with Gen. Harrison. An Allied spokesman said later they expressed "fears and aspirations of the South Korean people."

The assemblymen said they asked Harrison to withdraw the latest U.N. proposal. They told a press conference the South Koreans would keep fighting if an armistice were concluded on that proposal.

National Assembly Vice Chairman Yoon Chi Yung said Harrison was told the proposal infringed on ROK sovereignty because it was kept secret from the ROK Government until just before it was presented to the Reds. And, that if the U.N. should go through with the proposal, the United States would be held responsible for a third world war.

The Assemblymen said they could not recognize India, which has backed the new plan and has been suggested to head the five-nation commission, as an "independent state."

One Assemblyman said Harrison's only reply was an implication that the ROK views should be directed to higher levels.

Negotiations at Standstill.

The truce negotiations themselves stood still. The negotiators are scheduled to meet at Panmunjom next Monday after a week-long recess. The Reds are expected to answer the U.N. plan then.

Allied and Communist liaison officers met in the truce village for two minutes Thursday. A U.N. spokesman would say only that the session dealth with an administrative matter.

The meeting was called by the Allies. Presumably U.N. officers delivered a written message to the Reds without discussion. This is usually the case in such brief meetings.

Behind the ROK opposition to the Allied truce plan is the ROK government's demand for unification with North Korea. Another objection stemmed from the Allied plan to give a five-member neutral nation commission custody of some 48,500 prisoners of war unwilling to return to Communist rule. These include 34,000 North Korean prisoners, whom the Rhee government wants released in South Korea immediately following a truce.

The South Koreans also object to possible use of Communist satellite troops to handle prisoners while their fate is decided.

'Shocked' by Policy.

In a 40-minute report to National Assembly members at Pusan, Pyun complained that the ROK government was not kept informed of Allied decisions in advance and was not called in for discussions when the proposal was drawn, as were other friendly nations.

Pyun said he was "shocked" by the Eisenhower Administration's policy.

"The aftermath of such an appeasement policy," he said, "will result in accepting Communist China in the United Nations."

He said it would "inevitably lead the whole of Asia to Communism."

Choi sidestepped a question from the floor on whether the South Korean truce delegate would continue to boycott the Panmunjom negotiations. Choi refused to attend the last meeting, at which the new Allied plan was presented.

He replied only that the delegate will continue the boycott "as long as the government orders him to do so."

Two Seoul newspapers reported today that 487 North Korean prisoners had sent a petition to President Rhee threatening suicide unless they are allowed to remain in South Korea as "loyal citizens."

U.N. Command Reported Intending to Proceed with Plan.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Radio.

TOKYO, May 28—The recalcitrant attitude of the South Korean government will not be permitted to block an armistice in Korea, high Allied sources said today.

They said in effect that the United Nations Command intends to proceed with its secret proposal despite the opposition of the South Korean government.

"The attitude of President Syngman Rhee and his government is not jeopardizing a cease-fire," one source said.

Allied sources pointed out that regardless of the South Korean opposition the "unified command, as represented here by Gen. Mark W. Clark, supreme commander United Nations forces, has the power and authority to negotiate and sign an armistice."

They said an armistice at the present time along the present battle line is the wisest and most realistic approach to solving the Korean war problem, "although we all wish it were the Yalu river."

GOLD SHOE FOR TRUMAN AS CITIZENSHIP AWARD

NEW YORK, May 28 (AP)—Former President Truman is going to lose a shoe. Well, maybe not exactly lost it, but it won't be much good to him by the time he gets it back.

The Shoe and Allied Industry of the United Jewish Appeal announced today he had been selected for its annual gold shoe citizenship award.

A spokesman said the former President had agreed to supply the shoe which will be covered in gold and mounted on a plaque. The shoe will be returned to Truman at a special dinner this fall, the date of which has not been decided.

Truman was chosen "citizen of the year" for his "consistent devotion" to world freedom and his help in establishing Israel the spokesman said.

GIVES HIMSELF UP IN 1947 KILLING, FOUND NOT GUILTY

Frank Skelton, who walked into Police Headquarters last Aug. 8 and admitted he had stabbed to death Benjamin Minner on May 24, 1947, was found not guilty of second-degree murder by a jury in Circuit Judge Waldo C. Mayfield's court late yesterday.

The jury deliberated four hours. Skelton, 62-year-old truck driver, testified Minner had threatened him several times and, on the night of the killing, kicked him and reached toward his pocket in a threatening manner. Skelton said he drew a knife and killed Minner.

A policeman testified he found a knife in Minner's pocket after the killing, which took place in a doorway in the 700 block of North Third street. Skelton said Minner's death preyed on his mind and he returned to St. Louis from Denver, after five years, because he wanted to explain the circumstances.

The jury heard the case for three days. Skelton was defended by Andrew L. Sans Souci, who asked the public defender for the case. It was San Souci's first murder trial.

PROFESSOR WON'T TELL OF REDS IN UNIT

Threat of Contempt Citation Fails to Sway Witness at House Inquiry.

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—A threat of a contempt citation failed to swerve a college professor yesterday from his refusal to testify about his colleagues in a Communist group at Harvard in the 1940s.

Dr. Marcus Singer, Cornell University zoologist, told the House Un-American Activities Committee: "I would never in honor and conscience trade someone's else's career for my own, come what may."

He invoked also the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution, with regard to self-incrimination, in declining to say whether certain individuals named by the committee counsel joined him in his study of Marxism while he was a student and teacher at Harvard.

In Ithaca, N.Y., Cornell officials declined comment on Singer's action.

Singer in a brief appearance before the House committee Tuesday, acknowledged his former Communist activity and asserted he broke away about 1948 or 1949.

The 39-year-old professor — whose research work with blood plasma during the war earned official praise—said he was still prepared to talk about his own participation in Communism but would not tell on others.

He added that he would regard it his "duty" to report any subversive activity but insisted the Harvard group's pursuit of Communist philosophy was "scholarly" and "not subversive."

Chairman Velde (Rep.), Illinois, had warned him that he would run the risk of being prosecuted for contempt if he did not respond to questions about other persons.

Velde told reporters Singer's case would be studied by counsel along with others with regard to contempt citations. He added, however, "we don't want to cite these people unless we are reasonably certain the Attorney General will prosecute."

Singer is the first witness in the field of education to discuss his own activity without reserve who refused to testify about his associates.

FUGITIVE RETURNS 34 YEARS LATER TO PRISON 'FOR LORD'

JEFFERSON CITY, May 28 (AP)—A 59-year-old man who said he was "doing it for the Lord" returned to the Missouri penitentiary today to complete a sentence interrupted when he escaped almost 34 years ago.

He is George Austin, who said he wanted to come back here "and get things cleared up so I can get right with the Lord."

Austin walked into Warden Ralph Eidson's office voluntarily today. He said he hoped he didn't have to serve the remaining five years of his original seven year term, but was ready "to do it standing on my head rather than go back and sin."

While working as a waiter in Joplin in 1917, Austin said, he met a youth named Jack Horn. Horn had a pistol and suggested that they attempt a robbery. Austin agreed, but "we didn't get a dime" and the two were promptly captured and sentenced to seven-year terms.

Shortly after being received at the penitentiary on June 8, 1917, Austin was sent out with a road gang near Kennett. After working there nearly a year he escaped.

Eidson said Austin's fingerprints had been sent to Washington and if there are no charges against him his chances for a prompt parole are good.

AIRLINER LEAVES WEST COAST ON 5700-MILE NONSTOP TRIP

LOS ANGELES, May 28 (UP)—A French-owned transport plane took off from Los Angeles airport today at 7:28 a.m. (9:28 a.m., St. Louis time) in an attempt to fly 5700 miles nonstop to Paris for a commercial airliner distance record.

The DC-6B, built by Douglas Aircraft Co. at Santa Monica, Calif., is being delivered to the French airline Transports Airiens Intercontinentaux. It carried a French crew of four, with three Douglas pilots going along as technical advisers.

Flying a Great Circle route over Canada and the southern tip of Greenland, the plane was expected to reach Paris in 18 or 20 hours, aided by an average tail-wind of 15 to 20 miles an hour. The plane has a top speed of 360 miles an hour and cruises at 315 miles an hour.

U.S. SOLDIER HELD IN KILLING OF 2 KOREAN WOMEN ON KOJE

PUSAN, Korea, May 28 (AP)—United States Army authorities tonight said they are holding an American soldier in connection with the fatal shooting of two Korean women on Koje island.

A United States soldier, two Korean soldiers, and a third Korean woman were wounded in the shooting, an Army spokesman said. Authorities did not announce the names of either American soldier. They said no charges had been filed, pending further investigation.

The shooting occurred at a village near United Nations prisoner of war camp No. 1 on Koje. Both of the American soldiers and the two Korean soldiers were members of an infantry security unit stationed on Koje.

Ruled Insane in Gem Theft.

MINEOLA, N.Y., May 28 (AP)—A jury verdict of not guilty by reason of insanity was returned last night in the case of Mrs. Ethel Carhart Jones Taylor, 26 years old, who was charged with stealing $10,000 worth of jewelry from a friend, Mrs. Margaret Chew Welch of Long Island in 1951. Both are socially prominent.

COSMETIC EXPERTS DECIDE ON MAKEUP FIT FOR THE QUEEN

LONDON, May 28 (AP)—Experts have decided on the make-up for Queen Elizabeth II on coronation day, thus settling a cosmetic problem which got big headlines in some of the papers.

The Queen must look right for the mellow religious lighting of Westminster Abbey, for the blare of television spotlighting, and for bright outdoor sunshine—if there is any. Her complexion must stand up for black and white reproduction and for color film simultaneously.

All the Queen wants herself, say those who have been wrestling with the matter, is to look natural. Her advisers have come up with this formula:

1. A peach-tinged liquid foundation, a little darker than the Queen's own coloring.
2. A reddish - blue powder rouge.
3. A red-blue lipstick, delicate but tinted to blend with both the crimson velvet and ermine in which she arrives at the abbey and the robe of purple velvet she wears on her departure.

HOUSE DEFEATS MOVES TO EXPAND RIVER FUND BILL

Spending of $416,391,000 Approved — Amendments Urging $41,000,000 More Rejected.

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—If the Eisenhower Administration's first flood control and waterways program is to be expanded in any appreciable degree, the Senate will have to do it—the House has flatly declined.

The House yesterday beat back amendment after amendment which sought to add a total of nearly $41,000,000 to the civil functions bill.

As passed by the House, the bill carries a total of $416,391,000 for the year starting July 1. Of this $399,284,100 is for flood control and navigation projects. The remainder carries funds for Panama Canal Zone Government and cemetery expenses.

Former President Truman recommended $661,524,100 for flood control and navigation in his budget last January. President Eisenhower in April revised this downward to $479,490,100.

The House Appropriations Committee last week trimmed this to $398,884,100—a 40 per cent cut from the Truman budget and a 17 per cent cut under the Eisenhower budget.

However, in trimming the Eisenhower budget $80,000,000, the committee said the Army Engineers have $80,000,000 in unspent funds they can use.

Sharp Debate Over Projects.

There were sharp skirmishes over unsuccessful efforts of Representative Scrivner (Rep.), Kansas, and Representative Short (Rep.), Missouri, to add $5,000,000 and $6,000,000, respectively, for Tuttle Creek dam in Kansas and Table Rock dam in Missouri. Both were in the Truman budget but deleted in the Eisenhower budget.

The House, except in one instance, went right along with its committee.

The exception was to add $400,000 to the bill for deepening the Gowanus creek channel at Brooklyn, a request made by Representative Rooney (Dem.), New York, and supported pretty solidly by Democrats. The Rooney amendment was accepted 107 to 94 on a standing vote.

Turned down, decisively in most cases, were about 24 other requests aimed at hiking the bill by nearly $41,000,000.

Two other changes were accepted.

One amendment, which did not alter the total in the bill, tells Army Engineers they cannot use the sum of $4,000,000 earmarked for Garrison reservoir in North Dakota. Representative Burdick (Rep.), North Dakota, who sponsored this, said his proposal would prevent the Engineers from buying land for dikes to protect Williston from the reservoir's proposed high level. There is a dispute over what level should be maintained. Burdick said the money wouldn't be needed for years. The bill carries a total of $27,000,000 for garrison reservoir.

Amendment on Lock Project.

One other amendment accepted by the House was by Representative Sutton (Dem.), Tennessee, to keep Army Engineers from using any money to buy land in Cheatham county, Tenn., for a lock and dam project. He said the land could be acquired for use at half the cost.

Final passage of the bill came on a voice vote. The measure now goes to the Senate for consideration.

Proposed amendments also rejected by the House included: By Representative Norrell (Dem.), Arkansas, to add $2,000,000 for bank stabilization on the Arkansas river; by Representative Paul C. Jones (Dem.), Missouri, to add $989,000 for Cape Girardeau protection works, and by Representative Jensen (Rep.), Iowa, to earmark $2,500,000 for bank work on the Missouri river between Omaha and Sioux City.

SPECIAL PARKING PRIVILEGE BILL FOR ASSEMBLY VETOED

JEFFERSON CITY, May 28 (AP) — Gov. Donnelly yesterday vetoed a bill which sought to set up parking regulations and give legislators special parking privileges around the State Capitol.

In its final form, the Governor said, it would be "unenforceable and would not serve the purpose for which it is intended."

The way the bill was written, the Governor said, double parking would have been the only violation which could have been punished. For that the penalty would have been a $10 fine in magistrate court.

G.M. JOINS FORD AND CHRYSLER ON PENSION INCREASE

Agrees to $137.50 a Month in Current Five-Year Contracts With Auto Workers.

DETROIT, May 28 (AP)—General Motors Corp. stepped into line with Ford and Chrysler today by agreeing to $137.50 monthly pensions in current five-year contracts with the CIO United Auto Workers.

With G.M.'s assent to increase its pensions the union wrapped up its drive for wage and pension improvements among the automobile industry's big three producers.

General Motors had been the first to adjust contract terms. However, G.M. refused at that time to go above the original $125 to $130 maximum monthly pattern. G.M.'s maximum was $130.

Today's agreement enabled G.M. to catch up with both Ford and Chrysler. Ford had been first to increase pensions. Chrysler followed last night. The companies pay everything above primary social security benefits of $85 a month.

All three adjusted contracts now are virtually identical.

Immediately after the Chrysler changes the union arranged further negotiations with General Motors.

The union demanded the increase in pensions to restore the pensioners' purchasing power to the 1950 level, when all three contracts were signed.

The Chrysler contract improvements, effective June 1, will apply to 114,000 hourly wage and 6000 salaried employes and to about 1900 pensioners. Robert W. Conder, Chrysler vice president in charge of industrial relations, said they will add $7,000,000 a year to the payroll.

These changes now apply to more than 700,000 workers in the big three's plants:

1. Nineteen of the 24 cents gained under cost-of-living adjustments since 1950 will be applied to base rates and cannot be wiped out by any plunges in price levels.

2. Workers will get a guaranteed increase of five cents an hour instead of four each June for the duration of the contracts. This is called an "annual improvement factor" to compensate for improved production techniques.

3. All skilled workers will get an increase of at least 10 cents an hour. In addition, Ford and Chrysler will give pattern makers and die sinkers an additional 10 cents an hour.

4. The new Bureau of Labor Statistics price index will replace the expiring old one as the pay yardstick. This conversion saves the auto workers from taking a two-cent hourly pay cut next month.

UAW and CIO President Walter P. Reuther, who joined Conder in making the Chrysler announcement, said he hopes and expects the pattern will be "universally applied in our industry." To that end, the union plans to confront smaller companies on the matter within the next few days.

GIVES PLAQUE OF GLASS FROM BOMBED COMMONS

A plaque made from broken bits of glass, recovered from the House of Commons in London after it was bombed in World War II, was presented to Washington University yesterday by a former student, Don Bolt, lecturer and newspaper man.

The plaque is one of only five made by the British Ministry of Information. It was given to Bolt in 1947 by the London Press Club "to make such presentation of it as he saw fit." He received the gift after completing a goodwill tour of Great Britain.

Presentation of the plaque was made at a luncheon in the Women's Building on the campus. Bolt, a former reporter for the Globe-Democrat, has lectured and traveled in Canada, Mexico, the United States and England.

NURSE CREDITED WITH SAVING LIFE OF BABY BORN IN AUTO

Prompt action by Miss Janet Pincher, a nurse at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Belleville, was credited with saving the life of a baby born early yesterday to Mrs. Roger Plab, Route 1, Mascoutah, as Plab, a farmer, was rushing his wife to the hospital in their automobile.

Mrs. Plab gave birth to her child, a daughter, as the vehicle neared the hospital. Plab speeded to the ambulance entrance and rang a bell which summoned Miss Pincher, night superintendent of the maternity department.

Miss Pincher found a section of the umbilical cord had looped around the baby's neck and was strangling it. She quickly corrected the difficulty, and today both mother and child were reported doing well.

BUILDING OF WING OK'D AT DEACONESS HOSPITAL

Construction of a 156-bed wing at Deaconess Hospital for the care of mentally and chronically ill patients, has been approved by the Deaconess Society of St. Louis, it was announced today.

Estimated cost of the wing is $2,000,000 of which $769,044 will be paid from a federal grant. Another portion of the cost will be met through proceeds of a fund campaign, which exceeded its $500,000 goal.

Work on the new wing will begin in the fall. Funds are also being raised to build a chapel, estimated at $75,000, at the hospital.

PAY CUT JUNE 1 IN INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER CO.

CHICAGO, May 28 (UP)—International Harvester Co. announced today that it intends to cut the pay of its employes 2 cents an hour June 1 under a cost-of-living formula.

A Harvester spokesman said the pay cut would affect about 75,000 union and non-union employes throughout the nation.

John L. McCaffrey, company president, took notice in a letter to employes of the fact that major automobile companies have adjusted their contracts with the CIO United Automobile Workers, to avoid current pay cuts on the basis of the cost of living. But he said: "We disagree with the theory that a contract is subject to change whenever one of the parties wants further concessions."

He said Harvester disagrees "violently" also with the concept of "patterns" applying to all aspects of union-management relations.

"We don't believe that, just because some large company in another—and much more profitable—industry agrees to something, we are obligated to agree to it also," McCaffrey said.

INJURED MAN BELIEVED HIT BY AUTO ON HIGHWAY 40

A former Federal Barge Lines employe was in serious condition at St. Louis County Hospital today with injuries suffered when he apparently was struck last night by an automobile on U. S. Highway 40, west of McKnight road in Ladue.

Otto A. Joggerst, 47 years old, a deck hand, was found in the highway's westbound lane by a motorist. He had injuries of the head, pelvis and spine.

Ladue police found bits of glass which may have come from a broken automobile headlight. Joggerst was unable to make a statement, and his address here was not known.

MSA CUTS FOREIGN AID FUND REQUEST BY $354,000,000

Due to Savings in Current Program — Some Congressmen Call for Further Reduction.

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—An administration cut of $354,000,000 in foreign aid requests was greeted today by some congressmen as a step in the right direction, but several served notice they expected still further reductions.

The $354,000,000 slice off next year's mutual security program was submitted by William M. Rand, acting mutual security director, as "savings" from current funds to be credited to fiscal 1954 appropriations.

Another $50,000,000 now is held in reserve, and a still further cut of that amount may be possible if no "new and urgent" obligations develop before mid-June, Rand said.

He emphasized that the cut "does not mean a reduction in the physical activities and programs which it is proposed should be carried out and financed during the next fiscal year."

He outlined the savings in letters to Chairman Chiperfield (Rep.), Illinois, of the House Foreign Affairs Committee and Chairman Wiley (Rep.), Wisconsin, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee both of which now are working on the Administration's original request that Congress authorize a $5,828,000,000 foreign aid program for next year.

Rand's letter indicated the Administration now would push for approval of $5,474,000,000 for new funds next year.

Wiley said the savings from previous appropriations will come in two principal ways:

1. Lower costs than were originally estimated for some items.

2. Revised requirements which permit deletion of some items, substitution of cheaper items, deferment of some military end-items, lower costs for handling and transportation and for military training, and deferment of some economic aid projects.

Representative Ford (Rep.), Michigan, a member of the House Appropriations Committee, called the action "encouraging," but said "Congress itself should relentlessly pursue opportunities for further reductions."

Chairman Taber (Rep.), New York, said the appropriations committee was not going to accept "the same old plugs" for foreign spending until the Mutual Security Administration came up with "some intelligent justifications" for the Administration's revised foreign aid budget.

Congress granted MSA approximately six billion dollars for the present fiscal year ending June 30, the bulk of it for military assistance in Europe and the Far East.

As of April 1, Mutual Security Administrator Harold E. Stassen had roughly $11,800,00,000 in his till as unexpended funds. Of this amount, roughly $4,200,000,000 was still unobligated, although MSA says most of it has been programmed for specified contracts.

QUEEN'S SISTER FINALLY GETTING OWN APARTMENT

LONDON, May 28 (UP)—The royal family apparently has given up hope of an early marriage for Princess Margaret, and the pretty little sister of the Queen is finally getting her own apartment—about two years late.

By tradition royalty marries early. By tradition members of the royal family get their own establishments when they reach 21.

The late King George VI resisted the custom of a separate household when his daughter reached 21 because he thought she must soon be married. The princess will be 23 in August and there is not a really eligible male among her present escorts.

Now that she and her mother, Queen Mother Elizabeth, have moved from Buckingham Palace to Clarence House, alterations are under way which will give the princess her own entrance, her own apartment and her own staff.

She will be able to give dinner parties for her close friends, have them up to listen to the popular records she collects and otherwise run her house as she wishes.

SUIT FOR DIVORCE FILED BY MRS. LEWIS C. NELSON

Mrs. Margaret Irene Nelson, 9730 Litzsinger road, Ladue, filed suit for divorce at Clayton yesterday against Lewis C. Nelson, on the ground of general indignities.

In her petition Mrs. Nelson asked for alimony, custody of their three children, Lewis Jr., 19 years old; Mary Virginia, 17, and Richard, 13, and money for their support.

The Nelsons were married in 1932 at Blundellsands, England. Mrs. Nelson's former home, and were separated last Oct. 2. Nelson, who has an office in the Security Building, operates family property holdings left by his grandfather, Lewis Cass Nelson, president of the old St. Louis National Bank, who died in 1931, and his father, James M. SPELLMAN'S ANTI-RED DRIVE IN ITALY DISCLAIMED BY U.S.

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—United States officials said today they had nothing to do with Cardinal Francis Spellman's plea to Americans to write Italian friends and relatives to vote against Communism in their nation-wide elections June 7.

The State Department was not consulted by Cardinal Spellman in advance, the officials said. The prelate's move was strictly his own decision, they said.

Thousands of Americans of Italian descent are expected to heed his advice and write letters to Italy, urging votes for Premier de Gasperi's Christian Democratic party.

In his letter to pastors of 387 New York Catholic parishes, the Cardinal said a 1948 letter-writing campaign "was a factor contributing to the defeat of the Communists."

SENATE APPROVES REORGANIZATION OF BENSON OFFICE

Representative Cooley Says He Will Move to Call Up Opposition Measure in House.

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—President Eisenhower's plan to reorganize the Agriculture Department won easy Senate approval late yesterday.

A resolution of Senator Russell (Dem.), Georgia, to reject the plan fell 20 votes short of the number required for adoption. The only Republican to vote for the resolution was Senator Langer of North Dakota.

Unless the House adopts a resolution of disapproval, the plan will go into effect June 4.

Representative Cooley (Dem.), North Carolina, served notice last night he would move to call up in the House next Wednesday a resolution to disapprove the reorganization plan.

House Republican leaders said they had no notice of opposition to the reorganization proposal before Cooley's announcement, and Republican Floor Leader Halleck of Indiana said he had hoped there would be no opposition.

A presidential reorganization plan can be killed only by the vote of a majority of the members of the Senate or the House—49 votes in the Senate or 218 in the House.

The vote on Russell's resolution was 29 for and 46 against. Lining up for the resolution to kill the plan were 27 Democrats, mostly from the south; Senator Morse (Ind.) Oregon, and Langer. Thirty-five Republicans were joined by 11 Democrats in voting against the resolution and for the plan.

Senator Symington (Dem.), Missouri, voted for rejection. Senator Hennings (Dem.), Missouri, was not recorded. Senator Douglas (Dem.), Illinois, voted against rejection. Senator Dirksen (Rep.), Illinois, was not recorded.

Eisenhower, in submitting the plan to Congress, said it would make it possible for Secretary of Agriculture Benson to simplify and improve the organization of his department.

Russell and other opponents contended the plan would give the Secretary of Agriculture—Benson and his successors—"blank check" authority and deprive Congress of control over Government farm programs.

"This is no plan at all," said Senator McClellan (Dem.), Arkansas. "It is simply a request for a delegation of power."

McClellan and others said Benson admittedly has no plans now for any major changes in his department. They insisted Benson should spell out what he proposes to do with the reorganization powers the plan would give him.

Reasons for Proposal.

Supporters of the plan said Benson needs additional authority to achieve more efficiency and economy in his department.

Senator Margaret Chase Smith (Rep.), Maine, said that Benson, after only four and one-half months in office, should not be expected to present a "detailed blueprint" of his plans.

The plan's backers said it would not permit the Secretary to abolish any functions of his department but simply put six of the department's 20 agencies under his direct supervision, in addition to the 10 which already are.

These six agencies are the Rural Electrification Administration, the Forest Service, the Soil Conservation Service, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, the Farmers Home Administration, and the Office of the Solicitor.

The plan also would create posts for two additional assistant secretaries of agriculture and one administrative assistant secretary.

Members of the hospital board have said that the hospital will serve impartially all persons living within the Belleville business area.

IDAHO POWER CO. HEARING PLEAS MERGED BY FPC

Action Is Contrary to Company's Expressed Wishes for Study of Oxbow Dam First.

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—The Federal Power Commission has consolidated two new license applications by Idaho Power Co. For power projects on the Snake river between Idaho and Oregon for hearing with the company's earlier application for the Oxbow project.

This action yesterday was contrary to the company's expressed wishes for quick action first on Oxbow in pressing for a three-dam development, now that Secretary of the Interior McKay has ended six years of Interior Department opposition to the company's program.

It is expected that the commission will approve all three projects following the withdrawal of Interior Department opposition.

Former President Truman and two Democratic Secretaries of the Interior, Julius A. Krug and Oscar Chapman, opposed the Oxbow project. They backed instead construction by the Federal Government of a huge multiple-puoprse dam in the Snake's Hell's canyon.

On May 6, the day after McKay announced he was withdrawing intervention against the Oxbow license, Idaho Power advised the commission it was preparing applications for its own Hell's Canyon and Brownlee projects.

But it said it considered them supplemental to the Oxbow application and asked that it "be processed as expeditiously as possible independent of the new applications."

In announcing the company's Hell's Canyon and Brownlee applications would be considered along with its Oxbow application at a hearing resuming here July 7, the commission made no reference to the company's request.

Officials familiar to FPC procedure said they did not believe the consolidation would materially slow down the Oxbow case.

COUNTY COUNCIL ORDERS LANDFILL BILL DRAWN UP

Takes Action on Garbage Measure After Getting Warning From Health Commissioner.

Preparation of an ordinance to regulate disposal of garbage in sanitary landfills was ordered yesterday by the St. Louis County Council. The ordinance will be introduced at next Wednesday's meeting.

The action was taken after the council received a warning from Dr. Herbert R. Domke, county health commissioner, that raw garbage might have to be thrown into open dumps after July 1 if the county did not have a landfill ordinance by then.

He pointed out that a new state law prohibiting feeding of uncooked garbage to hogs would go into effect on that date. The law is a health measure intended to halt spread of vesicular exanthema, a disease in hogs.

Question Left Undecided.

The council left unresolved questions as to whether the landfills should be operated privately or by the county, or whether they should be limited to areas zoned for industrial purposes.

The County Planning Commission last week recommended limiting the landfill operations by private individuals to industrial areas, but Dr. Domke said the high cost of industrial land might preclude private operators altogether.

W. R. Coldewe, 2509 Tyrrell drive, Jennings, spoke for a group who complained that a landfill operated near Jennings had resulted in depreciation of their homes. Coldewe estimated that smoke odors and rodents from the place had caused a 30 per cent decline in value of his property.

An ordinance requiring future residential and business construction in unincorporated parts of the county to provide off-street parking space was passed.

A bill for $10,000 for repairs and alterations of a newly acquired home for neglected children was introduced. The house, formerly used as quarters for nurses at Jefferson Barracks, was obtained from the City of St. Louis.

New Traffic Plan Justifies Hopes, Says Retiring Safety Leader

Ordinance Has Resulted in Gains for Everybody Even Though Not Fully in Effect, Antoine Asserts.

The new master traffic control ordinance, though not fully in effect yet, has more than justified the high hopes held out for it by its proponents, Louis H. Antoine, retiring president of the Safety Council of Greater St. Louis, said last night in his final report to that body.

Speaking at the annual meeting of the council at the Missouri Athletic Club, Antoine said the ordinance had resulted in gains for everyone, motorist, pedestrian and public transit rider, alike.

He had warm praise for the Chamber of Commerce of Metropolitan St. Louis for promulgating the plan, for the Board of Aldermen for passing the ordinance and the Police Department for its enforcement of it.

Effect on Congestion.

"I believe," he said, "that some of the profits to result will come through realization that with the freeing of the streets of congestion by needless parking and stopping, the mass transportation units can be operated more speedily and efficiently, and people will find it more convenient to leave their private cars parked in their garages, rather than spend time looking for places unsuccessfully to park in the downtown or any other congested area."

Looking ahead to the day when a system of proposed expressways for the St. Louis area is completed, Antoine predicted much more off-street space would be needed if motorists arriving in the downtown area over the expressways are to find a place to park.

He told the Post-Dispatch he thought the legislative restrictions which hamper St. Louis in developing public off-street parking facilities would yield in the future to public demand.

From the standpoint of safety, Antoine urged a strong pedestrian control law and a wider use of the intoximeter test for motorists suspected of drunken driving.

New President Elected.

Bernard H. Sweeney, resident manager of the Fisher Body Plant of the General Motors Corp., was elected president of the Council to succeed Antoine who has held the post for three years.

Three new vice presidents were elected and eight others re-elected. The new officers are George Gorbell, safety director for Monsanto Chemical Co.; Paul Hodson, safety supervisor, Union Electric Co. of Missouri, and John A. Othman, claims and safety manager, Socony-Vacuum Oil Co.

Ab Jenkins, famous racing driver and former Mayor of Salt Lake City, was guest speaker at the meeting. He urged uniform traffic laws throughout the nation and compulsory driving courses in high schools.

Antoine's enthusiasm for the new traffic ordinance was shared today by Traffic Commissioner Charles G. Gonter who called it "the greatest thing that ever happened to St. Louis."

Taking note of criticism that no traffic problem had existed in the downtown area in the off-peak hours, Gonter declared there has always been a traffic problem in that area.

"The moving of merchandise in and out of the big downtown buildings has always been a traffic headache here," he said. "When added to normal traffic movement, this has resulted in traffic jams at all hours of the day.

"Today, we no longer have traffic snarls downtown. From my observation, I would call the downtown parking bar the greatest boon to business that ever happened here."

GARAGE OPERATOR FINED $200 ON GAMBLING CHARGE

Ernest A. Shamel, who operates a garage at 4203W Lexington avenue, was fined $200 by Circuit Judge Michael J. Scott yesterday when he pleaded guilty of permitting gaming on the premises.

Shamel admitted possession of a second-hand slot machine, but informed the court he had purchased it for amusement of friends and guests in the rathskeller of his home. The machine was stored temporarily at the garage when seized by police last Nov. 24, he said.

The garage proprietor got into trouble when a policeman brought in his automobile for repairs, saw the slot machine in the garage and inserted four nickels. A search warrant was issued and seizure of the machine followed.

Fire in Fire House.

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—It was a humiliating day for the firemen of Station No. 3.

When they returned from putting out a small blaze, they were confronted by triumphant colleagues from Stations 1 and 8. The grinning visitors had just extinguished a fire which gutted the locker room of Station No. 3.

GAFFNEY, S.C. (UP)—Sheriff Julian B. Wright was happy to oblige a fear-stricken man who asked for a haven "until things quiet down at home." Wright locked the man in a cell. After 32 hours the man agreed to be set free, convinced it was safe to go home.

SENATE VOTES DOCTOR DRAFT EXTENSION BILL

Measure With Two Amendments Passed Swiftly Without Objection.

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—The Senate today passed a bill to extend for two years, until July 1, 1955, authority to draft doctors, dentists and veterinarians into the armed forces.

The measure, previously passed by the House, was approved on a voice vote without objection after a brief explanation of its terms.

Two changes made by the Senate will have to be ironed out with the House before the legislation goes to the President for his signature.

One amendment would continue the $100 a month extra pay now going to all physicians and dentists who volunteer to accept commissions as officers. The Senate also voted the extra $100 monthly above pay of other officers for veterinarians after July 1.

The other Senate change would cut down the required service of the medical officers, depending on prior military service.

Since 1950, all professional medical men, up to 50 years old, have been required to register with local draft boards for possible induction.

Actually very few doctors and dentists have been inducted, fewer than 50 out of 13,500 called to duty. Those subject to duty are allowed to apply for officers' commissions.

Pentagon officials estimate that during the next two years the services will require 7707 physicians, 4582 dentists and 376 veterinarians.

Pierre Mendes-France Third Leader to Decline Since Fall of Mayer Government.

PARIS, May 28 (UP) — Pierre Mendes-France, strong advocate of French withdrawal from Indochina and an outstanding financial expert, today refused an invitation from President Vincent Auriol to form a new government.

Mendes-France was the third French leader to decline the assignment since the fall a week ago of the government of Premier Rene Mayer.

Former Premier Paul Reynaud, the first nominee to end the eight-day government crisis, failed last night when the assembly rejected his demands for constitutional reforms to stabilize the French political structure and refused to vote for his investiture.

The government has to decide today about extending a $228,000,000 loan from the Bank of France which cannot be repaid because the treasury is empty.

The assembly refused Reynaud's request to become France's nineteenth postwar premier, by a 38-vote margin. The right-wing independent leader needed an absolute majority of 314 votes. He received only 276 votes, to 235 against him. There were 89 abstentions.

The 74-year-old Reynaud, who was premier at the defeat of France in 1940, bluntly told deputies in an all-night session before the vote they were falling down on their job.

He referred to France as the "sick man of Europe" and demanded a constitutional reform to prevent the constant fall of governments which he said "gravely reduces" the prestige of France abroad.

Reynaud warned he would not form any government before such a reform project is enacted and set a time limit of next Saturday for its passage.

The proposed law would have required new elections if any government was overthrown within 18 months after it took office.

This plan particularly irked deputies who, by voting to upset a government under provisions in the proposal would be voting themselves out of jobs.

Reynaud also called for budget cuts—the issue on which his predecessor fell—and criticized French business men for their "devil-take-the-hindmost" attitude.

Opposing Reynaud in the investiture vote were the Communists, Socialists and large segments of the Catholic Popular Republicans and the parliamentary group of former De Gaullists.

Voting for him, but by slim majorities, were his own independent party, the Peasants, the Radical Socialists and a group of dissident DeGaullists.

Russia Names Commissar, Limits Reich Army Chief

tions with representatives of the occupation powers of the United States, Britain and France on questions of Germany of a general nature arising from the agreed decisions of the four powers on Germany. Ambassador Semyenov has been appointed supreme commissar of the U.S.S.R. in Germany."

The Russian action was regarded in Allied and German quarters here as matching that of the west in setting up a high commission. It could mean that Moscow is convinced the European treaties will be ratified by all, including reluctant France, and therefore it must be ready to recognize the Russian zone of Germany as an autonomous state, too. In so doing, it would be virtually necessary to withdraw the 300,000 man Red army which has lived off the fat of East Germany since 1945.

Commission Closing.

Closing down of the Control Commission apparently means the Kremlin is prepared to accord East Germany's Communist-dominated Government the trappings, if not the substance, of sovereignty. One observer here commented: "It looks as though the Russians were just rearranging their setup to match what the Allies did a long time ago."

But others expressed belief there was more to the move than met the eye immediately.

Semyenov, the new commissar, has been a potent force in East German affairs for more than six years. He was political advisor to Marshal Vassily D. Sokolovsky, who was succeeded by Chuikov in 1949.

On Jan. 7, 1949, Semyenov was named extraordinary ambassador plenipotentiary to the Soviet zone, his tasks including revival of trade between East and West Germany. As the chief diplomatic representative of the Kremlin in East Germany, he was a chief consultant of the Communist leaders of the east zone government.

In April of this year it was announced that he would be replaced as political adviser to the Soviet Control Commission by Pavel F. Yudin. On May 1 Moscow disclosed that Semyenov had been named a member of the foreign ministry collegium—the advisory group of the Soviet foreign ministry.

In June 1950, the Russians replaced their military men on the commission with four diplomats. They included Sergei A. Dengin, who represented the commission in Berlin. Dengin has figured in many negotiations with the Americans over detention of United States soldiers and other matters of conflict in Berlin, which is an island deep within the Soviet zone and occupied by all four major conquering powers.

Bolstering Prestige.

At the time, the placing of civilians on the commission was interpreted by western observers as bolstering the prestige of the east zone government.

(American authorities in Washington viewed the move as a gesture to try to convince the Germans that the Soviets, rather than the Western powers, are taking the lead in winding up the occupation of Germany.)

The Russians have indicated some new strategy recently by denuding the east zone of meat, fat, sugar, fish and raw materials. Refugees fleeing to the West in record numbers now say a genuine threat of hunger hangs over the Soviet zone.

In the light of the Moscow announcement today, there was considerable thought in Berlin that the "scorched earth" tactics of recent weeks have amounted to taking while the taking's good.

Soviet zone Germans who have fled to West Berlin report:

1. The Red Army has sharply increased its requisition requirements for food, without increasing the size of its forces.

2. Russian experts have been placed in strategic German industries to expand deliveries of output to the Soviet Union.

3. State ration-free stores are selling only what is on the shelves and are receiving no new shipments.

The air of poverty has frightened the East German population anew. After weeks of slowing down, the flow of refugees to the West has suddenly leaped into big figures again. Four thousand showed up in West Berlin yesterday. Almost 5000 came across the border over last weekend.

Official Allied quarters contend that East Germany produces enough food to feed its population well and can also take care of the 300,000-man Red army, which it has been feeding in style since 1945.

Seizures of Food.

The purpose of the new Soviet food and materials seizures is not clear. Allied experts advance numerous possibilities, including:

1. Eventual withdrawal of the Red army for whatever political surprise and advantage that could provide. This would make a scraping of the economy to its lowest possible level somewhat logical, on the take-while-the-taking's-good theory.

2. A deliberate campaign to break the spirit of the East Zone Germans to soften them for full control by the Communist police force. This would relieve the Russians of occupation duties and possibly release many top men for strategic duty elsewhere.

3. An all-out drive to lower the level of the East German standard to that of the Russian peasant. Unable to raise their own level, the Russians have never been solicitous about maintaining any high standard in Germany and the satellites.

4. The Soviets are cranking up a genuine German unity drive and are prepared to go through with it. But they want to give the West a ruined East Zone, hoping that this strain on the study Western economy would produce a weak, neutral Germany too busy with its internal problems to be an international force.

BRITISH SOLDIER IS STABBED BY EGYPTIANS IN SUEZ ZONE

ISMAILIA, Suez Canal Zone, May 28 (UP) — Two Egyptians armed with knives attacked two British soldiers near a canal zone swimming pool and stabbed one of the Britons in the back, it was announced yesterday.

In a second flare-up of violence along the canal, British guards fired on Egyptians who tried to remove water pipelines from a cold storage depot near Suez, a spokesman said. Two of the Egyptians were wounded and six were arrested.

TWO AIRMEN SLIGHTLY INJURED IN CRASH

Plane Falls Near Belleville—Navy Pilot Unhurt When Craft Is Forced Down.

Two Scott Air Force Base officers were slightly injured last night when their light training airplane crashed in a field three miles north of the base, near Belleville. In another emergency landing last night, a Navy pilot was uninjured when his plane was forced down in a field eight miles northwest of St. Charles.

The Air Force officers were making their approach to Scott Field in a dual-control T-6 training plane when the crash occured. Officials at the base said the cause cannot be determined until the plane, which was badly damaged, has been examined.

The officers, both second lieutenants in the Eighty-fifth Fighter Interceptor Squadron, are William L. Schemmel, Wausaw, Wis., and Walter Frederickson Jr., Hopkins, Minn. Schemmel suffered knee abrasions and Frederickson facial lacerations.

In the second accident, Lt. (jg) Robert J. Juhl, Springfield, Ill., crash-landed when the engine of his F-8-F fighter training plane failed as he was returning to Lambert-St. Louis Field from a training flight.

Juhl landed in a field owned by a private duck-hunting club. He escaped injury and the plane was only slightly damaged. Juhl is a reservist on active duty for two weeks at the Naval Air Station here.

Former St. Louisan Killed in Florida Crash.

Funeral services for Navy Lt. Francis E. Elder, a former St. Louisan, were held today at Pensacola, Fla., where he was killed in an airplane crash Tuesday. The body will be brought here for burial, relatives said.

Lt. Elder and two other officers were killed when two planes collided in mid-air near the Pensacola Naval Air Station. Lt. Elder, 29 years old, attended Washington University and lived in St. Louis until January, 1952, when he returned to active duty as a flight instructor.

Surviving are his wife and two young daughters of Warrington, Fla., and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Elder, 1301 South Thirteenth street.

Many European Aliens Entering U.S. Illegally From Canada

Possibly Some Security Risks Among Them, Say Immigration Authorities—Various Ways of Crossing Border.

BUFFALO, N.Y., May 28 (UP)—Hundreds of European-born aliens—possibly including some security risks—will slip across the Canadian - American boundary along the Niagara frontier this summer, shielded by the 12,000,000 persons who cross legally, immigration authorities said today.

Memorial Day weekend will officially launch the border-crossing season which always picks up in warmer weather.

The illegal entries can simply pay a nickel at one of several bridges and tell inspectors they were born in the United States. They may get through, as Americans do not need passports to enter or leave Canada.

Increase in Illegal Entries.

Arthur J. Karnuth, district immigration director here, said the illegal entry problem has increased steadily since the end of World War II and "we have no reason to believe some of these people might not be a threat to security."

If bridge-crossing appears too difficult, the alien can swim the Niagara river, hide in a car trunk or secret compartment, or pay $50 to $300 to one of several smuggling rings known to be operating.

Karnuth said a number of recent arrests and subsequent deportations indicate the proportions of the rings, reported to have roots in Italy.

In one case, a man installed a secret compartment in his small truck. A woman, charged $50, was hidden there, but an alert inspector detected the hiding place at Niagara Falls.

An Italian, Raffaele Filippelli, 24, years old, told authorities he paid $50 to be bowed across the river in a rowboat. He was deported.

Controlled From Italy.

"Several groups of smugglers are operating in this area," Karnuth said, "and there's good evidence that one or more of the groups is controlled from Italy." He would not elaborate.

Aliens have been hesitant to identify pictures of known smugglers and officials have reported that the threat of death to themselves or relatives in the old country hangs over them. One official said marriages were being arranged for some of the aliens at the end of the line.

The ever increasing influx is the result of a large number of displaced persons entering Canada. Some 165,000 will be admitted this year as farmers, laborers and technicians under a selective program to increase Canada's population of 14,500,000.

Harrassed border patrolmen—there are 27 to cover the 50-mile Niagara frontier—were expecting an increase of 20 per cent in traffic this year and expect the number of arrests, 1000 last year, to increase proportionately.

RETIRED MACHINIST RECALLS TURNING DOWN FORD VENTURE

CLEVELAND, O. (UP)—Looking back over 90 years of a full life, Patrick T. Lennon points to his associations with Thomas Alva Edison and Henry Ford as among the brightest spots in his career.

He recalled on his recent birthday that he worked beside Ford in Woonsocket, R.I. Later Ford tried to prevail upon Lennon, a skilled machinist, to join him in his motor car venture.

Edison once engaged Lennon to make parts.

"I didn't enjoy that at all," he said. "Edison would anticipate every one of my moves and hand me the proper file before I asked for it. That was most annoying."

Red Players Back Hornsby in Denial of Revolt to Oust Him

BETWEEN ROUNDS

by W. J. McGoogan

THREE-DIMENSIONAL motion pictures of the Rocky Marciano-Joe Walcott heavyweight championship fight, held in Chicago May 15, will be shown at the Ambassador Theater, starting Friday.

This picture, the first of its kind ever taken of a prize fight, dispels all the doubts raised by Walcott after his knockout.

It shows very clearly that Joe was on the canvas after the count of 10 despite his contention that the referee had counted only to seven or nine, both of which claims he made.

He also declared, after the bout, that the referee had counted to seven, then pushed him down and waved to Marciano as the winner. This, also, the picture disproves. The referee, Frank Sikora, a veteran of 21 years in the ring, never laid a hand on Walcott.

Television viewers, and many of those at ringside in Chicago Stadium, were unable to see the punch which floored Walcott because it was a right-hand, following a left hook. Walcott's back was to the TV cameras when the blow landed and many of those who saw the bout in their living rooms thought he had been pushed.

In the picture there is an excellent and very clear picture of the blow, a righthand punch which travelled laterally and slightly upward to the point of Walcott's jaw.

No picture or anything else can ever prove or disprove conclusively whether Walcott could have gotten up before the count of 10. That Joe alone knows.

The picture does show the slightly puzzled look on his face but it also proves that he was conscious. And the fact that he could jump up so quickly after the count of 10 leaves the impression that he possibly could have risen before 10.

And another thing, Walcott declared that he had got on one knee preparatory to rising before the count of 10, and that also the picture disproves. He did not get to his knee at any time but sat throughout the count until he jumped to his feet after Sikora had tolled 10.

Turner Faces Tough Test.

JESSE TURNER'S next opponent, Holly Mims of Washington, at The Arena next Wednesday night is one of those fighters whose ability is not generally recognized by the public. Boxing men know that he's a pretty tough customer and there's enough in his record to prove that he is.

He battled Ray Robinson 10 rounds in Miami in 1951 and lost a close decision to him. Robinson never asked for another match with Holly.

Mims also has beaten Johnny Bratton twice, both times by decision in 10 rounds.

But the best victory in his record of 27 in 42 bouts, perhaps, is his knockout of the youthful sensation, Willie Troy, recently. Troy had won 18 straight bouts before he tangled with Mims in Washington and Holly knocked him out in the ninth round of a very rough bout.

Lester Felton, a former St. Louisan who has been boxing out of Detroit for sometime, was another victim of Mims. Holly won from Lester at Miami Beach, Fla., last year but the bout was no howling success, judging from reports, which stated that Felton would not fight. He has had trouble in this direction in other contests.

Several boxing men have declared, however, that Mims will be able to defeat Turner and end Jesse's climb up the ladder. But, as Jack Callahan says, if he does so, it will be some scrap.

Courtney-to-Cleveland Trade Talk; Browns Would Get Mitchell

A week or so ago the Browns and Cleveland had a swap virtually clinched by which Catcher Clint Courtney would become an Indian for Pitcher Steve Gromek, outfielder Dale Mitchell and Catcher Joe Tipton, according to John P. Carmichael, sports editor of the Chicago Daily News.

"Then Hank Greenberg, the Tribal chieftain, hedged on Mitchell and while he was hedging, the Injuns started to win," Carmichael wrote, "so for the time being that trade is in escrow, but Courtney will be gone by June 15.

"The Indians aren't drawing and they're lack-luster in personnel. Courtney, a Yankee-hater, would at least spark those periodic drives against the world champions and give Cleveland's potential customers somebody to catch their fancy."

Cards Deal Rog's Boys 5th Loss In a Row

By Bob Broeg
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

CINCINNATI, May 28.—Red Schoendienst today was hitting like Rogers Hornsby, no less, but it was the old Rajah himself who was in the spotlight.

Hornsby, in the midst of winning six straight batting titles as a Cardinal when Schoendienst was born in 1923, found his floundering Cincinnati Reds going to bat for him over a report of dissension delivered before the Redbirds handed Rog's boys their fifth straight defeat last night at Crosley field, 6 to 3.

The Cardinals' eighth victory in the last 10 games was achieved with surprising ease considering that they were facing a tough nut, Ken Raffensberger, and trying to get by themselves with a second-line pitcher, Mike Clark.

Manager Eddie Stanky's gamble paid off because Black Mike held up splendidly into the sixth inning and then passed the baton to Al Brazle, who breezed by the Redlegs thereafter. The Cardinals, meanwhile, combed Raffensberger out of the box in the first inning with enough runs to win, scoring four times on five hits, three of which were doubles.

The Redbirds finished with 13 hits, including three apiece by Capt. Enos Slaughter, Ray Jablonski and the sensational Schoendienst. Red drilled a single batting righthanded and, switching to the left side, added another hit and his sixth homer. The circuit drive off big Frank Smith gave the Cardinals' second baseman 11 hits in his last 16 tries and boosted his league-leading average to a robust .386.

The defeat for Cincinnati sank the Reds deeper into the cellar and came just after the unhappy players denied a report out of Milwaukee that they planned to revolt against Hornsby. They also repudiated a rumor that they were circulating a petition seeking the former batting champion's ouster as manager.

General Manager Gabe Paul, annoyed, said flatly, "I have heard of no player making a complaint about Hornsby."

Comment by Hornsby.

The story that brought forth the angry denials was published yesterday in the Milwaukee Journal under the by-line of Sam Levy, veteran baseball writer, prompting Hornsby to snap:

"I'm not surprised that the story saying Cincinnati players oppose my methods of handling the team originated on a paper and with a writer who have been very friendly to Bill Veeck."

Veeck, it will be recalled, dismissed Hornsby as manager of the Browns last June 10 at a time the St. Louis Americans had a 22-28 won-and-lost record. The Rajah succeeded Luke Sewell at Cincinnati July 28, and the Reds improved to win 27 and lose 24 the rest of the season. This year, however, they've won only nine out of 31.

Hornsby, continuing, commented:

"If the Reds are in revolt, it's news to me. If the management of the Reds does not want me as manager, it is up to the men at the head of the club to tell me so. I've really been tough with only one player—Bubba Church—for failing to bunt in Milwaukee when I gave him the bunt sign. He might have beefed to the Braves—that's natural—but he told me later I was right in fining him. That's good enough for me."

Levy's story apparently was based on Church's fine and an alleged argument between Hornsby and Pitcher Frank Smith, his relief ace, on the mound at Milwaukee. Both incidents took place in Monday night's game there.

In the third inning of a game eventually won by the Braves, 5 to 1, Cincinnati trailed by a run and had a man on first, none out, when Hornsby flashed the bunt sign to Church. As the infield charged, however, the Redleg pitcher thought he saw a chance to push the ball past Third Baseman Ed Mathews and he hit away, grounding into a force play.

A single then sent Church around to third base, where Hornsby said he asked if he had seen the bunt sign. The pitcher said he had, but had tried to cross up the defense. The $25 fine, said to be the first levied by Hornsby as Cincinnati manager, was assessed on the spot.

"One man has to give the orders, and that's the manager," Hornsby summed up the situation.

'Lot of Baloney,' Smith Says.

Both Hornsby and Smith denied there had been an argument when the Rajah replaced the rangy righthander after he had faced two batters, both of whom reached base in the seventh inning. When Del Crandall singled and Pitcher Don Liddle bunted, Smith acknowledged he looked first to first base, then threw late to second.

"That's a lot of baloney, especially that part of the story saying I had an argument on the mound with Hornsby," Smith said.

"Hornsby came out and told me I'd been slow fielding the ball. He said with Bill Bruton coming up, he was going to take me out but I said I could get him out. He expected another bunt, though, and he wanted that little lefthander (Jackie Collum) in there because he's faster. That's all there was to it. You'd think they'd have enough to write about with Milwaukee in first place. Wonder how the hell they'd feel in last place eating their hearts out the way we are?"

For the time being, at least, big Smitty and the rest of the boys had gone to bat orally for the old Rajah. What Rog could use more at the moment, though, would be . . . well, a Hornsby or a Schoendienst at the plate.

Cliff Chambers and Clyde King, Cincinnati righthander, probably will be the opposing pitchers tonight in the final game of the series and trip.

Hemus Hits Fence---Without Bat

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

SOLLY HEMUS of the Cardinals lies on ground back of third base after crashing into a fence while chasing a foul fly hit by Roy McMillan of the Redlegs in game won by the Redbirds, 6 to 3. At left is RAY JABLONSKI and next to him is DEL RICE. Bottom of the fence was pushed in at least six inches. After a brief rest, Hemus remained in the game.

Browns Get Back on Glory Trail By Scalping Lemon and Indians

By Dent McSkimming

The strolling musicians played "Happy Days Are Here Again," Bill Veeck danced a jig in the press box, Brownie players shook hands all around and Wingy the Cushion Vendor lost his voice shouting Hallelujah!

The losing streak that had put gray hairs in Marty Marion's head and put nine straight defeats on the debit side of the Browns' ledger was ended. Cleveland's Indians, seven times winners over St. Louis, were finally beaten, 5 to 1. Only 5000 on-the-scene fans were in on the celebration as gaunt Satchel Paige retired Bobby Avila on a pop-up to Dick Kryhoski, but the noise they made would have done credit to a crowd twice the size.

And, leaving Busch Stadium, the team's followers agreed that the Browns looked good enough in victory to go right on now to a succession of triumphs. Why not? They played errorless ball; executed two electrifying double plays; made eight hits and scored five runs off their nemesis, Bob Lemon; turned up some respectable pitching by Alva (Bobo) Holloman and Paige. What else was needed?

Something unique? Well, they had that, too. It was a surprise bunt by Holloman that brought in two runs in the fourth inning. That was when the Browns got three "unearned" runs off Lemon.

Browns Take Lead Early.

Away to a good start, Jim Dyck scored in the second inning. With one out, he walked and went to third on Clint Courtney's single. He scored as the Cleveland infield missed in a try for a double play. Billy Hunter's fast legs enabled him to beat Bobby Avila's throw to first after Courtney had been forced at second. And that was the pattern for the evening. The Indians just couldn't bring off their plays as planned; the Browns clicked on almost every try.

But, a one-run lead over Bob Lemon isn't enough for comfort. So, they added three in the fourth.

Elliott walked and when Avila let Kryhoski's grounder go through for an error, Elliott tried for third but was out on Harry Simpson's good throw. Jim Dyck flied out for the second out but when Lemon wild-pitched Kryhoski to second that left first base open. So he walked Courtney intentionally. But Hunter's speed of foot in beating out a hit to deep short filled the bases.

With two out and Holloman up, that bases-filled situation didn't look so threatening to Lemon. But the Browns' strategists stole three runs and the ball game with a genuine surprise. Holloman bunted toward third base. Astonished Bob Lemon, probably the best fielding pitcher in either league, reached the ball near the foul line and made a hurried, unwise throw toward first base while Brownie runners scampered all over the premises. Lemon's throw, which conceivably might have beaten Holloman and retired the side, hit big Bobo on the shoulder and the ball caromed out toward right field. Two runners crossed the plate and Hunter wound up at third base. He also scored when Johnny Groth singled.

As the story developed, that bunt and things that followed won the game.

Manager Marion had to make another quick decision in the sixth inning and again it was a right guess. He pulled a weakening Holloman out of the game and brought in his ace relief man, Old Folks Leroy Paige. Holloman, tapped for five hits in the two innings before the sixth, got one man out in that inning before he walked Bill Glynn and Jim Hegan.

Reluctantly, he left the game. He wanted so much to finish and win. His mother was watching from a box, her first visit here from faraway Macon, Ga. But he did come out, and Paige took over.

Lemon filled the bases when he, like Holloman, beat out a surprise bunt, but that was the end of the Cleveland rally. Hunter, going far to his right, reached Ray Boone's hard smash and started an acrobatic double play. Both he and Bobby Young were wheeling and rising into the air as they got off their throws, both perfect in timing and direction.

Satch allowed only two little infield hits in his three and two-thirds innings of brilliant relief work.

Brownie Notes.

Another spectacular double play that proved important stopped the Indians in the fifth inning. With one out, Larry Doby, who had singled and gone to third on Al Rosen's single, was about to cross the plate after Dale Mitchell's long fly to Vic Wertz. But Wertz's perfect throw doubled Rosen off first before Doby's spikes hit the plate. Rosen's straying so far off first was a dull piece of base running, so Cleveland's bad fortune was deserved.

Manager Marion said he will use Lefty Dick Littlefield in tonight's game, starting at 8:30.

No inning of tonight's game will start after 11 o'clock because of railroad commitments. The Browns must hustle to get to Detroit in time for an afternoon game Friday.

Hallelujah!

American 'Ruggers' Win in Australia

CANBERRA, Australia, May 28 (AP)—Mike Dimitros's American All-Star rugby league team defeated the Australian southern district club yesterday, 34 to 25.

It was the first match for the touring Americans here, and the result surprised most of the local experts, especially since the United States athletes played a man short through most of the first half.

No-Hitter, 3 Homers.

Charley Rutledge pitched a no-hitter and Ron Thalman whacked three home runs to lead the Chapmans to a 10-0 victory over the Shackling in a Webster Groves service baseball league game at Memorial Park.

Les Slattery Jr. Shows Way in the Western Open With Par 70

by ROBERT MORRISON

Bordering on a Complex?

ED (PORKY) OLIVER, down to 219 from the 230 pounds he weighed a few months ago, is streamlined and ready to go in the Western Open championship at Bellerive and perhaps there is no one St. Louisans would like to see win it more than Oliver.

The jovial Pork Chops, fast gaining a reputation as a runner-up because of his many second place finishes last year and his frequent next-best performances in a long career, admitted that he could easily get a second-place complex.

"You think of it now and then when you're going pretty good in a tournament and you hear of somebody else having a great round in the making. You think to yourself, 'Oh, oh, that guy's going to get me again,'" Oliver related.

"But Craig Wood told me not to let it get me down. He reminded me that it took him 41 years before he won the National Open. I'll get a big one yet."

Oliver, looking at the heavy rough bordering Bellerive's fairways, offered as his considered opinion that 281 would win this tournament. That's one stroke over the par at Bellerive, and the guess was a bit higher than some earlier opinions.

"I know there's talk of 275 or 276 winning, but I don't believe it," Oliver said. "The course is too narrow. And when you get in this stuff (Oliver poked the heavy rough), it's tough. Of course, somebody may get hot and have a good round. But four 70s should look good."

The Fat Man furthermore liked this course. Never regularly a good putter as many of the stars are on tour, he's a good man off the tee and he believed the course should be in his favor from that standpoint.

Not Always a Jester.

THEY poke a lot of fun at Pork Chops for his ample girth. At the P.G.A. clinic at Bellerive Earl Stewart Jr. pointed out, as he introduced Porky, that Oliver was about to become a "victim of circumference."

Later, during the fast-moving Paul Hahn comedy golf show which attracted a crowd of some 750 late stayers among the Wednesday group of spectators, Hahn himself recalled another Oliver joke.

"They tell about Porky's visit to Australia last year," related Hahn, "when one of the newspaper men asked Pork Chops if his circumference interfered with his swing.

"'Well,' replied Porky, 'when I can reach the ball I can't see it, and when I can see it I can't reach it. That's the only handicap.'"

But there's a secret power beneath the outward jovial aspect of Oliver. Herb Graffis, in an excellent piece in the current Golfing Magazine, makes note of it. He writes:

"But don't ever get the idea that Oliver isn't playing every shot as though it were to be the best of his golf history. Probably only Walter Hagen excelled Oliver in the capacity to concentrate intensely after apparently being distracted by chatting with friends in a gallery. Most of the stars have to drop an Iron Curtain when they get on the first tee and lift it when they get off the eighteenth green, or they aren't able to apply themselves most effectively to their business. But not Porky."

You Can Go Home Again.

"He's 36 now," writes Graffis, "and the father of four: Eddie III, who is 10 years old, Joan who is going on 9, Bobby who is 7, and Johnny, a husky of 13 months. Porky's wife, Clara, was a nurse. She was in the Army as a lieutenant while her husband was a private. She doesn't play golf. With four lively youngsters she's got a tournament going on around her every day . . . ."

As for Porky . . . "His home is Wilmington, Del. His only complaint is that he doesn't get home nearly enough to have fun with his merry family. 'But,' he says, 'with four growing kids every father in the same boat has got to keep chopping away and taking care of his team. I like to win, of course, but the money that I want for my family is what counts rather than any fame in the game. I'm not going out of my mind if something doesn't happen to break right. The sun will shine again. With my family happy and healthy and cheering the days when I can be home, I'm very lucky and ahead of a lot of guys.'"

BELLERIVE COUNTRY CLUB, May 28—Les Slattery Jr., 26-year-old son of an amateur golfing star in the St. Louis district, showed the way to name players in the Western Open tournament here with a par 70 round this afternoon.

While many others encountered difficulties of various sorts, including Julius Boros, National open champion who was out in 39, four over par, Slattery pulled himself together after a bad start and finished the first 18 stroking well.

Young Les, the head of a laundry firm, started with two-over-par six on the first hole. He needed three to reach the green and three-putted. He followed with a bogey on No. 2, but they played the remaining 16 in three under par. Regulation figures are 35 for each round, total 70. Slattery was out in 36 and back in 34.

Spectators at this event will find the No. 1 tee near the entrance gate to the club, situated at 8001 Natural Bridge road. This is according to the new sequence of holes which will be used for the tournament. The finishing hole is the old No. 16, east of the clubhouse.

Whether spectators will see scoring fireworks remains to be seen. Professionals pointed out that Bellerive quickly may change playing characteristics, particularly with a change in wind. It played much longer Wednesday than it did Tuesday mainly because of a north wind. The best brains in the golf playing business no doubt will have to be constantly on their guard if they are to score well, and scoring estimates of the winning score have ranged from 275 to as high as 281 for the 72 holes which will finish with the final round Sunday.

Umpire Injured, Fan Fined After Attack In Lobby of Hotel

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., May 28 (AP) — Southern Association Umpire Frank Girard of New Orleans was injured early yesterday, police said, when an irate baseball fan attacked him in the lobby of a downtown hotel.

The 48-year-old Girard, oldest umpire in the league in years of service, testified in city court that the attack was unprovoked by him and came as he turned his back on the man.

The fan, identified by police as Robert Goddard, 44, was fined $50 by City Judge Riley Graham on charges of drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

The umpire said Goddard attacked him after protesting one of Girard's decisions in the second game of Monday night's doubleheader between Chatanooga and Birmingham.

Goddard maintained in court that Girard tried to hit him with a bottle, but the umpire denied the charge.

St. Charles High Hires Sullivan Coach Short

Norman N. Short, athletic coach the last four years at Sullivan, Mo., High School, has signed a contract to replace George Van Ronzelen as basketball and baseball coach next season at St. Charles High School. Van Ronzelen resigned to accept a position at Lindbergh High.

St. Charles High has re-engaged Richard (Rick) LeFort to coach football and track.

Short, 28, had an overall 74-32 cage record in his four years at Sullivan. His team this season had a 20-9 mark and his baseball club won eight games and lost one, ar 3-2 setback at the hands of St. Louis U. High.

The St. Charles Pirates under Van Ronzelen finished third in the Suburban Baseball League with an 8-3 record, numbering among their achievements a victory over Normandy and the Vikings' ace hurler, Rich Otey, which was Otey's only loss of the season.

Larger Purses for Winter Tour, Bonus Plan Set Up for Pro Golfers

A plan to assure tournament sponsors of the more regular appearance of tournament players, and to assure those players of more money, was announced last night by the Professional Golfers Association following two-day sessions among the groups involved.

Tom Crane of Chicago, P.G.A. executive secretary, made the announcement of the plan for Horton Smith of Detroit, president of the pro golfers' association.

"The purpose, of course, is to provide better relations between the P.G.A. players and sponsors," Crane explained.

Points of the plan, which is expected to be finally approved at the time of the July National P.G.A. championship at Birmingham, Mich., are as follows:

1. A minimum purse of $15,000 will be provided for each event on the winter tour, beginning in 1954. That tour will start with the Los Angeles Open and finish with the Masters at Augusta, Ga.

2. Of each $15,000 prize purse, $5000 will be placed in a players' pool to be held by the P.G.A. and distributed according to a bonus plan.

3. The bonus distribution will involve more than $60,000 (there will be about 12 or 13 winter tour tournaments at $5000 each).

4. Eligible to participate in the bonus fund, which will be distributed on a grading system taking into consideration all factors of performance, will be the following: The 1953 P.G.A. champion, the 1953 U.S. Open champion, the 1953 Vardon trophy winner, and then 17 other players in order of their scoring in the grading system.

5. A player, to be eligible to participate in this bonus distribution, must, however, play in 75 per cent of the tournaments on the winter tour.

The P.G.A., the Open, and the Vardon trophy winners and the top man in the point-grading system will receive a special bonus, the first two to be given $250 per tournament and the last two to get $125 per tournament. This will take out $750 of each $5000, and the remainder will be distributed in proportion according to the point-grading system.

Crane said that most of the more than 25 sponsors attending the P.G.A. sessions here favorably received the plan.

Other highlights of the meeting, Crane said, were the announced intention of the Los Angeles sponsors to keep that tournament purse at $20,000; an announcement by Houston that its purse would be hiked from $20,000 to $30,000, and indication that Palm Springs, Calif., would have a $20,000 purse. It was also announced that William B. McDonald had proffered a bid of $20,000 for the international four-ball matches at Miami Beach, Fla.

Also developing at the joint P.G.A.-sponsors meetings was the structure of a large sponsors' organization. M. P. Wilson, of San Antonio, Tex., who said his winter tour sponsors' group is not in a fight with the P.G.A. announced he would head a new sponsors committee.

Wilson said other members of that committee are Cameron Eddy, Chicago, Western Golf Association; Bob Van Buskirk, Los Angeles; Tom O'Donnell, Baltimore, Md.; Gib Arthur, Wilmington, N.C.; C. A. Posson, representing George S. May of Tam O'Shanter, Chicago, and Cliff Roberts of the Augusta, Ga., Masters tournament.

This committee will gather together the problems and wishes of sponsors and present them at a Nov. 6 meeting of the P.G.A. at Detroit. Wilson said that the winter tour association which he leads will avoid conflict in dates with Tucson and Phoenix, which may not be able to provide the minimum $15,000 purse but may nevertheless hold tournaments.

Ward Advances, Other Americans Lose at Hoylake

HOYLAKE, England, May 28 (UP)—Defending Champion Harvie Ward of Atlanta, Ga., advanced to the quarter-finals of the British amateur golf tournament today with a 5-and-3 victory over G. B. Wolstenholme of England.

Ward was the only American to survive the morning fifth round when he defeated Alan Turner of England, 7 and 6. Six fellow Yanks were eliminated in the morning play.

Ward will play C. F. Windorw of England tomorrow in the morning quarter-final. If he wins, he meets the winner of the Arthur Perowne-J. W. Draper quarter-final in the afternoon semi-finals. Both Perowne and Draper are Englishmen.

Ward was wild from the tee and with his approaches in his match against Wolstenholme. But nevertheless he had little opposition and was 2 up by the end of the first nine holes.

The other Yanks met nothing but trouble today. One of them even shot a hole-in-one, but was defeated. Among the victims was Veteran Bill Campbell of Hunting, W.Va.

Campbell lost to Cecil Beamish of Ireland on the nineteenth hole. Sgt. Dale Buettner of Toledo, O., went all the way to the 23rd hole before losing to A. M. Bucher of England, and Robert Sweeny of Palm Beach, Fla., the 1937 champion, lost to Ray C. McGregor of Scotland, 1 up, despite a hole-in-one on the 179-yard 13th hole.

Also eliminated today were Maj. J. F. Seals of Bradenton, Fla.; Ernest Arend Jr. of Deal, N. J., and Harold Ridgley of Philadelphia. Seals tumbled before G. B. Wolstenholme of England, 3 and 1; Arend lost to Dixon Rawlinson of England, 4 and 3; and Ridgley was beaten by Ian Caldwell of England, 1 up.

There was an unpleasant incident in young Buettner's 23-hole marathon with Bucher. Buettner claimed Bucher touched the sand while playing out of a bunker on the thirteenth. Bucher angrily agreed to concede the hole and the match continued on a grim basis. Neither player would concede so much as a three-inch putt.

Bucher won the match on the twenty-third when Buettner three-putted while Bucher sank a three-footer.

Big Ten Votes To Renew Rose Bowl Contract

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., May 28 (AP)—The Big Ten today approved a three-year renewal of the Rose Bowl football pact with the Pacific Coast Conference.

The undisclosed majority vote extended through Jan. 1, 1957 the Bowl series which would have ended next New Year's Day, under the current three-year pact.

Presumably Michigan, Illinois, Purdue, Indiana, Iowa and Ohio State voted for renewal with Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan State and Northwestern opposed.

The invitation by the Pacific Coast Conference to renew the series stipulated that the same team may not appear in the Rose Bowl more than once every two years.

The Big Ten, in its meeting today, said it wants to negotiate further, making way for each conference to select its representative team on its own basis.

The Big Ten appointed a negotiating committee composed of Kurt Wendt, Wisconsin; Ralph Aigler, Michigan; Doug Mills, Illinois; Fritz Crisler, Michigan, and K. L. (Tug) Wilson, commissioner.

It was not immediately decided when the two conference groups would confer on details of the renewed contract.

Prior to renewal of the current three-year pact, the west coast loop sent its champion without appearance restriction. California, for instance, appeared in three straight bowl games, 1949, 1950 and 1951.

During the first five years of the series which started in 1947, the Big Ten enforced a one-in-three limit.

Senate Subcommittee OK's Bill To Let Majors Regulate Radio, TV

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—A three-man subcommittee has unanimously approved a Senate bill to give Organized Baseball the right to regulate radio and television broadcasts of its games.

This action, sending the measure on to the full Senate commerce committee, was taken yesterday by a subcommitte headed by Senator Edwin Johnson (Dem.), Colorado.

Johnson, who introduced the bill, is president of the Class A Western League. The others who joined with him in approving the bill were Senators Bricker (Rep.), Ohio, and Schoeppel (Rep.), Kansas.

In testimony before the group, baseball people generally were behind the bill, while broadcasters generally opposed it. The legislation is aimed at boosting attendance at minor league games through restricting radio-TV broadcasting of major league games.

Johnson said the bill was needed because the Department of Justice has ruled that, under existing laws, organized baseball cannot impose radio-TV restrictions without violating anti-trust laws.

Harold Fellows, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, told the subcommittee the Johnson bill amounted to "granting baseball an exemption from the requirements of the anti-trust laws." He predicted promoters of other sports would seek to follow suit.

Doris Hart in Final at Paris

PARIS, May 28 (UP)—Doris Hart of Coral Gables, Fla., defeated Shirley Fry of Akron, O., 8-6, 6-4, today to gain the finals of the French International tennis tournament.

Maureen "Little Mo" Connolly of San Diego, Calif., scored a dazzling 6-3, 6-3 victory over Dorothy Head Knode of Alameda, Calif., to enter the finals.

Rosewall won his way into the championship match earlier by defeating Enrico Morea of Argentine, 2-6, 6-2, 6-4, 0-6, 6-2.

Serving powerfully and storming the net, the No. 2 U. S. player never gave Drobny a chance to warm up in the first two sets as he scored winning points with near-perfect net play. Seixas took only 28 minutes to win the first two sets.

Real Power Teams.

The Philadelphia Phillies in 1929 and the Detroit Tigers in 1937 each had four players who made over 200 hits for the season.

Campanella Boosts Homers to 16, RBIs to 51

Chicago Ties Tigers in 15 Innings, 2-2

NEW YORK, May 28 (UP) — Dodger Manager Charley Dressen, toasting baseball's newest home run hero with a highball made out of cherry soda pop, said today Roy Campanella might break Babe Ruth's record if "he just keeps on swinging easy."

But Campanella, smoking a big cigar in the Dodger dressing room after his second homer of the game in the ninth inning beat the Giants 5-3 in a big Brooklyn thriller said, "Nuts—I'm not trying to break Ruth's record—I just wanna win ball games."

"And I don't know what it is I'm doing right—I just know right now I'm not doin' much wrong," he added.

Ahead of Big League Pace.

Campy's homer with two men on base after an error by Alvin Dark kept the game alive, was his sixteenth of the season and his four runs batted in for the game gave him a total of 51—also far ahead of the major league record pace.

Dressen toasted his catcher and said—"he can do it if he just keeps swinging easy."

"When I'm coaching out at third I keep yelling in to him to take it easy and not try to kill the ball," Dressen said. "And with that smooth, easy motion he's got he blasts it a mile. When he really takes a big cut he usually misses."

The homer gave Brooklyn a game the Giants figured they had already won on earlier homers by Hank Thompson and Wes Westrum that had more than countered Campanella's first four-base blow. Relief Pitcher Joe Black picked up an easy victory with one inning of aid to Starter Billy Loes.

Milwaukee Wins Again.

Milwaukee stayed in front by one and one-half games in the National by defeating the Cubs, 9-4, while the Phils ended a five-game losing streak by drubbing Pittsburgh, 14-2, then lost again, 8-6. The Cardinals defeated Cincy, 6-3.

In the American League the Tigers and White Sox battled to a 15-inning, curfew-halted 2-2 tie as each team made 12 hits. The Yankees topped Washington, 3-1, the Athletics defeated Boston, 4-3, and the Browns ended a nine-game losing streak with a 5-1 win over Cleveland, which ended a four-game winning streak.

Harry Dorish pitched six-hit relief ball for 10 1-3 innings and yielded only one run while striking out seven but his performance went to waste in the marathon at Chicago. Chicago had the bases loaded in the ninth, eleventh and thirteenth innings without scoring. It was the longest major league game of the season.

Milwaukee showed its usual bounce, picking up four runs in the fifth after the Cubs scored four in their half, three on Hank Sauer's homer. Andy Pafko's three-run homer was the big blow for the Braves and in the following innings they clinched matters by scoring four more runs—three of them unearned. Reliever Johnny Antonelli gained his third win.

Robin Roberts picked up his seventh victory with a six-hitter as Bill Nicholson drove in six runs with a triple, double, and single but Pittsburgh rebounded to win the second game with a six-run rally in the eighth in which Frank Thomas hit a two-run single and Pinch-hitters Carlos Bernier, Joe Garagiola and George Metkovich each drove in runs with singles.

Gus Zernial's homer in the eighth gave Alex Kellner the margin for his sixth victory as the Athletics edged Boston. Hoot Evers homered for the losers.

Fight Goes on After the Bell As Saxton Wins

"And now I'm ready for any welterweight in the world—Davey, Turner and even Gavilan," added the 22-year-old Negro.

Saxton had just outpointed Joe Miceli, a fellow New Yorker, in a 10-rounder at Olympia Stadium and was feeling in fine fettle.

Saxton calmly warded them off as though he were pushing his way into a crowded subway train. Then the unbeaten New Yorker opened up. Normally a body puncher, he went head hunting and the next few rounds had Miceli in trouble against the ropes.

But GI Joe refused to go down.

The action became so heated, in fact, that at the end of the fourth round both fighters kept punching away for at least five seconds after the bell. The referee and handlers from both corners finally had to part them.

Wise Needle And Jess D Victorious

Two six-furlong races top tonight's program at Fairmount Park where last night's daily double paid $677.40 and a horse fell dead in the second race.

BoCo, owned by Willie Skidmore, former jockey, will carry 119 pounds in the $1500 fifth race. Other entries are: Changeway 114, Harvest Pot 107, Golden City 114, Lady Ridgewell 109, Talltown 108, Boutonniere 109 and Sir Dakota 111.

In the $1300 sixth race Jean Bird, a winner at Ascot, will be opposed by Pretty Cincy, a winner of a spring race in the $4000 class at Sportsman's Park. D. A. Bates will be aboard Jean Bird. Post time of the first race tonight will be 8:30.

Jess D, winner of the first race, and Wise Needle, victor of the second, made the daily double $677.40, biggest of the spring meeting. Jess D returned $24.80, $10.40 and $7.40 while Wise Needle paid $89.60, $31.80 and $14.

Mischievous Me fell dead in the second race just after it entered the stretch run. The six-year-old was taken away in an ambulance after holding up the program a short while.

Native Play, with Elvie (Popeye) Hust up, set a new track record by covering the four and one-half furlongs in :53 2-5. Tuesday night Ruler's Faith set a new mark of :53 3-5.

Racing Secretary Jack Kiucins reports he is lining up a banner field for the Memorial Day Handicap Saturday afternoon. The purse will be $3000 and the distance will be one mile and a sixteenth.

Playground Mothers Honor Tenpin Winners

Edwardsville Plays Maywood In State Meet

PEORIA, Ill., May 28 (AP)—Favored Vocational of Chicago and dark horse Pekin collided in the first round program of four games in the fourteenth annual Illinois State High School Baseball tournament here tonight.

Vocational, survivor of Chicago eliminations, makes its first trip to the state finals with a 13-1 record. The Chicago team has a fine pitcher in Ken Angotti, who fashioned an 8-1 mark in regular season play.

Pekin entered district competition with a poor 3-10 mark, then won six straight games to gain its third successive berth in the state finals. Pekin won the championship in 1951.

Bloomington, 14-5, and Waukegan, 16-4, launch the meet today. It will be followed by the Pekin-Vocational contest.

Murphysboro, 13-2, and Decatur, 9-8, meet in the evening opener. Highly-regarded Edwardsville, 17-3, and Maywood Proviso, 14-4, meet in the nightcap. Winners advance to tomorrow afternoon's semi-finals with the championship game tomorrow night.

'Bases Empty' Gus.

PHILADELPHIA, May 28 (AP)—Slugging Gus Zernial of the Philadelphia Athletics has hit seven home runs this season and six of them have come with the bases empty.

What the Managers Say

NEW YORK, May 28 (AP)—JIMMY DYKES, Athletics: "Every switch hitter I ever saw has more power on one side than the other. And that goes for Mickey Mantle. I don't care how many miles he has propelled the ball righthanded. He's going to hurt you less from that side than he is from the other." (Mantle has hit four homers righthanded and two lefthanded).

LEO DUROCHER, Giants: "I have no love for the Dodgers but the guy I feel sorry for is Gil Hodges. He looks so bad at the plate, he may be all washed up. I thought maybe it was just one of those things. . . . Going through a world series without a hit. . . . But actually he's getting worse instead of better. If a pitcher can get a ball anywhere from the middle to the outside of the plate and from the belt down on Hodges, he can't hit it with a fiddle. It's too bad. Nobody wants to see a competitor like him go like that."

FRED HUTCHINSON, Tigers: "It wouldn't surprise me if Harvey Kuenn is the best hitting shortstop in the American League this year. The kid doesn't try to kill the ball. He has a compact swing—no waste motion. That's why he's hard to fool up there. He struck out only four times in 55 games (19 in 1952) since he put on a Tiger uniform."

CHARLIE DRESSEN, Dodgers: "There's nothing wrong with Joe Black except his control. Last year he was able to get the ball wherever he wanted. This year he's getting his fast ball too low and his curve ball too far outside. He worries too much, too. Much more than I do about him. I'm sure he'll come around soon. In the meantime I'm going to let him work it out in the bullpen."

ROGERS HORNSBY, Hodlers: "Hitting can't be taught. You can teach fielding, base-running, but not batting. You can improve a player's hitting but he's got to have the ability—good eyes, good reflexes, timing."

Walcott Third In 'Ring' Rating Of Contenders

NEW YORK, May 28 (UP)—The Ring Magazine's monthly ratings dropped Jersey Joe Walcott only to third place among heavyweight contenders today despite his dismal first-round knockout by Rocky Marciano on May 15.

Although 39-year-old Walcott indicated he had come to the end of the trail as he sat out the kayo count in Chicago Stadium, he is still rated above Bob Baker, Dan Bucceroni, Tommy Harrison and Rex Layne.

Harry Matthews of Seattle was dropped out of the light heavyweight list, and was not ranked among the top 10 heavies. Manager Jack Hurley announced Matthews no longer could make the light-heavy limit and asked that he be rated as a heavy. But The Ring's staff declined to consider him among the top 10.

Last month, Matthews was the No. 3 light-heavy contender.

Tommy Collins of Boston, who was No. 10 among lightweight aspirants, was dropped out of the 135-pound division into the featherweight class because of his bouncing around by Lightweight Champion James Carter. Tommy is rated fourth among the feathers.

TIME TO SWITCH?

THIS 60-SECOND WHISKEY TEST GIVES THE ANSWER!

ANY TIME IS A GOOD TIME to switch whiskies if you find a brand that tastes better. That's why it pays to compare, especially when it's so easy.

It takes just 60 seconds to make a "showdown" taste test between Calvert and the brand you usually order. Then you'll know which brand is smoother, which is mellower.

You'll see if it's time for you to switch!

1. SNIFF Calvert and any other whiskey on the market. Carefully judge ¼-oz. samples of each brand for aroma—without knowing which is which.

2. TASTE Calvert and the other whiskey critically. Compare them for smoothness and mellowness. Swallow slowly to find which is free from bite, burn and sting.

3. CHOOSE the whiskey that really pleases your taste most. We feel certain that you'll like Calvert better, because its superior taste has been established by a "Consumer Jury" made up of thousands of folks like you. But make the test—and if you still prefer another brand, stick with it. Fair enough?

COMPARE ...and you'll switch to CALVERT

Many Thanks... to all the television viewers throughout KSD-TV's former "fringe area" for their comments on the improved reception they are enjoying since KSD-TV began operating with its increased power of 100,000 Watts!

The following are excerpts selected from the many cards, letters and telegrams received from viewers in some of the more distant communities which are now being served by KSD-TV.

Your programs came in very clear last night. Your station is going to be our favorite as we like the late night movies. We are located 20 miles north of Evansville, Indiana.
Mrs. Bland Gayer, Fort Branch, Indiana

We used to live in St. Louis. Now I think reception is as good here as it is in the city. We are 30 miles out.
Mrs. E. W. Bacon, DuQuoin, Illinois

We are 100 air miles from St. Louis and the reception is wonderful . . . up to your claim of 2½ times stronger.
H. C. Hostetter, New London, Missouri

Now we are able to enjoy all your programs like the folks in St. Louis can.
Robert E. Bilyeu, Decatur, Illinois

Although I live 100 miles south of St. Louis, our reception has been perfect since this morning. Thank you ever so much; now we can really enjoy our set.
A. A. Vogel, Altenburg, Missouri

Your program came in fine here last night. I believe we are 125 miles from your station. Keep up the good work.
Bill Maier, Carmi, Illinois

We live 90 miles from St. Louis. The picture today was as good and clear, the sound as free from static, as we had experienced when we visited friends who live within 30 miles of a TV station. Thank you so much for boosting the power.
George Regan, Jacksonville, Illinois

We are 20 miles due south of Rolla . . . about 110 miles from KSD-TV. The improvement is simply unbelieveable.
T. W. Collier, Edgar Springs, Missouri

We have perfect reception tonight . . . and we are located about 150 miles south of St. Louis.
Lionel Kesler, Ullin, Illinois

I believe that as the crow flies it must be at least 130 miles from our town to St. Louis, and except for some WOC interference (Davenport, Iowa) we are getting perfect pictures.
C. D. Hurlburt, Havana, Illinois

We could hardly believe our eyes when we turned on our television set to find KSD-TV reception perfect. We are approximately 150 miles from St. Louis and are looking forward to much more enjoyment of your many fine programs.
Marvin H. Boss, Lincoln, Illinois

Television in the south side of town was perfect today. would like to thank you for making television more enjoyable.
Mrs. Charles Dietrich, Keokuk, Iowa

Thomas Hooker, Hickman, Kentucky

Since your increase in power our reception has improved 100% We are about 160 miles from St. Louis.
Raymond E. Owen, Tuscola, Illinois

Mrs. Grace Doxsie, Benton, Illinois

Yesterday and last night our reception from KSD-TV was perfect. First time to be completely clear. We are 100 miles from St. Louis.
Mrs. Edna Jones, Galatia, Illinois

TV is really worthwhile down here now since your increase in power. I can't tell the difference in reception here and in St. Louis.
Phil Woodruff, Marion, Illinois

I wish to tell you what a great difference there is since KSD-TV strengthened its power. We are approximately 185 miles from St. Louis.
Shirley Graves, LaCenter, Kentucky

We live 160 miles fom St. Louis and are really in the fringe area. Your increased power is a wonderful improvement. When you live so far from a station, it really is a treat to get good reception.
Ronald Holoch, Farmer City, Illinois

Congratulations from a real fringe area . . . 175 miles. We had never before received a truly satisfactory picture until this evening's excellent boxing match. More power to you.
Mrs. B. C. Meriwether, Paducah, Ky.

Certainly appreciate the stepped up power. Today, wind was bad, yet we had nice picture and good sound. Tonight, it's perfect. We are about 150 miles southeast of St. Louis.
R. H. Ellis, Ridgway, Illinois

Our family of four was enthralled last night by the excellent reception from your new and enlarged tower. The sound came through naturally, without distortion, and the picture had perspective. We are about 90 miles southeast of St. Louis.
Mrs. J. C Phillips, Benton, Illinois

Received Channel 5 program about increased power of 100,000 watts. We are 175 miles from St. Louis in southeastern Indiana.
Terry Frederick, Bicknell, Indiana

I would say that the picture has improved at least 100% with at least a 200% improvement in the sound. The reception is all I hoped it would be, and wish to express my appreciation for your efforts.
A. L. Taylor, Springfield, Illinois

Our reception has improved so much that we just sit and watch television spellbound. The picture is absolutely perfect.
Mrs. Eugene Sears, Taylorville, Illinois

Congratulations on the increase in your power. Hundreds of TV owners in this city of 20,000 have been waiting anxiously for the power increase. We are some 135 miles from St. Louis and your programs have been coming in almost perfectly all day.
J. E. Miller, Mattoon, Illinois

Although we are located approximately 113 air miles from St. Louis, just half way between Cape Girardeau and Sikeston, your 100,000 watts now gives us television as we like it. In the past we could receive KSD-TV only spasmodically; it now seems that we will be able to receive your programs at any time.
C. H. Frobase, Benton, Missouri

We are 125 air miles from your station, and since you came on 100,000 watts we are getting perfect reception. We are really happy . . . TV is so good now.
Andy Withers, Delta, Missouri

This is to report that your programs are coming through wonderful here in Effingham which is about 100 miles from St. Louis.
Mrs. John Rosche, Effingham, Illinois

Your programs are now coming in clear as a bell. We are about 60 miles from St. Louis, and our antenna is in the attic.
Cassens Studio, Litchfield, Illinois

How wonderful that we really have television now. Your programs come in perfect. We are 30 miles north of Springfield, Illinois.
W. L. Nelson, Mason City, Illinois

Receiving your signal perfect here. The air miles is around 150 miles. I am on an extreme fringe area, and want to thank you for the improvement.
David's Radio & TV Service, Augusta, Ill.

George Felogy, Joppa, Illinois

We are a little over 100 miles away. Reception is perfect without the booster. Thanks for wonderful programs.
A. L. Hight, Mt. Auburn, Illinois

Before 100,000 watts we couldn't get anything without an outside antenna, but now we are using the strip that is tacked under the table that holds our set and get 100% visual clarity in the foothills of the Ozarks.
F. J. Wondra, DeSoto, Missouri

Cyde McQueen, Springfield, Illinois

Your increase in power is bringing us perfect television. We are constant viewers.
R. A. Hagmann, New Harmony, Indiana

I think my set has improved 100% since the boost. Don't have any more snow.
C. L. Alberts, Centralia, Illinois

We live in the country around 150 miles from St. Louis. The reception is just perfect and we are looking forward to much pleasure form our set.
John A. Gibson, Clinton, Illinois

We would like to congratulate you on your increase in power. We are around 125 miles from St. Louis, and all day and tonight we have enjoyed watching your station.
K. L. Wilson, Fort Madison, Iowa

I'm sitting here in my living room enjoying perfect reception from KSD-TV. We are able to "get you" 75% better than we can bring in our own station.
Mrs. C. W. Bonnar Jr., Peoria, Illinois

For two years we have enjoyed KSD-TV programs, but since you've increased your power it's been wonderful. Congratulations.
Eddie Lee Scott, Fulton, Missouri

We live 100 miles from St. Louis, and since your increase in power we are enjoying perfect reception.
Eugene Thompson, McLeansboro, Illinois

We want to express our appreciation for what you have done for television in this area. It is coming in perfect . . . just as good as in St. Louis when we saw it there two years ago. We are 125 miles from St. Louis.
Fred Reisner, Charleston, Illinois

We have been watching your programs on Channel 5 for the past week. The reception is very good. I live about 150 air miles away, and am wondering if you have increased your power.
Arthur H. Goetz, Morton, Illinois

A St. Louis friend of ours visits us occasionally and used to comment on the "snow" we had on television. She said they didn't have any in St. Louis, which was hard for us to believe. Since your increase in power, neither do we have "snow."
E. A. Parks, Salem, Illinois

Leo's Radio-TV Service, Ft. Madison, Iowa

We are about 120 miles from St. Louis and until you increased the power our reception was very poor. It certainly is a great service you have performed for those of us who never before have been able to really enjoy television. Many thanks.
George Hughes, Mexico, Missouri

We are really enjoying your TV programs since your increase in power. We are about 160 road miles from St. Louis.
Clark Igo, Tuscola, Illinois

We are receiving your programs over 150 miles away. It is as plain as if we were in St. Louis. Thanks for installing 100,000 watts for our pleasure.
Mrs. Forrest W. Elgin, Kevil, Kentucky

We really are getting good reception since you went on your new power. We have had more enjoyment the past week than we have had since we bought our set. We are 210 miles by highway from St. Louis. Three cheers for KSD-TV.
C. G. Howard, Mansfield, Missouri

Our reception of television from KSD-TV is now perfect. We couldn't ask for the picture or sound to be better.
Mrs. H. A. Scott, Cape Girardeau, Missouri

Hinschliff TV Sales, Springfield, Missouri

We couldn't ask for a clearer picture. We could tell that KSD-TV had more power when we turned on our set this morning, even if we do live 125 or 130 miles from St. Louis.
Edward Purles, Atlanta, Illinois

KSD-TV welcomes comments and suggestions from all its viewers . . . near and far . . . at all times.

Houston Beats Oklahoma Twice For NCAA Spot

HOUSTON, May 28 (AP)—The University of Houston's Cinderella baseball team came from behind a number of times and got brilliant relief pitching to turn back Oklahoma University's Sooners, 8-7 and 5-3, here last night to win the Region 5 championship and a berth in the N.C.A.A. tournament.

Houston's Cougars, who had lost six of their first seven games this season, but have now won 14 of their last 17, used the home run of Shortstop Carlton Hanta, diminutive Hawaiian sparkplug, to win the 10-inning first game.

And in the second game, after the Sooners had jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the first inning on Gene Sheets's home run, Outfielder Allen Shipley poled a three-run homer in the third inning to give Houston a 4-3 lead. Jack Reed, Houston third baseman, homered in the fifth for the final tally.

The relief pitching came from Ken Lilie and Foy Boyd, two lanky righthanders. Lilie chilled the Sooners with one hit in the last three and two-thirds innings of the first game and Boyd fanned nine and allowed two hits in working the final six innings of the seven-inning second game.

Independent TV Policy Is Announced by Yale

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 28 (UP)—Yale University announced today it would not follow the television policy of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, but would stick to an "independent policy."

Yale doesn't plan to televise any of its games in Yale Bowl, according to Charles M. O'Hearn, assistant to the university president.

Harvard announced a similar stand two weeks ago.

"We don't want to harm the association . . . the policy was formulated several months ago." O'Hearn said. He added that it was a "matter of principle and we so notified the N.C.A.A."

Robert A. Hall, who recently resigned as Yale's athletic director, was president of the N.C.A.A. at the time the association's TV policy was announced.

REPORTS CATCHING 33-INCH TROUT IN EASTERN STREAM

LOCK HAVEN, Pa. (UP)—Roy Berry ended a five-year quest recently with the catch of a 22-pound, 33-inch brown trout he believes is the biggest ever hooked in a Pennsylvania stream.

Berry may never know about the record, because the Pennsylvania Fish Commission stopped keeping records on trout sizes several years ago because "every time we disclosed one weight or length as a record somebody said he had caught a bigger one."

FRENCH REDS LURE SOCIALISTS WITH A 'POPULAR FRONT'

Non-Political Campaign Is Designed to Win Support for Common Goals for Working Class.

PARIS, May 28 (UP) — The French Communist party has called a meeting of its central committee on June 1 to boost the new, Moscow-ordered "popular front" campaign designed to win over the Socialists to work for a common goal.

Reliable non-Communist sources said the groundwork for the new program was laid at a preliminary meeting on Friday.

The objective of this new Communist strategy, these sources report, is to avoid violence and preach unity of the working class on the economic front.

One of the first moves in applying the new tactic is expected to be an order for Communist leaders and the rank and file to halt all local-level attacks on Socialists in preparation for a Communist-Socialist love affair.

The Red leadership hopes to enlist the Socialists and other leftist groups in a common drive for higher wages, shorter hours, better economic conditions and other safely non-political demands.

A recent rash of crippling strikes is pointed out as evidence that the initial efforts of the Communists are meeting some success in getting other labor unions to join the Communist-directed General Labor Confederation in select causes.

As the Reds regain their lost strength, informed sources say, they are expected to ask their newly-won partners to join in political action.

The June 1 meeting of 96 party big-wigs from throughout France will be the first Communist affair attended by ailing party chieftain Maurice Thorez since his return from two and one-half years in Russia, where he underwent a "rest cure."

Informed sources said the meeting also will be important because it will spell the end to the dominance of Francois Billoux, Politburo member and veteran Red deputy from Marseilles, who last year called out the militant barricade fighters for violence demonstrations against NATO's Supreme Commander Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway.

Idaho Citizens' Group Compromise Might Have Forestalled Squabble Over Hell's Canyon Dam Site

Organization Offered to Support Federal Program Under Certain Conditions — Plan Would Have Protected Private Utility to Large Extent.

By RICHARD G. BAUMHOFF
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BOISE, Idaho, May 28.

AN ORGANIZATION of influential Idaho citizens made an effort to support the controversial proposal of the federal Bureau of Reclamation for a big dam in Hell's Canyon. Their backing was subject to provisions for retaining the bulk of the electric power for Idaho and financing the big Mountain Home desert irrigation project.

If the compromise promoted by this group had been carried out, the present intense squabble between public and private power over the remarkable Hell's Canyon dam site in the Snake river at the Idaho-Oregon border might not have developed. This was shown in the intensive inquiry into the controversy by the Post-Dispatch, reported in a series of articles that started last Sunday and concludes today.

Idaho Power Co. is seeking to build three smaller dams in Hell's Canyon. Its application comes up for hearing before the Federal Power Commission July 7. Oscar L. Chapman, Secretary of the Interior in the Truman Administration, opposed the power company and sought unsuccessfully to get congressional authorization for the big bureau project. Recently his successor as Secretary, Douglas McKay, withdrew the departmental opposition before FPC.

Reasons for Citizens' Move.

The movement by the Idaho citizens, through the Southwestern Idaho Water Conservation Project, Inc., was not a spontaneous one in favor of public power. Rather, it was undertaken in the belief that the federal undertaking was likely to be carried out and that the best possible deal ought to be made. It would have assured arrangements to use some of the federal power revenue to subsidize irrigation of 192,000 acres in the Mountain Home desert, east of Boise, which would have brought much new wealth, activity and population to southern Idaho.

It also would have protected Idaho Power Co. to a large extent, and possibly almost completely, against competition of public power from Hell's Canyon. Leaders of the movement told the Post-Dispatch the compromise, in their opinion, would have been a good thing for the company. In fact, they declared a principal purpose was to keep the public power grid of Bonneville Power Administration out of Idaho. They held the belief they could accomplish something for Southern Idaho by their activity.

The company itself was a member of this organization, which may be called Project, Inc., for short. A company representative, telling of this, described the organization as "a lobbying group for various projects." However, T. E. Roach, company president, declared there never had been any agreement in favor of the big public dam as far as the company was concerned.

Dam Viewed as Inevitable.

"A group around here," he said, with reference to Project, Inc., "took the position that the big Hell's Canyon dam was inevitable and that, if so, Idaho should get Mountain Home irrigation and the reservation of a large block of power on a long-term contract, with the idea that this might win the company's support."

President of Project, Inc., at the time was H. W. Morrison, president of Morrison-Knudsen Co., widely known firm of heavy contractors with headquarters at Boise, which, among other things, has been the contract builder of various federal and private dams. The executive vice president was J. L. Driscoll of Boise, president of the First Security Corp. of Idaho, which owns a string of branch banks. Also among the leaders were several local directors of Idaho Power Co.

Project, Inc., had been formed in 1940 to promote varied development of the water resources of its section of the state, where irrigation for many years has made some otherwise arid areas highly productive. Late in 1950, as three of the four places on the Idaho congressional delegation and the state administration were changing hands, the organization felt the necessity of getting into the Hell's Canyon matter.

"There was brought to our attention," Project, Inc., said in a long explanatory statement the following July, "a movement that was under way in Washington, D. C., to have Hell's Canyon Dam authorized as a straight power project, with no legislative provision for the protection of the long-range interests and future irrigation needs of Idaho."

Proposals of Citizens' Group.

The federal project, it was feared then, might have had "disastrous" effects on the Mountain Home project and all other future southern Idaho irrigation. Hence in December 1950 representatives of Project, Inc., and others called on Secretary Chapman at Washington. They proposed the following conditions in connection with the big public dam:

Adequate protection for upstream water rights for irrigation and other consumptive uses.

Clear-cut earmarking of some of the Hell's Canyon public power revenue to subsidize the Mountain Home irrigation.

Reservation of a minimum of 500,000 kilowatts of "firm" (steady) power for the state of Idaho to offset loss of the private power sites in Hell's Canyon.

Payments to the state in lieu of taxes to offset the loss of taxable values that would result from private development of the power sites.

It was further proposed in the conditions that the substantial block of power allocated to the state was not to be subject to limitation as to use or conditions of resale, but was to be made available to a distribution agency designated by the state "at a price not in excess of that which would result if the low-head (smaller dam) projects were developed and financed by venture capital."

The state could have designated Idaho Power Co., if it chose, as the distribution agency under the foregoing terms. The proposal went farther, pointing out that Idaho Power Co. has legal ownership of one site in Hell's Canyon, Oxbow Dam. Therefore, the proposal continued, the company should get a block of 140,000 kilowatts out of the 500,000 kilowatt reservation, "without restrictions of any character" at a price not exceeding what the power would cost the company under its own plan.

A 500,000-kilowatt reservation would take a major slice of the production of the proposed public plant in Hell's Canyon. The Reclamation Bureau, as was told in last Sunday's article, figures its dam in the canyon would turn out about 600,000 kilowatts of "prime" or all-year power.

Controversy on Output.

The company, however, asserts the output under the bureau's plan would be 516,000 kilowatts but that the company's three dams would yield 477,000 kilowatts. There is further controversy as to how much extra power could be generated at eight downstream public dams, five of which remain to be started, under one plan or the other for Hell's Canyon.

Secretary Chapman agreed in April 1951, said the Project, Inc., report, to a reservation of 300,000 kilowatts for the state, but with the proviso that the state would have to dispose of it in accordance with federal reclamation law or state law. In this connection, he expressed concern over the preference provisions that might be laid down for the state marketing agency, and suggested that Congress resolve this question.

Chapman thus was seeking to protect the long established priority for publicly generated power of such public distributing agencies as power districts, municipalities and rural co-ops. He was reported, in the statement, to have agreed also to undertake making a contract, apart from the legislation, to sell Idaho Power Co. a 140,000-kilowatt block.

Bills to authorize the public Hell's Canyon project, now pending in Congress and backed by friends of public power, would make an outright reservation of 500,000 kilowatts for Idaho and adjacent parts of the central and upper Snake river basin.

Water Rights Provision.

Agreement was obtained also by Project, Inc., for a provision to protect upstream water rights and for integration of irrigation and power in the legislation. The Interior Department rejected the payments in lieu of taxes on the ground that the Mountain Home irrigation would produce more taxable wealth than the Hell's Canyon reservoir would flood out.

However, not long after Project, Inc., issued its statement, the Mountain Home irrigation was knocked out of the legislation by the federal Bureau of the Budget because it would have been too expensive. The ensuing bill failed in Congress.

In its July 1951 statement Project, Inc., said the Hell's Canyon project had become "a partisan issue and in the public mind to some extent at least has become a public vs. private power fight." The organization added that it "has consistently through the years avoided and refused to participate in that issue, because that is not the purpose for which this organization was formed."

The company takes the position that the controversy has been exaggerated; that the sole issue is one of fact as to which plan, public or private, is best from the engineering and economic standpoint, and that the decision by FPC should be of factual character, not a political decision. Secretary McKay says he believes that private enterprise should develop power where possible, "as long as it does not interfere with the orderly development of the resources of the nation."

'Naguib Plan' For Defense Is Reported

It Is Said to Call for Arab Command Instead of 5-Nation Nucleus.

By PETER LISAGOR
The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch. Copyright 1953.

WASHINGTON, May 28.

THE diplomatic carpenters who have banged their thumbs repeatedly trying to construct a Middle Eastern defense plan will soon be studying a new blueprint.

The architect is said to be Egyptian Premier Naguib. Secretary of State Dulles will have the plan when he returns here tomorrow from a tour of that uneasy region, reliable informants say.

The "Naguib plan," as it is understood here, calls for an Arab command, instead of anything resembling the old proposal of a Middle Eastern defense organization (MEDO).

MEDO contemplated a five-nation nucleus composed of Egypt, Turkey, France, Britain and the United States. Egypt has rejected it.

Arab Nations Alone.

Naguib's proposal would limit this nucleus to Arab states alone, and would eliminate the participation of France and Turkey altogether. It would simply build on the present collective security pact of the Arab League, say these informants. The role of Britain and the United States would be confined to existing treaties with certain Arab states under which provisions are made for maintaining bases within their borders and adequate troop complements.

No foreign troops would be stationed in Egypt, beyond the few technicians required to maintain the Suez canal base. They would be welcome only in the event of war.

Military forces in the Arab states would be developed to provide for their own defense, presumably with American aid and training missions.

Presumably, too, the plan would not rule out any bilateral scheme between Israel and the Western nations for the defense of the Jewish state.

Clean Break Emphasized.

Naguib is understood to have stressed to Dulles the necessity for Egypt to make a clean break with Britain and to show no immediate attachment to the United States. Communist propaganda has trumpeted the possibility that Naguib might merely substitute the United States for Britain and continue the "foreign domination."

To avoid this charge, Naguib is said to feel that a period of complete independence must follow the British evacuation from Suez. The Arab command idea is an outgrowth of this attitude of the Egyptian leader.

The Naguib plan presupposes a settlement, to Egypt's satisfaction, of the Suez dispute. Cairo says it cannot accept the British proposal to leave the three or four thousand British technicians there operating under the direction of the War Office in London.

The number of proposed technicians must be scaled down considerably, and they must be under an Egyptian command, insist the Egyptians. Otherwise, all bets are off.

Threats of impending violence issuing from Naguib if the British do not leave soon are described by these informants as part of a necessary political game for any successful Egyptian official.

Actually, Naguib is reported to have assured Dulles no precipitate action will be taken until American officials are given time to study and to adopt a position on Egypt's proposal.

Britain's New Anti-Tank Gun.

SALISBURY, England, May 28 (AP) — Britain's new recoilless 120-mm. anti-tank gun — which military experts say can knock out the world's heaviest-known tanks —was demonstrated to newsmen yesterday for the first time. Technical details are still secret.

Rainy Day Chore for Queen

The DUKE OF NORFOLK, hereditary Earl Marshal of England, who is in charge of the elaborate coronation program, holds umbrella to shield QUEEN ELIZABETH II from heavy rainfall as she alights from automobile at Westminster Abbey for another rehearsal for next Tuesday's ceremony. DANISH PRINCE, 13, WOULD RATHER BE PLUMBER THAN KING

COPENHAGEN, May 28 (AP)—Prince Ingolf, 13 years old, who now is in the line of succession to the Danish throne, says he would rather be a plumber.

Ingolf, son of the heir apparent, Prince Knud, and nephew of the King, was one of a group of pupils of Lyngby private school discussing the Danish referendum on whether the King's daughter, Princess Margrethe, should be eligible to the throne.

Said one boy, mockingly, "If Margrethe becomes a queen you won't be king."

The young prince retorted, "I don't care. I'd rather be a plumber."

LONG ISRAEL-ARAB ARMISTICE 'DANGEROUS,' BUNCHE SAYS

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 28.—Dr. Ralph Bunche, director of the United Nations trusteeship department, expressed concern yesterday that the Jewish-Arab armistice had not been resolved after four years, and he said there was "great danger implicit in permitting it needlessly to drag on."

He said, however, he was confident peace is possible in the Near East and "will eventuate."

Dr. Bunche, who was a U.N. mediator in the Arab-Israeli conflict over partition of Palestine, spoke to 1200 members of the women's division of the American Jewish Congress. He remarked that four years was "a long time in the life of an armistice" and it seemed to him the "time is now more than ripe" for it to be resolved.

But Is YOUR Part of Your House Insured?

If you're buying a home, you have to carry enough fire insurance to cover the mortgage.

But how about the part you already own — your equity? Do you have enough protection to cover your loss? Or would the mortgage holder be the only one to collect if your house burned down?

That happens often — and what a shame it is. For fire insurance on homes is cheap . . . its cost has actually gone down in the last ten years. And you'll be surprised to learn how much protection you can get for so little cost.

BEN-GURION TRYING TO KEEP OFFICE BY BROADER COALITION

JERUSALEM, May 28 (AP) — Premier David Ben-Gurion, his position weakened by a crisis in his cabinet over a domestic issue, said yesterday he will try to stay in power by broadening the base of his coalition government. This was interpreted as indicating his greater concern with external threats posed by border incidents with Jordan.

As Ben-Gurion pleaded in Parliament for national unity, reports were received of a clash between Jordanian and Israeli troops in the Judean hills near Hebron, 20 miles south of Jerusalem. A Tel Aviv report said one Israeli soldier was killed and another wounded. An army spokesman said the Jordanian forces suffered heavy casualties.

The Premier told Parliament a broad coalition cabinet "is a prime need for Israel in these difficult times" and that he hoped to have a reshuffled government functioning next week.

The current crisis stems from the resignation of four ministers belonging to the General Zionist party in protest against display in the schools of the Red flag on May day and the singing of the international labor song. The government decided this was permissible if local authorities wished it.

'McCarthyism' Stirs Grief for U.S. With British

Press Urging London to Make Issue of His China Trade Charges.

By DORIS FLEESON
WASHINGTON.

THE price abroad of "McCarthyism" began to appear last weekend when British newspapers demanded that the British Government take formal issue with the United States Government over the McCarthy charges against British shipping in the China trade.

The British know that their position is understood at the State Department. They know that Secretary of State Dulles supported it in at least two letters to McCarthy. These letters have still to be made public.

Vice President Nixon, it is also known, persuaded Senator McCarthy to withdraw the letter he threatened to write President Eisenhower in the matter. The Nixon intervention is defensible on the ground that the President should not be put on the spot in so serious a matter of foreign policy.

McCarthy Comes Out Ahead.

Actually, it helps McCarthy even more. Once the President is involved, he must put his great prestige firmly on one side or the other and it might very well be that the Senator would be the loser.

Indeed, as of now, the Senator is inevitably the major beneficiary of the Vice President's repeated peace-making between the White House and McCarthy.

It is a favor to the Senator to give him a chance to make an apparently generous gesture toward Eisenhower. He will always take it—until he is satisfied the Eisenhower luster is dimmed.

Troop-Carrying Charge.

Many British here are advising that the charge that British ships transported Chinese Communist troops along the China coast within the last year cannot be allowed to rest. Scuttlebutt at the hearing was that a United States Navy submarine took pictures purporting to show this situation and sent the pictures to Washington where — like everything else these days—they were leaked to McCarthy.

The British say that (1) several British ships were confiscated by the Chinese and it could have been one of those. (2) If the United States Navy gets any such information, the British navy should be the first to receive it and can be depended upon to act on it.

Russia May Be Aiming at West's Weakest Link, Trade Stagnation

By NED RUSSELL.
New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Radio.

WASHINGTON, May 28.

THE belief is gaining momentum here that a meeting of the Big Four will take place before many months, probably in the fall. This belief is not founded on any optimism that next month's Bermuda meeting of the Big Three—President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Churchill and the next French premier—will produce the sort of western unity deemed necessary for a conference with Soviet Premier Malenkov.

Nor is it founded on any genuine expectation that the new Soviet rulers will yield to Eisenhower's demands for concrete "deeds" that would demonstrate Russia's good faith.

Rather, it is founded on a widespread assumption that a Big Four meeting is somehow inevitable. Events seem to be moving in such a fashion that the President will probably be unable to resist the demand, notably in Europe, for a meeting with Malenkov. The primary event in the offing is, of course, a Korean truce.

For it is gradually being realized—that a stubborn rigidity by the President in this matter would gravely undermine the political strength of such world figures as Churchill and would weaken further the already flabby western coalition.

Pravda Article Significant.

Consequently, the article in the Moscow Pravda last weekend concerning Churchill's recent bid for a big-power meeting and the Bermuda conference is being studied with minute care.

And some interesting thoughts are emerging. For one thing, the men who spend all their time trying to penetrate the mysteries of Russia are becoming increasingly convinced that the Kremlin is aiming at action on the economic front rather than the German problem.

If this estimate is correct, it must be presumed that this attitude is based fundamentally on the economic stagnation which is becoming more and more pronounced in Europe. The political restlessness in Europe, with its accompanying outbursts of trans-Atlantic temper, is probably a secondary factor, though an important one.

This emphasis on economic matters was seen in the final paragraph of the Pravda article, which said:

"It is quite obvious that, however much the social systems of separate states differ, there are not a few vitally important instances in which the interests of the peoples of these states converge. Such a vitally important instance is, first of all, peace and the development of economic and cultural co-operation between the nations. The Soviet Union is ready in all seriousness and in all conscience to examine any proposals directed at securing peace and the widest economic and cultural connections between states."

Restless Over Trade Curbs.

This seems to be a clear hint that the Kremlin intends to give priority to the economic situation confronting Western Europe. Almost daily, evidence accumulates that Western Europe is getting steadily more disturbed and restless about the East-West trade restrictions laid down, or sought, by the United States.

This feeling is increased, of course, by the ominous indications that the Eisenhower Administration will be balked in its "trade, not aid" policy by Congress.

There are many officials in Washington who believe that Russia has found the real weak link in the western coalition and that if the Kremlin avoids any "challenging" act, such as aggression in Korea three years ago, it may be able to weaken the alliance even more.

The obvious move for Malenkov, in any Big Four meeting, would thus be to offer profitable trade deals with Britain and France and the rest of Western Europe.

Such deals would not only tempt the unhappy Europeans. They would apply the supreme test to Eisenhower's policies and his ability to implement them in the face of strong opposition from his own party. And they would represent a challenge to the President's ability to hold the Western alliance intact.

Thus, the Administration's foreign economic and trade policies may well prove to be the key to success or failure of the coalition which Eisenhower did so much to create.

Plan for a Pretty City

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I have frequently been on the verge of writing about the appalling condition of the city streets. Your recent editorial, "Dirty Downtown," gives me a fresh determination to hold forth on the subject which I consider a reflection of a more serious condition.

One would scarcely think, on walking or driving through the streets of downtown St. Louis, that this is the heart of a metropolitan area of a million and a half people. My travels have taken me over a good share of this country, as well as countries in Europe and Asia, and I am fairly certain that in no city of comparable size have I ever witnessed such indolence and indifference towards municipal progress as I have seen here.

They say it isn't good to accuse or to complain without offering a suggestion or remedy. Here are a few: How about some concerted action on the part of property owners between Market street, Franklin avenue, Eighteenth street and the river to maintain their property in decent shape, particularly south of Washington and east of Twelfth?

I would like to suggest that everybody take a good look at the Railway Exchange building, the Federal Reserve Bank building, the Greenberg Mercantile Co. building on Washington avenue, the Lammert building, the General American Insurance building and many others. See the excellent condition in which these structures are kept.

Modernize and beautify not only the ground level, but all the way up. This need not be an expensive process. A good steam cleaning or paint job every two or three years should do the trick.

Washington avenue could easily be a street of great beauty. If all the buildings from Third to Twelfth were maintained in the style of the Sonnenfeld structures, the street would experience a new resurgence.

Here is the way I like to picture Washington avenue: Remove the trolley tracks and poles. Resurface the street so it presents an attractive and smooth appearance. Replace all the broken, worn-out sidewalks with smooth, clean pavement. Brighten with light-colored paint the facades of all the old-fashioned cast iron structures.

If all these things were done, I feel that Washington avenue and other streets in the area would begin to attract more and more people who are now repelled by the drabness. All merchants, business men and property owners would benefit, as would the city, and we would once more be on the road toward the type of civic awareness we had here at the turn of the century.

Steel and Oil

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In last fall's campaign, Mr. Eisenhower said, in reference to the seizure of the steel mills, "Thank goodness for a Supreme Court."

That is, thank goodness when it agrees with his views. When its decisions do not agree with his, as in the case of the oil giveaway, then feel free to ignore them.

Shoe on the Other Foot

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The proposed land grab of the great plains of Wyoming and Colorado finds early opponents from California.

Passage of the bill would presage over-grazing and eventual churning of the plains into a dust bowl, leaving the dirt to drift into the Colorado river whence comes the water supply of Los Angeles and many other Southern California communities—a supply, already becoming inadequate.

Yet the proposed bill embodies only the same principles of the offshore-oil bill for which the same California delegates fought so bitterly.

Surely it's a poor rule that won't work both ways. If those delegates actually believe in equal treatment, they will suppport the land grab as vociferously as they supported the Great Offshore-Oil Swindle.

Tax for Granite City

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I live in Granite City, and a survey has recently determined that over 5000 St. Louisans work in the plants on this side of the river, while some 2000 of our citizens are employed in St. Louis.

Now, don't you think that the local services we furnish the 5000 of your residents who work in our community more than compensates St. Louis for the services you furnish our 2000 people who work in St. Louis? So why should they pay an earnings tax in your city?

Or maybe you would be glad to sponsor a Granite City tax on your residents, since Granite City is having trouble in staying out of the red.

Waiting for Panmunjom

Soviet Russia has thrown two dashes of cold water on prospects for a four-power conference, but it would be premature to conclude that such a meeting is out of the question.

The Russians have declined to reopen the negotiations of deputy foreign ministers on the Austrian treaty, as they had been asked to do as a token of good faith. But at the same time they suggested that the Austrian problem might better be transferred to a higher authority, which indicates that they have not closed the door to the possibility of an Austrian settlement.

In the same way, Pravda's attack on the forthcoming Big Three conference at Bermuda was somewhat ambiguous. At first glance it seemed to state that a Western meeting might make an East-West meeting impossible. But the fine print suggests that Pravda may have been warning, not against a Big Three conference as such, but against a Big Three conference which formulated "preliminary fixed demands" to be presented to the Russians as a condition of holding a Big Four conference.

The Soviet view is that an East-West meeting should not be tied up with "any preliminary obligations for one or the other side." And Pravda still emphasizes that a settlement in Korea would ease present tensions "and prepare the soil for the settlement of other problems."

So the fate of Winston Churchill's program for a high-level conference with the Russians may hang upon the outcome of the negotiations at Panmunjom. An agreement there would undoubtedly reinforce his conviction that the months ahead are a good time for seeking a fundamental agreement with the Communists.

That this feeling is widely shared is indicated by a poll showing that 78 per cent of Americans favor such a meeting. This figure is even higher than that obtained in England by the same poll.

Churchill clearly has a different Big Three conference in mind from that suggested by Senator Wiley, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, with its entourage not only of diplomats but also of members of Congress. What the Prime Minister wants at Bermuda is a very small and very informal gathering of President Eisenhower, himself, the French Premier, and a very few advisers.

This is also his plan for the later conference with Malenkov. He seems to have in mind a direct, man-to-man agreement to agree, probably with the details left to be handled later by the Foreign Offices. Churchill wants no formal agenda of issues to be discussed. He seems more interested in changing the present atmosphere of super-cautious if not downright hostile negotiations to one more fruitful. If he can establish a will to peace on all sides, then he can be confident that a way will be found to implement it.

Now, next month or the months thereafter, the Western leaders cannot afford to relax their prudence. But serious talks about peace, especially on the highest level, are always worth while. They may lead to more disappointment, or they may relax the tension under which the whole world now labors. With eyes wide open, the latter chance is always worth taking.

In the Atomic Domain

The Atomic Energy Commission's proposal to permit increased participation of private industry in the atomic program originated under the Truman Administration. It reaches the stage of active consideration under the Eisenhower Administration, in an atmosphere that may prejudice calm discussion of its merits.

The atmosphere in which this proposal is to be considered has in it the fragrance of offshore oil, of the Administration's retreat from Hell's Canyon, of many proposals to relax public responsibility for national forest grazing lands, the public domain, and other natural resources.

Is the atomic energy plan another giveaway of a precious public heritage? That is what a great many Americans will want to know. And since every dollar that has gone into the development of atomic energy so far has been put up by the American taxpayer, the public has an interest in seeing to it that this investment shall not be dissipated to private benefit.

The case for opening atomic development to private industry, within carefully defined limits, rests upon the persuasive argument that thus the application of nuclear energy to peacetime purposes can best be speeded. But can this laudable purpose be reconciled with the need to maintain essential public control, and the duty to prevent a public monopoly from being supplanted by private monopoly?

The Atomic Energy Commission's specific proposals for changes in the present law have not yet been published. Until they have been studied, any opinion can be only guesswork.

Behind the Crisis in France

Paul Reynaud says France is "the sick man of Europe." He demands that the National Assembly approve a constitutional reform to strengthen executive power.

The last Premier, Rene Mayer, was overthrown on a minor budgetary question. Of France's 17 postwar governments, only one lasted as long as a year. One held power only three days. The average has been six months.

There was a time when some Frenchmen saw virtue in their easy change of governments. It prevented authoritarianism and kept the regime in harmony with the sentiments of the nation. But by now most Frenchmen, like Reynaud, must be ready to admit that governments are kept too weak and in time of international crisis France cannot speak with genuine authority.

There is at least a minor move for constitutional reform in the Assembly. One proposal is to hold only one vote of acceptance for a Premier, instead of one for him and another for his cabinet. But since this would do little to prolong the terms of a government, former Premier Pleven recommends a minimum 18-months term to give a government some chance to show what it can do. Reynaud's proposal is for new elections automatically whenever a government is overthrown within 18 months of its installation.

The real trouble, however, lies in the multiplicity of French political parties, with the top half-dozen of just about equal strength. This means that every government must be a coalition. The system may reassure the French in their continuing fear of another Napoleon. It may give representation to every shade of political opinion. But it also makes it easy for politicians to exploit, for example, the frustration over the Indochinese war or the fear of German rearmament without offering practical counter-proposals. Instead of balancing the budget, for another example, the Assembly just throws out the government.

This is too easy, and too dangerous. French politicians and French voters must face up to their responsibilities. In 1953 they cannot afford to play the political game as they could at the turn of the century. The trouble is that the French way of doing things makes change difficult. It makes splintering easier than consolidation. And that is why De Gaulle and the Communists continue to hope that they will get a chance to make a really drastic change.

Odd Course for Leadership

The 11-point "minimum" program announced February for the Eisenhower Administration has been jinked. That is the information which comes from the meeting of the Republican policy committees of the Senate and House. Speaker Martin and Senator Knowland of California, chairman of the Senate group, are more delicate in the way they describe the abandonment of the modest goals, but the effect is the same.

Apparently the first consideration is that Congress adjourn by July 31. Since there is a serious backup of appropriation bills, the prospect is that these will occupy the Senate throughout June and July. Thus far only one appropriation bill has cleared the upper chamber.

This means, as the New York Herald Tribune correspondent reports, that such "must" items as Hawaiian statehood and amendment of the Taft-Hartley Act will go by the boards. Senator Knowland goes so far as to say that it is unlikely they will be approved by committees in time for the Senate to pass on them before adjournment.

Why the great concern for adjournment? This is not an election year. This is a year in which Congress might well stay in session almost continuously until it got its work done. What does Congress have to do that is more important?

This talk about the need for adjournment will not fool people who look into the realities. The fact is that some of the 11 points—such Administration proposals as extension of social security and enlargement of the commission for the District of Columbia—are already buried. The less remembered about the legislative program the better the White House will like it.

But there is no leadership in a course which hopes that voters will forget. The role of leadership is to develop a program, to believe in it and to fight for it. Leadership does not quit in May. It does not stop at the beachhead.

Prince Charles Makes the Grade

Prince Charles is to be allowed to see his mother's coronation Tuesday as a reward for being a good boy, or at least that is the way Queen Elizabeth tells it. There is always some difficulty in translating English customs into American customs, particularly those having to do with the doings of royalty. But every American father who has ever taken his child to the circus, or bought him an electric train for Christmas, should know what Her Majesty is up to.

There is quite a long tradition to these rituals performed by American fathers, going back about as far as American fathers themselves. The trip to the circus is always a paternal chore painfully performed, the electric train a piece of childishness stoically endured for the youngster's sake. None of this keeps long-suffering Pop from feeding the most peanuts to the most elephants, and doing the most switching back and forth and blowing on the whistle.

To put away these childish things and get back to the coronation—we can see how much easier it would be for the Queen to leave the Prince at home for being a bad boy, and just go off and get crowned by herself, so to speak. There'd be none of the bother of knowing one's son was watching as the crown rested upon his mother's head—that the bright scene sparkled in his eyes. We can imagine easily enough any mother preferring to do it that way. Fat chance.

Last Days of the RFC?

That first of depression-born alphabetical agencies, the RFC, has apparently entered its last days. The funeral is being conducted by a St. Louisan, Kenton R. Cravens, who is committed to the Eisenhower Administration's plan for abolishing the agency.

What seems likely to be abolished, however, is the name more than the function. Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey recently testified that RFC should be replaced by a new lending agency for small business. For this idea he was attacked from two sides.

Senator Fulbright, the Democrat who led the clean-up investigation of RFC, told Mr. Humphrey, "You are going to abolish it and re-create some other agency to do almost exactly the same job." When Mr. Humphrey finally said it did not make much difference whether Congress abolished it or set up a new agency, he was then criticized by Senators who want it abolished, and no substitutes allowed.

The concentrated interest on small business loans shows, besides some political significance, the changing function of RFC itself. The agency begun by President Hoover to help large business (including banks which now oppose it) became, after the depression and the war, an agency largely devoted to small business.

During the 1950 fiscal year, for example, RFC authorized 5306 loans and 90 per cent were for amounts of $100,000 or less. If such lending functions were abolished outright, Republican leaders undoubtedly would hear charges that they favored RFC for big business but not for small.

Secretary Humphrey conceded that there is a "twilight zone" in which small business needs government loans. Despite the fact that it has supplied risk capital, RFC has made a profit. And aside from this it has served government operations well, in handling loans for housing, defense work, disaster relief and public agencies.

These are operations which the Government should wish to continue, with or without an agency named RFC.

The Speaker's Example

In the crisis facing Missouri's government because of a deadlocked Legislature, who is working hardest in the spirit of compromise?

Gov. Donnelly has said, with legal accuracy, that he lacks power to call the stubborn legislators back to Jefferson City, and so he has done little to urge them to return.

The officers of the august State Senate have refused to split the difference between their inadequate appropriations for state mental hospitals and the funds proposed by the House.

Vonderschmidt has made repeated appeals to the Senate leaders for a compromise. He has asked House clerks to enroll 16 sidetracked money bills so they could be passed quickly if the Senate agreed.

This is as far as the Speaker can go and certainly some compromise is essential. Missouri's government will be out of operating funds in a month if nothing is done. Either the legislators agree on appropriations before Sunday's adjournment, or the Governor will have to add the problem to the rush of a special session.

But the strange thing is that in the crisis, the leadership which might be expected of the Governor and his Senate leaders is coming so largely from the Speaker of the House.

NEW DEFENSE IN PUSH-BUTTON WAR?

The Highway Victim: Who, Me?

The Mirror of Public Opinion

As Memorial Day nears, motorists should know that 15,000 of last year's 37,600 traffic deaths occurred on weekends; speed was worst factor; most cars involved were in good condition, going straight down the road; in short, drivers were to blame.

From the 1953 Book of Traffic Accident Data, "Who, Me?" Published by The Travelers Insurance Companies

Moreover, 1952 was the third consecutive year of increase in the death toll. The nation had made real progress from 1946 through 1949. The fatality total had been reduced for four straight years to a 1949 low of 31,700. Then the black line took a turn for the worse.

Again last year, excessive speed was far and away the most dangerous mistake in driving. Speed killed 13,430 persons and injured nearly 600,000 in 1952.

Move down the table (of actions resulting in deaths and injuries) to "Drove off roadway" and you will see that 50 per cent more persons were killed or injured last year than in 1951 in this category. These accidents are the inevitable result of too much speed. The foremost rule of traffic safety is this: never exceed speed limits.

There was one bright spot in last year's dismal accident record. A comparison reveals that pedestrian deaths and injuries were reduced by more than 8 per cent in 1952. And it was the second consecutive year of improvement for pedestrians.

Jaywalking—crossing between intersections—still is the most dangerous action. Another trap, coming from behind a parked car, meant death for 42 per cent more persons last year than in 1951. Injuries in the same category increased 36 per cent.

Casualties increase as the day grows older. The climax is reached in the afternoon and evening hours. Drivers are tired. Their reflexes are dull. They are impatient and often angry. These are the ingredients of collision.

To avoid accidents at the end of the day, be honest with yourself. Acknowledge your fatigue and adjust your normal driving habits accordingly. Curb your temper, cut your speed and use extra caution.

Drivers in nearly three out of four of last year's serious accidents were between the ages of 25 and 64. The young and the old were behind the wheel in a minority of accidents.

A substantial majority of the nation's drivers are between 25 and 64 years old. A majority of accidents obviously would be attributable to them. But studies have shown that the safest drivers are found right in the heart of the 25 to 64 age group.

The key is this fact: young men and women under 25 constitute about 15 per cent of the total of all drivers. Drivers in this age group were involved in almost 25 per cent of last year's fatal accidents.

Why do young drivers cause far more than their share of accidents? Too many of them simply don't know how to drive safely. The cure is competent training. And there is another answer: attitudes. Unless skill and knowledge are guided by a feeling of responsibility, young drivers will still be dangerous drivers. In their homes as well as their schools, they need sensitive guidance. And they need parents and teachers who will set a good example when they drive.

In nearly every field, the professional is admired for his polished skill by the amateur. Last year, only one out of four motor vehicles involved in serious accidents was driven by a professional. Professional drivers are generally good drivers because they take driving seriously. It's their job to know exactly how to steer and brake, how to avoid trouble.

There is a valuable lesson here for you who drive for pleasure or convenience. You may not earn your living behind the wheel, but you earn your life there.

Last year, an overwhelming majority of vehicles in accidents were "in apparently good condition." These accidents were not the fault of the steering wheel, brakes or lights. They were the fault of the driver. And most accidents last year happened to cars in what is generally considered a safe position: going straight.

Most of us think of weekends as a time for rest and pleasure. But it is also a time of climactic violence on our roads. More than 15,000 persons were killed in weekend accidents last year. Forty per cent of the deaths were recorded on Saturdays and Sundays in 1952.

Something else sets Saturday apart from other days. Saturday night for too many people is a time when drinking and driving get together. No one knows exactly how many traffic accidents are caused by drinking drivers, but everyone knows it is a major problem.

And so this is how people are hurt or killed in traffic accidents. Your life and the lives of your family and your fellow man depend on YOU!

Handcuffing Senator Williams

From the Chicago Daily Tribune

Senator John J. Williams, Delaware Republican, whose one man campaign brought into the open the wholesale corruption in the New Deal Internal Revenue Bureau, has been put under wraps by the members of his own party.

A rule voted by the Senate Finance Committee provides that evidence of corruption obtained by a subcommittee which Senator Williams was to head must be submitted to the full committee, and if the full committee votes against disclosure, no member of the subcommittee ever can give the Senate the facts. Senator Williams said that he would refuse to serve as its chairman if placed under such restraints. He said that the rule was made to order for the purpose of giving the party in power authority to put the lid on any investigation.

On its face, the rule to gag Williams and his subcommittee suggests that the Eisenhower Administration expects a certain degree of scandal within its own house and has taken out insurance that the evidence will be suppressed. If Democrats make that charge, we do not see how it can be convincingly rebutted.

Between Book Ends

With Merton in His Monastery

THE SIGN OF JONAS, by Thomas Merton. (Harcourt, Brace & Co., 367 pgs., $3.50.)

The many readers of Thomas Merton's "The Seven Storey Mountain," a poetic account of a young man's conversion to Catholicism and his entry into the cloistered and silent life of a Trappist monastery, are welcoming this his latest book. Like its predecessor, "The Sign of Jonas" is selling remarkably well.

The sign of Jonas, it should be explained at the outset, is his immortality; the whale dies, but Jonah, possessing a soul, looks forward to resurrection. Resuming his autobiography where "The Seven Storey Mountain" left off, Thomas Merton in his new book, written in the form of a journal, makes life in the monastery real and convincing.

He tells of everyday happenings that reflect the peace, serenity, quiet joy and even restrained gayety found in a house where all are dedicated beings.

Through Thomas Merton's observant and kindly eyes we see the death of an old monk who was "always working" and who, when sent out to watch the cows, would come back with large pails of blackberries for his brethren; we see the flurries caused by visiting bishops and abbots at the time of the centenary of the monastery, and by the arrival of a noisy new tractor.

We see the sudden and almost upsetting influx as young men in unprecedented numbers converge on the Kentucky monastery, causing not only its enlargement but also the establishment of four new foundations in other parts of the country. We are taken to the woods, where novices are planting seedlings, and to the kitchen, where the baker, an amateur architect, draws plans for new monasteries while the bread is baking.

One of the most interesting chapters is the last one, where, as fire warden for the night, the writer takes us on a tour of the sleeping monastery. All this is told in an easy, conversational style.

Most noteworthy of all, however, is the change in Thomas Merton. During the first part of the book his soul is tormented by two problems. His superiors have told him to write a book; so under his vow of obedience he must write books and give up many of the hours he would like to spend in prayer and quiet meditation. The even stricter solitude of the Carthusians, moreover, seems beckoning him away from the Trappists.

Both problems are solved when he becomes convinced he is doing right by staying at Gethsemani and obeying his superiors, whether by clearing away brush from the forest or by undertaking another of his numerous writing projects. He sees, finally, that prayer can be ever-present whatever his occupation.

DOROTHY GARESCHE HOLLAND.

A Plot No Burglar Can Steal

THE HIGH AND THE MIGHTY, by Ernest K. Gann. (William Sloane, 347 pgs., $3.50.)

Mr. Gann is the author whose novel a convict copied in a successful and widely-publicized attempt to secure an advance from a publisher. Here, however, is a story so memorable, in spite of its slightness, that no burglar will be able to swipe it.

It is a taut, suspenseful tale of what befell an airliner on a flight from Honolulu to San Francisco. A motor conks out, the propeller is lost and fire follows. With a skill you cannot help admiring, the novelist alternates between the mechanics of flying a dying plane and the reactions of the passengers in the cabin. The tingling climax will leave you limp in your chair.

MARQUIS CHILDS

South Dakota Heard From

WASHINGTON.

IT ALL depends on whose dam is knocked out of the budget. That was demonstrated recently when political pressures with a powerful head of steam came down on the Bureau of the Budget.

Under the stern eye of Budget Director Joseph M. Dodge, former Detroit banker, an appropriation for Oahe dam in South Dakota had been thrown out with a lot of other requests for electric lines and power projects. This was part of the economy program.

Gov. Anderson

The response in South Dakota was not long in coming. Gov. Sigurd Anderson, a Republican, called a protest meeting in which the conservative Farm Bureau Federation, the Grange and the Farmers Union joined with representatives of the rural electrification districts in the state. They were unanimously indignant.

Undercurrent of Revolt.

But even this might not have been enough if it had not been for an interesting coincidence. Senator Karl Mundt of South Dakota, a Republican who has taken the lead on many foreign policy issues, is up for re-election next year. Letters began to flood into Mundt's office about Oahe dam.

The Budget Bureau restored an appropriation of $8,250,000 for Oahe. The Government had previously appropriated $16,300,000 for the dam and reservoir site, with the total cost of the completed project estimated at $327,000,000.

Not content with this victory, Gov. Anderson came to Washington to impress on the House Appropriations Committee how vital Oahe is not only to South Dakota but to the whole Missouri valley. He said he had the backing of the Governors of the 10 Missouri valley states for the appropriation.

'Never Again Club.'

This points up reports from that region of an undercurrent of revolt as economies threaten long cherished projects. The farm vote will be crucial in the elections next year. The Republican majority in the House is now 11, which includes four Southerners—three from Virginia, one from North Carolina—swept in on the Eisenhower victory tide.

While it may be no more than a sly piece of Democratic propaganda, cards pledging membership in the "Never Again Club" are said to be circulating in the farm belt. They list "what we got out of the first 90 days' as follows: "Lower farm prices, higher interest rates, difficult home financing, less rural electrification, difficult farm financing, an end to rural phones, an end to cheap power, an end to irrigation, hourly golf news, broken campaign promises."

Missouri rural electric co-ops are indignant over cuts eliminating power lines tying them in with dams of the Southwest Power Administration. They accuse Representative William A. Cole (Rep.), Missouri, of being the mouthpiece of the private utilities. Cole was defeated for re-election to the House four years ago after he voted against an REA appropriation. In November he came back with the Eisenhower tide.

Farm Income Dropping.

Power and related issues are dwarfed, of course, by the question of farm prices. Farm income is estimated to drop this year from 14 billion to 13 billion dollars. The value of farm real estate fell in the first four months of '53, with declines sharpest in the Western states because of the drop in beef cattle prices.

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson is extremely sensitive to the price question. Maryland tobacco farmers voted in 1951 against imposing restrictions on their production for 1952. This had an adverse effect on tobacco prices.

One of Maryland's newly elected Republican Congressmen, Frank Small Jr., introduced a bill calling for price support payments for the tobacco growers even though they had voted against quotas. This is contrary to the basic provision in the support system. Secretary Benson went so far as to write a letter backing the bill but adding that it should not be a precedent.

Into the Farm Belt.

When it came to the floor, such veterans of the agricultural wars as Jamie Whitten (Dem.), Mississippi, had a lot of fun. Whitten wanted to know how it was that an administration opposed to regimentation and subsidies could support a measure inviting an open end operation—subsidies for unlimited production of crops.

While the measure was defeated, it was a sign of the concern over the politics of farm prosperity. This may be one reason for the trip President Eisenhower is making into the heart of the farm belt with speeches scheduled for Minneapolis on June 10, Garrison Dam, N.D., on June 11 and Rapid City, S.D., the following day. He will have a chance to define his own policy for the man on the farm.

WOMAN CLUBS REJECT CHANGE IN PRIMARIES

Federation Delegates Vote Down Proposal Urging Nation-Wide System.

WASHINGTON, May 28 (UP)—The General Federation of Women's Clubs convention today unexpectedly defeated a resolution favoring nation-wide presidential primaries.

The resolution, backed by the federation's top officers, lost by 39 votes after opponents spoke in favor of the present method of selecting presidential candidates at national political conventions.

Delegates overwhelmingly approved resolutions favoring expansion of educational television and urging appointment of more women to high public office. Another urged the Social Security Administration to co-operate with local authorities in tracking down parents who desert children by making addresses available from Social Security records.

Mrs. J. D. Atwood, Roswell, N.M., opposed the convention method of selecting presidential candidates as "undemocratic." She said all citizens should be allowed a vote in naming the national candidates.

But Mrs. Cogley Cole, Vevay, Ind., said unqualified candidates could be swept to nomination on a tide of spectacular publicity in a national primary. Other opposition delegates expressed concern that the large vote of only five states—New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois and California—could decide the outcome of primaries.

The television resolution called for co-operation with educational and Government institutions in forwarding education through television. It urged "sufficient legislative appropriations" to provide an opportunity to develop programs "worthy of the time and money invested."

Some delegates opposed it on grounds that Government "co-operation" might lead to "state ownership of television."

Women's Clubs Delegates to Visit White House.

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—The General Federation of Women's Clubs is going to the White House after all—but at the moment there is no plan for delegates to be greeted personally by Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Mrs. Oscar Ahlgren of Whiting, Ind., federation president, instructed delegates and visitors to the annual convention of the world's largest organization of women to don their badges and be on hand this afternoon at the White House gate.

They won't have an invitation—not even a routine admittance card—to take home as a souvenir, but they will go to the White House in a group and see the same rooms they would if Mrs. Eisenhower were to welcome them.

What Mrs. Eisenhower will be doing then is not disclosed. There is nothing scheduled then on her calendar as announced by her secretary, Mrs. Mary Jane McCaffree.

There were delighted "ohs" and "ahs" from delegates at last night's convention session when Mrs. Ahlgren told them of the White House arrangements.

There had been disappointed mutterings over why other women's outfits were invited to the White House and they weren't. The White House explained that federation officers hadn't got their request in for a reception or a special tour in time for necessary arrangements to be made. That didn't satisfy many of the delegates.

In an attempt to forestall any hurt feelings Mrs. Eisenhower went to a morning session of the convention Tuesday and said a few words but stayed only briefly.

Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby raised the question last night whether "purely local" welfare services might not be more economical "if more of the money to finance them were raised and spent at home."

She noted that 93 per cent of the funds of the Health, Education and Welfare Department which she heads go back to states and individuals, and added: "A tax dollar that goes to Washington never comes back intact. It is always minus the cost of the round-trip ticket."

She did not say what local welfare services might be handled directly, or how. She raised the question only incidentally in mentioning that President Eisenhower has called for a thorough study of the whole problem of federal and state responsibility for financing necessary services.

Mrs. Hobby, in her talk, said her department spent many long hours reviewing all parts of its $1,750,000,000 budget, and did not take the easy way of "across-the-board" cuts.

To balance the federal budget means simply spending fewer dollars. "To accomplish this, we cannot continue Government operations on the scale of the 1952-53 budget," she said, and added: "A fundamental contribution of all social-minded citizens will be to study their local situation and devise means to insure maximum local responsibility for the conduct of community affairs."

Says Welfare Dept. Is Against Any Form of Socialized Medicine

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer

DR. OTTO W. KOCH (left) honored by St. Louis County Medical Society last night and PARKE M. BANTA, general counsel of United States Department of Health, Education and Welfare, principal speaker.

Parke M. Banta Tells Medical Society New Agency Also Is Opposed to Compulsory Health Insurance.

The new Department of Health, Education and Welfare is opposed to compulsory forms of federal health insurance and to "socialized medicine," Parke M. Banta, general counsel, emphasized in an address here last night. He spoke at the fiftieth annual dinner of the St. Louis County Medical Society at the Sheraton Hotel.

Banta, an Ironton (Mo.) lawyer who served as a Missouri Representative in Congress from 1946 to 1948, used the terms "compulsory health insurance" and "socialized medicine" interchangeably.

Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, secretary of the new department, "obviously spoke for the entire department when she said recently, 'I am opposed to socialized medicine,' Banta asserted.

President Eisenhower has said: "I don't like the word "compulsory"; I am against the word, 'socialized,'" Banta recalled.

"This philisophy of our President and our Secretary ranks as a distinct departure from the point of view which, in recent years, gave rise to repeated demands upon Congress to enact compulsory health insurance, or socialized medicine," Banta said.

Banta, head of the department's legal staff since April 9, making his first public address since his appointment, praised former United States Senator Forrest C. Donnell of Missouri, a guest at the dinner, for "setting the facts straght about socialized medicine" and for "going to work" on arguments offered in favor of compulsory federal health insurance.

Discussing plans and policies of the new department in general terms, Banta said the Eisenhower Administration is coping with "the question of how to live through this age of peril and retain our freedom and our sound national economy.

"The Department of Health, Education and Welfare is designed to render services, particularly in the field of public health, by means of a great co-operative effort. There is no intention that the Federal Government, through the department, is to do the whole job.

"It is to be a joint effort by local communities, by states and by private groups and individual citizens, as well as the Federal Government."

About 200 persons attended the meeting, at which a scroll was presented to Dr. Otto W. Koch, one of two surviving charter members of the county medical group, founded 50 years ago.

THOMAS L. STOKES

G.O.P. Accent on Youth

WASHINGTON.

REPUBLICAN party strategists at the higher level are thinking and planning these days about ways and means of holding together that assorted following which coalesced and rolled in head-long to produce the 1952 Eisenhower landslide.

Hence the latest Republican accent on youth—Republican National Chairman Leonard Hall's advocacy of lowering the voting age from 21 to 18, which he says is favored by both President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon. This is a gesture to the young generation, as well as what might be called the younger generation, the strata below.

Hall

As for the latter, those not old enough to vote last year, anyone who followed the Eisenhower campaign cavalcade about the country can testify to how they swarmed in veritable multitudes about the Republican candidate, with their home-made "We Like Ike" signs and their enthusiasm. Chairman Hall has an eye to them.

Swing of '52.

He was frank enough about his aims, saying that the young folks were the older folks. Chairman Hall wants to hold them, along with other groups that contributed to last year's victory.

As a matter of fact, a phenomenon of the 1952 campaign was the noticeable swing of young and new voters to Gen. Eisenhower. All during the Roosevelt and Truman years, it had come to be taken for granted that the upcoming generation was predominantly Democratic in political inclination. But that changed markedly in 1952 and, to be sure, had been indicated in analyses of polls sampled here and there which showed a disintegration of previously fixed allegiances.

Yearn for Normality.

This generation could not be stirred by calling the roll of New Deal social and economic reforms and what they had accomplished, for that all happened before their time and they took them for granted. It meant nothing to them—as it did to some of their fathers and mothers—to whip Herbert Hoover, the last previous Republican President, about the stump, and recall the depression that began in his Administration. That was ancient history for young voters.

They had more immediate worries and frustrations, the "cold war" which disrupted their plans and hung ominously over their lives, and the hot war in Korea to which the young men might be called at any time. All this the Republican campaigners successfully identified with the Democrats—and the General was promising an end to all that.

If now, as President, he can get something done about all that in time—why, nothing would be so appealing as a political issue to the younger generation which is just entering upon life and yearns so to see it as normal as possible. Democrats know that—and so does Chairman Hall.

One State Acts.

Vote-wise, lowering the voting age would mean much. It would bring in between 6,000,000 and 6,500,000 more voters, or persons eligible to vote, if it were done nation-wide. That is on the basis of present population.

Chairman Hall is not particular about the method of doing this, whether by a constitutional amendment or by state action, state by state.

Only one state permits voting at 18. That is Georgia. This change was adopted during Gov. Ellis Arnall's reform administration of the early 1940s. The change is reported to have worked well in Georgia. The 18-year-olds generally seem earnest about their responsibilities.

Democrats File Bills.

Interestingly enough, two of the three proposed constitutional amendments pending in Congress to reduce the voting age to 18 are sponsored by Democrats—Senator Humphrey of Minnesota and Representative Doyle of California, while the third is promoted by a sometimes irregular Republican, Senator Langer of North Dakota, who rode President Truman's campaign train all across his state last fall.

Hitherto, the most ardent advocate in Congress for lowering the voting age to 18 was a Republican, the late Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan. He used the argument, that those old enough to fight were old enough to vote, which was repeated by President Eisenhower in a speech in Detroit in June last year before his nomination.

Queen Elizabeth Entertains 7000 At Gala Coronation Garden Party

LONDON, May 28 (UP)—Queen Elizabeth II presided today at the first gala garden party of the coronation year at Buckingham Palace.

Seven thousand guests from the United States, the Commonwealth and much of the rest of the world, filled the vast palace lawns, under brilliant spring sunshine.

A great crowd gathered outside the palace to see the distinguished guests arrive while behind the spike-topped walls the Queen moved gracefully among the throng, nodding and smiling to the visitors.

Long striped awnings covered tables where guests took tea and cakes, iced coffee and lemonade. Military bands played throughout the two-hour party.

The Queen did not appear at all fatigued by the heavy run of coronation duties and chatted with many of the visitors.

She wore a dress of cyclamen silk, patterned in black, with a matching small swathed chiffon hat in the same shade. Over this she wore a blue mink cape. Her shoes, gloves and handbag were all black.

Meanwhile another large crowd, so large that police reinforcements were called to break it up, gathered at the entrance to Westminster Abbey where Queen Mother Elizabeth, Princess Margaret and other members of the royal family were rehearsing their own procession.

Police had to clear a path through the crowds at the abbey for arriving dignitaries, but before they could do so the Earl and Countess of Harewood, cousins of the Queen, were engulfed by good-natured sight-eers and had to struggle through to the abbey entrance.

Crowds jamming London were continuing to increase today as airliners from the United States circled London's two airports for as much as an hour awaiting their turn to land. Throngs packing London's streets almost paralyzed traffic.

LIBRARY TO USE MICROFILM DEVICE TO ISSUE BOOKS

The machine age has come to the St. Louis Public Library.

No longer will book borrowers wait while a librarian inscribes the necessary records each time a book is withdrawn.

Instead, a machine to be installed next month in the adult reading room at the Central Library will photograph the borrower's card and record data on microfilm.

Louis M. Nourse, librarian, said similar machines may be placed eventually in other departments and branches. The mechanical recording system, he added, has proven to be efficient in libraries at New York, Cleveland and Chicago.

STOCK MARKET IS LOWER FOR 5TH STRAIGHT SESSION

Displays of Resistance From Time to Time Are Not Enough to Stem Slide.

NEW YORK, May 28 (AP)—A moderate decline in the stock market today was cushioned by a slight recovery from the lows just before the close.

It was the fifth straight session of lower prices.

The decline extended in a few instances to between one and two points, but in the bulk of the list it was fairly narrow.

Trading came to 1,240,000 shares. That compares with yesterday's 1,330,000 shares.

Associated Press average of 60 stocks lost .8 of a point at 108.8. Industrial index dropped 1.4, rail .6 and utility .2.

(Dow-Jones industrial averages closed 2.48 points lower, the rails .53 off of a point and the utilities .24.)

Issues traded totaled 1129, compared with 1110 yesterday. Losers numbered 696, gainers 168 and 265 were unchanged.

Railroads tried to get ahead early in the day, but they soon turned around and retreated with the rest of the market. They displayed some improvement from time to time, however, throughout the day.

General Railway Signal declared a dividend of 50 cents and also an extra of 10 cents. The previous payment was 40 cents in April and a total of $2.50 last year. The stock immediately after the announcement traded at 33¾, up 1¾.

Hugging the downside along with the railroads were the steels, motors, oils, copper, chemicals, rubbers and radio-televisions.

Lower stocks included Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Packard, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio, Sinclair Oil, Phelps Dodge, U.S. Rubber, American Cyanamid and Admiral Corp.

The railroads had a good background of news. The Senate Commerce Committee approved a bill to speed action through the Interstate Commerce Commission of railroad demands for freight rate increases. Such a move has been a major legislative aim of the railroads.

Pennsylvania Railroad, the nation's largest railway revenue producer, reported net income for the first four months of more than $10,500,000, and that was the largest net for the road for these months since the war.

GRAIN RANGE NARROW; WHEAT LOWEST SINCE '50

CHICAGO, May 28 (AP) — Grains held within a narrow price range on the Board of Trade today. The market did not repeat yesterday's jitter, but at the same time it showed no great strength.

Soybeans and oats led an early rally, beans advancing to an extreme gain of 2 cents at one time. Wheat had a lagging tendency all day and toward the close started to sink. It lost enough to put it into new low ground since 1950.

U.S. BONDS AT RECORD LOWS

NEW YORK, May 28 (AP)—United States Government bonds continued a week-long drift to record lows today as the corporate bond market declined irregularly.

Dealers of Treasury securities reported only a trickle of over the counter activity and one major securities house said trading had halted completely. Consequently, prices were marked down again.

At the start of the final period, long term Victory 2½s and bank-eligible 2½s of 1967-72 were off 4-32 at 90-32 bid. The new 2¼s of 1956-59 were off 20-32 bid, and the 2½s of 1958 were off 4-32 at 97 bid.

Meanwhile, industrials and utilities pulled the corporate bond market downward. Price changes also declined, but several seldom-traded issues climbed substantially.

In new financing activity today, an underwriting group publicly offered $25,000,000 of 3¼ per cent 25-year debentures of Consolidated Natural Gas Co. at 102.016.

Threat of Showers Memorial Day

Weather conditions as of 12:30 a.m., C.S.T., May 28, 1953. Temperature figures show average for area. Arrows denote wind flow; shaded areas indicate rain; dotted areas indicate snow. Barometric highs and low in inches.

A low pressure area in the west is expected to move from western to eastern Utah tomorrow, with a warm front extending from southwest North Dakota to Alabama.

If the low moves further eastward St. Louis may be plagued with inclement weather on Saturday, Memorial day, Meteorologist Harry F. Wahlgren said. Partly cloudy skies here tonight and tomorrow was predicted by the St. Louis Weather Bureau.

A low temperature in St. Louis tomorrow morning of around 65 and an afternoon high in the upper 80s were forecast. Over Missouri this morning temperatures ranged from 54 at Kirksville to 68 at Joplin and yesterday from 70 at St. Joseph and Kirksville to 85 at Malden.

Warm weather with temperatures in the 90s yesterday covered areas in western Kansas and from New Mexico to the south Atlantic states. Yesterday's high was 103 at Presidio, Tex. Lowest over the nation this morning was 23 at Ely, Nev.

TWO LEADING KOREA JET FIGHTER ACES SEE EISENHOWER

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—President Eisenhower yesterday congratulated America's two leading jet fighter aces of the Korean war, Capt. Joseph McConnell Jr. and Capt. Manuel Fernandez. The President received the two Air Force aces in his White House office.

McConnell, who shot down 16 Communist MIG-15 planes in Korea told reporters afterward it was a "terrific privilege" to meet the President.

McConnell's home is in Apple Valley, Calif. He was accompanied to the White House by his wife. Fernandez, who shot down 14 MIGs, lives in Miami, Fla. He was accompanied by his father, Manuel Fernandez, an Air Force colonel.

McConnell said Eisenhower remarked with a laugh that he had read in the newspapers that both McConnell and Fernandez planned to ask him for permission to return to combat duty in Korea. McConnell said they had been quoted to that effect, but that it was all a mistake—they didn't mean it. He added he was sure the President understood that.

40,000 YOUNG BASS FOR YOUTHS PLACED IN REARING PONDS

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

About 40,000 young bass were "planted" yesterday in 10 rearing ponds in Forest Park in a project intended to give young sportsmen good fishing in city lakes reserved for them.

A truckload of bass fry was sent to the park by the Missouri Conservation Commission and the fish were placed in the ponds by representatives of the St. Louis Sports Council and the Boys and Girls Council of the Lions Clubs.

The bass will be kept in the ponds during the summer and then moved to other lakes when they reach fair size, about October. In all, 100,000 bass fry and 40,000 small channel catfish are being placed in the rearing ponds, with the aid of the city's department of parks and recreation.

FORMER CONVICT ARRESTED ON BAD CHECK CHARGES

Vito Giammario, a former convict, was held at Clayton today on three warrants, issued previously, charging him with passing bogus checks totaling $144.

Giammario, who gave an address in the 4500 block of St. Louis avenue, was arrested in a Maplewood grocery last night after a checker recognized the name on a check he tried to pass as that listed in a warning by the Maplewood Chamber of Commerce relating to check-passers.

The warrants charge Giammario with passing bad checks in Pine Lawn, Wellston and Maplewood. He is also suspected of passing about 20 worthless checks in St. Louis. Police said he has served three terms in the Missouri penitentiary for passing bogus checks.

PARKE DAVIS & CO. DRIVERS STRIKE OVER WAGE DISPUTE

Deliveries of Parke Davis & Co. products in St. Louis were interrupted today by a strike of warehouse employes in a wage dispute with the company.

Eight warehouse workers, members of Teamsters Local 688 walked out at the company's local distribution center, 4545 Audubon avenue. A company spokesman said there would be no deliveries during the strike. Negotiations have been conducted following a union demand for an increase of 25 cents an hour above the old basic scale of $1.62, the spokesman said.

'Aid to Korea Week' Proclaimed.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 28 (AP)—Gov. Phil M. Donnelly today proclaimed June 7-14 as "aid to Korea week." He pointed out that 10,000,000 Koreans are facing starvation and disease and urged all Missourians to contribute generously to a fund-raising campaign to be held during the week.

BRITISH BID IS LOW ON ANOTHER PROJECT

SEATTLE, May 28 (AP)—A British firm submitted the low bid for the second time yesterday for 10 big power transformers for the Federal Government's Chief Joseph dam project on the Columbia river.

English Electrical Export & Trading Co., Ltd., of London, submitted a bid $442,751 lower than the lowest American bid. The efficiency rating listed for the British product, however, was slightly below that of the lowest American bidder.

Rejection of original bids by the Department of Army, and a call for rebidding, brought criticism in Britain's House of Commons. The bid award will be made after study in Washington.

The bids were: English Electrical, $1,761,317 with 99.56 efficiency rating; Industrie Elettriche di Legnano, Legnano, Italy, $1,830,000, with 99.51 efficiency rating; Moloney Electric Co., $2,204,068, with 99.61 efficiency; Pennsylvania Transformer Co., Cannonsburg, Pa., $2,295,763; General Electric Co., $2,499,076; Allis-Chalmers, Milwaukee, Wis., $2,609,775; Westinghouse, $2,679,373.

The latter four all were listed for 99.51 efficiency.

Another test of the domestic versus foreign purchase issue will come Monday. Bids will be opened by the district engineer then for four generators. It involves more than twice as big a bid. The English company also submitted the low bid for the generators at the original opening last December.

$11,000,000 SLASHED FROM U.S. BUILDING FUND IN GERMANY

WASHINGTON, May 28 (UP)—The Budget Bureau has whacked the housing plans for United States diplomats in Germany from an original program costing $19,000,000 to one costing $7,655,000, it was disclosed today.

The original program included a $138,000 building for each of seven United States consuls in various German cities. The plans also called for construction of a $305,777 apartment house at Bremen to house 21 bachelors, with a maid's room to go with each apartment.

Chairman Brownson (Rep.), Indiana, of a House Government Operations subcommittee which has been looking into the matter, made public a letter from Edward B. Wilber, budget officer of the State Department.

The Budget Bureau eliminated plans for the $138,000 buildings for consuls and trimmed back to $4,000,000 the $9,526,000 earmarked for construction of apartment units.

The bureau allocated $3,285,000 instead of $5,171,000 for construction of seven office buildings. A $3,115,000 item for information centers—called "America Houses"—was eliminated.

COUPLE WITH CHILD TAKEN HERE HELD BY FBI IN FLORIDA

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Allen, who checked out of a St. Louis hotel last week with a 9-month-old boy left temporarily in their custody, were arrested yesterday in Tampa, Fla., Joseph Thornton, agent in charge of the St. Louis FBI office, announced today.

They will be arraigned before a United States Commissioner at Tampa on charges of violating the Federal kidnaping statute and interstate transportation of a stolen automobile, Thornton said. The child was still with them and was taken to Tampa Municipal Hospital for safekeeping until the parents call for him.

Search for the Allens began when Mrs. Gladys Vanaman, a waitress, 1505 Market street, reported they had disappeared with her son, William Vanaman Jr. Mrs. Allen had agreed to care for the boy, she said, while she went to Detroit with her husband, Thornton said the automobile, being driven at the time of his arrest, had been reported stolen May 14 by Nathaniel Crockett of Madison.

BOTTLING COMPANY OBTAINS ORDER AGAINST PICKETING

A restraining order to halt picketing of the Dr. Pepper Bottling Co. plant here by striking AFL Teamsters' Union drivers was issued today by Circuit Judge David A. McMullan.

In a petition the company charged that the pickets have destroyed property and threatened non-union drivers who have crossed their lines. Union officials, denying the charges, said the men walked out Monday in protest against what they termed the company's efforts to delay a plant election.

The election is to determine whether Teamsters' Local 606 will be certified as the drivers' bargaining agent. Union officials added that the strike is unauthorized. Drivers for vending machine companies have been crossing picket lines at the plant, 5380 Kemper Park street.

YOUTH STABS TWO OTHERS IN STREET FIGHT, FLEES

Grzyb and Yanick were walking with three companions, one a girl, they said, when Yanick jostled a strange youth standing on the corner. This started a fist fight which ended when the stranger flourished a knife. He fled after the cutting.

NAMED ENGINEERING FELLOW

Richard J. Koopman, chairman of the department of electrical engineering at Washington University, has been named a fellow in the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, it was announced today.

Koopman was cited for his work in servomechanisms, telemetering, and in teaching and educational administration. He lives at 2201 St. Clair avenue, Brentwood.

Television in Review

The Studio Audience Is Still a Menace

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, May 28.

AFTER a month of total abstinence, television's crotchets strike you more forcibly than ever. Among the things that seem to have grown worse is the studio audience. One of the first shows I saw when I got back was Perry Como's.

JOHN CROSBY

The studio audience, I guess, was composed entirely of teenagers. Heaven knows no one of my advanced years could utter anything resembling the shrill yowls that encompassed Mr. Como. Como, I must admit, didn't appear to like it at all. He winced visibly every time the wolf pack let loose. "Real noisy here," muttered Dick Stark, the announcer. Stark's style is to be as soft-spoken and ingratiating as possible and he was almost drowned in the melee.

"Come on, let's scream it up just for once," remarked Como rather acidly at the class. And, brother, they let loose again. The set hasn't quite sounded the same since and neither have my nerves. Seems to me all the studio audiences have got a lot less manageable lately and I wish something would be done about it. What's to be done about it? Well, they might try gagging everything under 20 years of age that enters a studio.

ANOTHER THING that has grown into unmanageable proportions is the personality stereotype—if that conveys what I mean. It all started when Helen Traubel and Jimmy Durante, two exactly opposite types, engaged in a hilarious bit of monkeyshines. That set the pattern—one clown set up against one person of towering dignity.

Then everyone got into the act. Ezio Pinza has almost made a career out of being a foil for every comedian around. It isn't a bad idea, exactly, but it could stand a rest. Let's give it the summer off, shall we?

THAT LEADS US to Captain Video, something I managed to ignore successfully for quite awhile. The other day Captain Video was belting through outer space when he picked up the telephone. "Captain Video, calling the Grand Prince on the Black Planet." There was a pause of about a second and a half and then: "This is the Grand Prince."

Now, wait a minute, boys. I've swallowed a lot of things on that show but telephone service like that—no. You can't dial Butterfield 8 that fast. Every time I try to call the Grand Prince on the Black Planet, I wind up with a Mrs. Sophie Derflinger who has never been out of Brooklyn and who doesn't even think there is such a place as the Black Planet.

★ ★ ★

WELL, LET'S SEE now—what else have we? Crime shows, for example. Well, the other night the narrator on "Treasury Agent" emitted one of the most wonderfully incontrovertible statements since Cal Coolidge's "When more and more people are thrown out of work, unemployment results." Said the "Treasury Agent" man: "Perhaps the most common characteristic of a criminal is his disregard for the law." I doubt that Republicans and Democrats could disagree over that one.

★ ★ ★

THAT DOESN'T LEAVE much except giveaways and animal shows. The most notable event on the giveaway front was Garry Moore who gave away Durward Kirby to the winner of an essay contest on "Why I would like Durward Kirby for my very own." It's a nice idea but not new. A few years ago someone gave away Adolph Menjou. Both actors were returned. The average family simply can't assimilate actors without special training.

In the animal line, the greatest stride forward was taken by WPTZ in Philadelphia. There was a disc jockey show on that station which, lacking anything to televise, broadcast live puppies and kittens they borrowed from the Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. The listeners got so carried away by the combination of music and animals they'd call up and adopt them. Worked fine for everyone.

Try and Stop Me

A SLIGHT mishap marred the premiere of Menotti's new opera, "The Consul," at the famous La Scala in Milan. Tenor Andrew McKinley played a magician in the show, and was required to produce some doves from an empty bowl. The birds were delivered as per order at McKinley's apartment on the afternoon of the premiere, but when he came home from the dress rehearsal, he discovered that his resourceful Italian cook had broiled them for dinner.

A TV SHOW designed for kiddies offered a $50 prize for the best letter of less than 100 words explaining what the writer thereof liked best about the program. One honest kid who should have won—but didn't—wrote: "The reason I like your show is because as soon as it's over a better one comes on."

The Voice

Of Broadway

By Dorothy Kilgallen

Onion Has Role as Star of the Show

But Few Persons Know How to Fry or Boil One — Interesting Combinations

By Hoyt Alden

O. HENRY once wrote an excellent story, the plot of which was pegged on an onion. The point being that it is impossible to make a decent stew without an onion. The girl had the rest of the ingredients, the boy had the onion. Boy met girl.

Nearly everyone is ready and willing to give the onion its due as a member of the cast, and even as a featured player, but few people are willing to recognize the onion as the star of the show. For instance, down where I came from we set great store by boiled onions—known in the local dialect as "biled ingerns," but you seldom see them any more. A lot of people seem to think the onion, as a main dish, is somehow socially unacceptable, and they're too proud to admit they like a mess of biled ingrens. Open a cookbook and you'll find some fancy and some gosh-awful onion concoctions, but you have to turn to someone who really knows and appreciates good food before you see anything about how to boil an onion. So for the sake of other boiled onion lovers, I'm going to tell how to do it.

Get some good Spanish onions and trim them at top and bottom and then remove the dark skin. The next step—blanch them. This is done by putting them in a pan of cold water and then bringing the water to a boil. Throw this water away and rinse the onions. Then lay them in a panful of salted water which has just reached the boiling point. Boil them in the second water for two hours. Not quite so long, if they are small. If they are exceptionally large, they should be cut in half before blanching. You can tell with a fork when they're tender. Drain them well.

At this point you can make a choice. You can eat them with just butter and salt and pepper, which way they are delicious, or you can make a white sauce and pour over them, which is also good.

★ ★ ★

YOU see a lot of fried onions poured over steaks and other dishes, but not often do you see them fried as they should be.

As few people know how to properly fry an onion as know how to boil one. Nine times out of ten the onions have been allowed to burn a little on the outside, which gives them a bitter flavor, while they are still only half done on the inside.

First, peel and slice the onions. Put a little fat in the skillet and let it get good and hot. Then put the onions in and stir them and shake them around until all have a good coating of hot fat. Turn the heat down a little and cook them slowly, stirring them all the time while they are cooking. That way they will get delicately browned on the outside, and done on the inside.

Cook the green beans but don't drain them. Then using a small amount of oil or grease, saute some thinly sliced onions for about five minutes. Add them to the beans. The proportions are up to you, depending on how well you like onions.

In the meantime you have been steaming whole, small potatoes with the skins on. Until they're tender but not too soft. Remove the skins when done. Add the potatoes to the beans and onions, salt and pepper to taste, and then cover and cook gently for about five minutes, or until all is heated through and the flavors have had a chance to blend somewhat. Serve it hot.

ANOTHER delicious combination is sauteed cabbage and onion, which has the added advantage of being both quick and easy.

Wash the amount of cabbage you want to use. Cut out the core and then with a sharp knife cut it in slices about a quarter of an inch thick. For each slice of cabbage, heat a tablespoon of oil or grease and place therein a thinly sliced onion. Cook it gently for two or three minutes and then add the cabbage, without water. Mix it with the onion and cover the pan tightly and bring it to the steaming point over a high flame.

Now reduce the heat to medium and go on cooking it for about 15 minutes. Turn it several times during the process. Just before it is done, season it with salt and pepper and serve it hot.

★ ★ ★

WHILE we're combining things, we may as well combine some lettuce, peas and onions. Don't be nervous. You'll like it.

Put two cups of freshly shelled green peas in a sauce pan along with a cup of peeled button onions. Add a cup of water, a fourth teaspoon of salt, an eighth teaspoon of pepper, and one teaspoon of sugar.

Add two tablespoons of butter or margarine and a tablespoon of minced parsley. Shred a half pound of leaf lettuce and add that. Cover the pan and let it cook slowly for about an hour, or until the peas are tender. Then add a half cup of cream beaten up with one egg yolk and stir it until the mixture thickens. It should have the consistency of cream sauce. Correct the seasoning and serve hot.

★ ★ ★

TO French fry onions, cut Bermudas in quarter-inch slices, separate into rings and soak in milk for half an hour or longer. Buttermilk is even better. Then dip them in flour fry them in fat no less than 375 degrees until they're golden brown. Drain them in paper and salt them freely.

Idea for Shortie Slipcovers

By Elizabeth Hillyer

WHILE the sewing machine is whirring again to make summer curtains and draperies, add the stitch in time that saves nine for the upholstered furniture.

The furniture may not need full slipcovering, but there's bound to be a worn or soiled place here and there on backs and arms. With extra fabric from the new yardages for windows, make shortie slipcovers to refresh chairs and sofas where they need it most.

Shortie slipcovers, like complete cover-up slipcovers, must fit the furniture as sleekly as its original cover and seaming must be guided by the original seams.

MRS. S. H.—"We have knotty pine trim on the outside of our house and knotty pine cabinets in the kitchen. The pine is new and a pretty light color now but I am told that the wood will darken. Is there any way to prevent this?"

There is no way to prevent the darkening of the wood. However, aging enriches the color and you will like it as well.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. E. Z.—"I have a large living room with gray, green and white striped wallpaper, a green rug, rose colored draperies and mahogany end tables and television set. What color should I choose for new upholstered furniture?"

Deep rose would be the most effective color for the upholstered furniture, although gray can also be used and for small areas, small patterns in rose or green on gray. You might choose rose for the larger pieces and one of the suggested patterns for one or two smaller pieces.

Workable Plan

By Angelo Patri

"MOM, can you do anything to make Jimmie keep out of my room and let my work alone?" Ralph asked. "He's been in again and made such a mess that I'll have to stay up tonight to get my chemical experiment done again and write the report. He emptied every jar and spilled stuff. Please do something about it."

"I've done my best, Ralph. Last week I cut out his movies when he spoiled your hat. I told him we had to buy a new one and he would have to share the expense. I've forbidden him to go into your room. I'd like to teach him to attend to his own affairs, but it seems impossible."

★ ★ ★

"ALL RIGHT. You leave him to me and I'll attend to him."

"Don't hurt him. That would never do. He's only a little boy—"

"Don't worry. I will only hurt his feelings, if he has any."

Ralph went about the house picking up things that belonged to Jimmie. He took a bat out of the corner of the dining room, a ball from under the couch in the living room, a knife off the windowsill on the porch, a pair of skates out of the hall—loot belonging to Jimmie.

That afternoon Jimmie began scratching about the house and asking, "Who took my bat? Anybody see my bat? I can't find my bat. Ma-ma-a, where's my bat?"

"I don't know a thing about it. If you had put it in the rack in the garage where it belongs you would have been able to find it."

"I don't know where I put it. Somebody took it, that's all. Ralph, you took my bat, didn't you? You give it to me. The fellows are all waiting on the lot."

★ ★ ★

"YES, I TOOK IT. Listen. You go into my shop and clean up the mess you made for me and I'll talk bat to you."

"I won't. The fellows are all waiting for me. I can't wait. Ma, make him give it to me."

"You brought this on yourself," Mom said. "I'm keeping out of it. Better do as Ralph says."

"Ralph can't go to the dance tonight and his friends will be waiting, too. You'd better make the best of it, especially when you are to blame."

It took Jimmie a few playtimes to win back his belongings but after he had cleaned up his score he was very careful about causing trouble for Ralph. Every once in a while he remembered also to put his belongings in the right place.

"It wouldn't have worked if I had done it," said mother in telling father about it, "but when Ralph did it, he felt it. I couldn't have been as impersonal as Ralph about it. His heart didn't melt, and he wasn't excited. He just held on. It did Jimmie the world of good."

How It Started

By Jean Newton

Calling Your Friend a "Chum."

"THE remains of menhaden, after the oil has been pressed out," is one definition of the word "chum!" Menhaden is the American-Indian name for a salt-water fish, akin to shad, which is valued by industry for its oil and as a fertilizer. But this does not tell us what we want to know about "chum," namely how it came to be another word for "friend"—a term implying a special kind of friend, the confidante, the bosom companion.

"Chum" in this popular sense, eludes pinning down as to its origin. The conjecture has long been that it was an abbreviation of "chamber-fellow" or "chamber-mate," but there is no historical or factual evidence of this, nothing to sustain the idea. However, its first appearance in black and white is cited as Thomas Creech's dedication of his book "To My Chum, Mr. Hoody of Wadham College."

In the history of "chum" we do not seem to be able to get away from the fish. "Chum" as fish chopped up to make bait for catching other fish, "chum" as fish-fertilizer, or rather the part of the fish used as fertilizer.

In this connection, the term seems to be identified with the northeastern coast of the United States, where it formerly saw considerable usage. An example would be this quotation from the Maine Board of Agriculture's reports, an item from the middle of the last century: "Pogies will be good for the chum and not for the oil."

Tasty Tricks

To keep eggs from popping and sputtering in the frying pan, sprinkle a very little bit of flour in the fat—before putting the eggs in.

Secrets of Charm

A Perky Conversation Piece

THE models have a trick that adds a perky fresh touch to a costume—just the kind of touch that means so much to a gal with a big weekend on her calendar. It's something that makes a conversation piece; sparks your ego because you made it yourself; and it will give a bright new accent to any costume!

It's about as lovely and real-looking a carnation as ever you looked upon—and you fashion it out of these simple materials you can find around almost any house: a piece of standard, white cleansing tissue, near square in shape and of the two-ply kind, a spool of very thin wire, a safety pin and a lipstick.

1. Place the tissue on a table so that the grain runs from left to right and fold it toward you in half. 2. By working from left to right accordion pleat the entire length in neat, sharp, half-inch folds. The finished effect should be that of a tightly closed fan.

3. Open the safety pin, place it in the center of the top fold and loop your wire tightly around both tissue and top frame of the pin.

4. Pink the ends by nipping them with your fingernails. Do not use pinking shears or they will not produce the desired ragged, irregular edge, characteristic of a carnation.

5. Carefully separate each layer of tissue. At this point, petals begin to take shape. 6. With the thumbs, flatten the base of the flower. 7. Lightly brush the petal tips with lipstick.

TO PERK UP YOUR WEEKEND COSTUMES, MAKE YOURSELF THIS ENCHANTING ACCESSORY.

★ ★ ★

PRESTO, YOU HAVE a fresh, delightful costume accessory; One on the lapel of a summer suit is charming. Several bunched together make an enchanting top-knot or corsage for a party frock. Add narrow red, white and blue streamers if it's patriotism you wish to show. Or add streamers to match your frock. If you really want to fool your public, scent your posies with a carnation cologne and you'll have a spicy aura to compliment your piquant looks!

Do as Model Ann Holt does and make a batch at a sitting. Stew them away and you'll always have a model touch ready for making a model appearance!

Corn Pancakes

Ingredients: One egg, one-half cup milk, two tablespoons butter or margarine (melted), one tablespoon sugar, one one-pound can cream style corn, one cup pancake mix.

Method: Beat egg and milk until combined; stir in melted butter, sugar and corn. Add pancake mix, stirring only until mixed. Drop from mixing spoon on a hot lightly greased griddle, making pancakes about three inches in diameter. Bake to golden brown, turning only once. Serve with bacon curls and maple syrup. Makes about 18 pancakes.

Note: To substitute whole kernel for the cream style corn in this recipe, thoroughly drain a one-pound can of whole kernel corn. Measure one-half cup of the corn liquid and mix with the milk and the drained corn.

Watch your textures when you are planning a meal. Never serve a creamed meat or fish dish with a creamed vegetable. Don't serve a vegetable with a sauce when pot roast with gravy is the main course.

Brain Game

3. How many bells on shipboard indicate 4 p.m.

4. A major general wears how many stars?

5. Adam was how old when he died?

6. Joseph was sold to the Ishmaelites for how many pieces of silver?

7. How many reindeer did St. Nick drive in Moore's famous poem?

8. A hexagon has how many sides?

ANSWERS.

Being Brief

By Christopher Billopp

"BE BRIEF" is a popular request at a meeting. To be brief a person cannot hem and haw so as to hold the floor while thinking of something new to say.

He cannot be reminded of a good story he has recently heard. He cannot be granted time to describe the way things were done in the old days.

He cannot picture what the neighborhood looked like when he first arrived. No chance is allowed him to outline the plot of a movie he has seen or a good book he has read.

A person who is being brief cannot pass on interesting news, as, for example, an engagement to be announced, the expected arrival of an offspring to a young married couple or the details of an operation recently performed.

In being brief a person must express his arguments in a terse fashion. He cannot stray off into vivid illustrations to explain what he means. He is denied the privilege of emphasizing a good point by repeating it several times.

A person who is being brief must keep an eye on the time. He must watch the presiding officer to see if he is about to intervene. He must observe his audience so as to detect the first sign of restlessness.

When he states that he is going to say just one more thing before he sits down he must limit himself to just one thing. He cannot stretch that one thing out to cover five extra minutes or more.

The virtue of being brief is that business is completed in short order and the meeting can be closed and everybody get home in good time. That is, if those who have asked everybody to be brief have not made the request so that the road will be clear for them to do all the talking.

Martha Carr's OPINION

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

Dear Martha:

CAN you please advise a relative that marriage is a 50-50 proposition? She has the whole family in a constant uproar with her whining and complaining. She never cleans the house, never washes dishes. All she does is look at television or go out. No matter what we advise her when she calls, she just yaks for hours about her wonderful daughter and poor husband. She expects the girl to work all day in an office, then come home and wash dishes and clean the house. Her husband has done these things for years but now his work demands most of his time.

SINCERELY WORRIED.

Of course, marriage is a 50-50 proposition, and anyone who doesn't accept that fact—cheerfully, I might add—is unfair to his or her partner. Unless this relative is physically handicapped, there is no reason for her not to accept the full responsibility of running the household. Her husband and daughter could certainly help, but if they work all day while she remains at home, it is unfair of her to ask them to take over her share of the housework. Few folks like to wash dishes or scrub floors, but if we are to live in comfort and cleanliness, the tasks simply have to be done. To shirk them is a symptom of laziness, and laziness is a mighty unattractive quality when there is work to be done. Her husband and daughter should make her realize this by insisting that she take over her share of the responsibility.

Dear Martha:

I GO STEADY with a 16-year-old boy whom I am now wondering about. Saturday he called and told me he had to go to his uncle's house so he couldn't see me that night. I am 14 and don't get to go out to see him every night because I go to school. I was told today that he was at another girl's house so he could beat up a girl who had jilted him before he met me. He has lied to me before and he says he still loves me. Can I believe him or should I break off with him? I like him a lot.

A READER.

Wait a minute, chum! Did I read correctly that this boy wanted to "beat up" a girl who had jilted him? What kind of a brute is he, anyway? My advice to you is to drop him and drop him now if you know the "beating" is a fact. His habit of lying to you is bad enough, but a boy who threatens a girl is a good one to stay away from. What's to keep you from getting the same treatment?

The Living Legend of Missouri U.

By Clarissa Start

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 28.

FOR many years, freshmen students arriving here at the University of Missouri, have sent home reports of their first impressions of campus life. Usually one paragraph reads like this:

"There's a history prof here who's really an oddity. His name's Wrench and they call him Monkey Wrench. He's got a beard and long hair and he wears a hair net and rides a bicycle. I hear he got arrested once for mowing the lawn in his underwear and I can believe it. Some character — but they say he's a good guy."

No longer will students be able to write that letter home. At the end of this semester, Prof. Jesse E. (Monkey) Wrench, who has reached the age of 70, will retire. He won't be gone completely, of course. He'll still be around town for the pep rallies, the games, and the dances. And, most important, he'll remain as a permanent memory to thousands of students long after they've forgotten the names of more conservative academic leaders who helped shape their lives.

Old grads will be happy to learn that the most colorful character on campus has not faded in recent years. Just this past semester, the Ag School sponsored a pep rally to boost lagging school spirit, and invited Wrench to be the guest speaker.

"It was held in front of Memorial Tower," one student described it, "and things were going along kind of slow until Jesse got up and started cussin' and rarin' around. He looked over at the lights in the library building and said: 'The trouble with this school is that there are too many people over there who ought to be over here. If they won't come to us, we'll go to them.' And with that, he started a snake dance down the street, up the steps, and right through the library. There wasn't much the authorities could do about it either."

Spontaneous demonstrations of youthful high spirits always have been dear to the heart of Jesse Wrench, but probably none was more welcome than the one on Tuesday night, May 19, when 500 students gathered in front of the same Memorial Tower, marched past the White Campus, out University street to the outskirts of town where the road narrows, and gathered on his front lawn to pay honor to him.

The event, which had been publicized as much as you can publicize a surprise party, was scheduled to begin at 9 p.m. Some of the less stalwart souls (this one included) drove out in advance of the march, and by 9:10 cars lined both sides of the street near the big stucco house at 1815 University street. At 9:15, stealthy figures could be observed, carrying light stands, cameras, wiring equipment. Some of them skulked around the back of the house where Mrs. Wrench, who was in on the secret, had thoughtfully dropped some extension cords out the window.

At 9:30 band music could be heard in the distance along with shouts of "We want Jesse," and a few minutes later, through the darkness emerged a formation which any good history student would have described as a phalanx.

★ ★ ★

SOMEONE switch on the lights, the students circled the lawn, and the shaggy haired, white bearded professor was brought out, squinting in the glare but laughing as he took in the situation. True to form, he made a speech.

"A few days ago when the legislature passed a resolution honoring me," he said, "I thought all I could do was find a hole, crawl into it and pull the hole after me . . . Now this had to happen.

"Why you wanted to come all this way to see a poor, old long-whiskered gent who's never done anything except have fun for 42 years I don't know. It has been fun, too; probably more fun than you'll have in your entire lives. It's the biggest game in the world, to try to slip something into the heads of university students. When I realize how long it's been, it makes me feel funny because it doesn't seem long at all.

"I saw a picture the other day, a picture of an engine that's being put in a museum down in St. Louis—the Dela-Lackawanna No. Four. I rode behind that engine. They're putting the things that served me when I was younger into a museum so I guess it's time I went into the museum, too." (Loud cries of "No-No.")

He assured them he wouldn't be leaving Columbia. He'd like to move to a warm, sinus-free climate, but the cost of living in resort spots had canceled that. And, characteristically, he left them laughing with, "I realize it's getting close to exam time so you'd better not stay out too late."

JESSE E. WRENCH LOADED DOWN WITH GIFTS HE RECEIVED AT A RECENT SURPRISE MASS DEMONSTRATION. WITH THE ECCENTRIC PROFESSOR ARE MRS. WRENCH AND STUDENT GOVERNMENT PRESIDENT, WILLIAM BRADSHAW.

After the standing ovation, Willim "Bud" Bradshaw, president of the Student Government Association, stepped to the microphone to introduce those who wanted to pay tribute to "one of the finest teachers we've ever had on campus."

One by one, the earnest crewcut young men read their citations and gave their gifts. Mystical Seven, the Camera Club (which had dummied his portrait into a Life magazine cover), Omicron Delta Kappa, Q.E.B.H., Inter-fraternity Council, Men's Residence Hall Association, Alpha Phi Omega, the Missouri Archeological Society, which described him as being "terrific with a shovel."

Second to last was a pretty girl from A.W.S., women's organization, who gave him a small package.

"Panties?" he quipped as he opened it.

It was a gold watch chain and with it went the gift purchased by student donations, a gold watch. Wrench admitted that for once he was just about speechless.

"It's unbelievable that you'd do so much for an ordinary old guy," he said. "One who has enjoyed life and believed the only way to enjoy it was to be around boys and girls, share their joys and troubles and try to help them see what men and women should be."

★ ★ ★

THE cheer-leaders went into action and J-E-S-S-E resounded over the hills to the Hinkson. Then Jesse led a yell and the singing of "Old Missouri," the band started to play, someone shouted, "Goodnight, Jesse," and the students started down the street.

Some of his friends who'd stopped by went up to congratulate him and ask if he'd really been surprised. Hadn't suspected a thing, he assured them, not until the hollering started. Several students lingered and followed him into the house. There's no screen in the porch door and they stepped nonchalantly through without unhooking it. Inside are comfortable chairs, shelves of books, stacks of magazines, Indian and Oriental hangings, the house of a professor of history.

Jesse Wrench didn't start out to be a professor. He'd thought of becoming a Methodist minister, but he went from his Afton (N.Y.) home to Cornell University and got sidetracked by an interest in archeology. With another student and a professor, he visited Palestine, a trip that was enlivened by their capture by a band of Arabs. Back home he went to Wisconsin U. for further history study, took another archeological jaunt to Turkey (he was arrested and shot at on this trip), then returned to the comparative calm of teaching. In 1911, he came to Missouri. Somewhere along the line he worked on a Ph.D. degree but got balky over thesis regulations and never completed it. He expects to be "the last individual to retire from a full professorship with only an A.B."

Mrs. Wrench has been quoted as saying that when they first came to Columbia, they had to make a great decision, "whether to know the students or the faculty." They chose to know the students. Wrench himself admits that a professor known as "Daddy" Defoe (he's forgotten his other name), a friend of the students who was "always bailing them out of jail" inspired him to carry on that kind of informal friendship with them.

College students, he observed, have remained pretty much the same, year in and year out. The only change he's noticed is that "the older you get, the younger they look."

All the stock stories about him still go on, he said, just as stories follow all eccentric professors.

"When I was younger they used to tell about the professor who burned down another professor's barn," he chuckled. "They don't have barns any more so that story's out."

"Never in my life have I mowed a lawn in my b.v.d.s," he snorted. "That story was fictitious fantasy, nurtured by warped minds. If they had looked closer they would have seen that I was wearing shorts."

The stories of his police record similarly are based on a $1 fine in Michigan, an 80-cent fine in Turkey and a parking ticket in Columbia.

As for his attire, he said: "My attire is regulated by my comfort. I wear my hair long in back to compensate for the lack of it on top. I wear a hairnet in the summer and a derby in the winter. Comfortable, economic, not nutty at all."

He no longer wears the golf knickers he once wore and has given up his bicycle for a car in recent years. He still has been known to say, "God, sister, you're dumb" to coeds.

He still goes through his cigarette rolling ritual, too. About four minutes before class is over, he begins, slowly and deliberately, to roll a cigarette with one hand. Just as the bell rings, he completes it, puts it in his mouth, and strikes a match. Very few students take notes those last four minutes.

"He covers 5000 years of history and never uses a note," one student said admiringly. "Students try to catch him, trip him up, but they never succeed."

"Treat 'em like grown-ups but remember they're kids," always has been his philosophy of teaching, and the university has approved his teaching sufficiently that authorities have overlooked his unconventionality.

"I'd like to go on record," he said, "as stating that I've never in my life been criticized by university authorities. I've held radical ideas and didn't keep 'em to myself either, but I've never been disciplined for them."

"Wouldn't you say 'liberal' ideas?" his wife corrected gently. "After all, none of your ideas were too crazy."

"Well, unpopular maybe," he conceded. "That's what a student told me once in a letter criticizing me."

Wrench doesn't expect to do any traveling in retirement because he's seen all the places he wants to see, doesn't expect to write as he's written two books already. He'll probably keep on chaperoning dances, a faithful activity for which he never accepts pay, and which has grown to a full-time hobby. Next to students, he loves study, and is a prodigious reader. Each week, he trots into the Missouri Book Store, grabs an armload of books and rushes out, calling over his shoulder, "Charge 'em to me, Fred."

★ ★ ★

HE likes to go to picture shows. He looks back somewhat wistfully on the days when students crashed the shows after a big game. He thinks the college has lost too much of its color and hell-raising atmosphere.

"We lost our tradition during the war," he sighed. "We didn't have the men students, didn't have enough to make up a corporal of the guard one year. Then, too, those who were here were in service and had to live under discipline. When the boys came back, they were married and had children. Couldn't go rarin' around; they had to tend the baby. It's time we got our old school spirit back."

Student scrapes and pranks never bothered Wrench and he'd gotten many a student out of a mess. Student president Bud Bradshaw likes to tell one story in particular.

"There was a student government president who was in law school and played in a dance band," he related. "A full schedule, in other words. Then, his last semester he got an eye injury which put him in the hospital. He had to drop one of his classes and when it came time to graduate, he lacked one honor point of having enough to get his degree. (M.U. gives additional points for E and S grades and students with insufficient hours make up points on grades.) He went to the president and the dean but they both said too bad, he'd have to come back the next year.

"So he went to Wrench and asked what to do. His mother had made plans to come to commencement and she'd be so disappointed. He came from a small town and was the first boy from the town ever to be student president. How would it look if he didn't graduate? "Wrench thought a while. Then he said, 'Remember that history class of mine you took two years ago? It seems to me you deserved an S instead of an M. I'll have to check my records. Well, it turned out the grade had been an S. Wrench changed it officially on the records. And the boy graduated with half a point to spare."

Bud Bradshaw, son of Jean Paul Bradshaw, prominent Lebanon (Mo.) lawyer and once candidate for governor, thinks he knows better than most people how grateful the student was.

"I guess you'd say I inherited my feelings for Jesse," he says. "That student was my father."

Contract Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

AFTER partners have agreed on a trump suit, the mention by either one of a new suit carries a message of extra strength. The new suit may be "honest" in regard to length, or it may be a cue bid to indicate control—this does not matter; the extra-strength implication is there in either case.

The fact that this is so must always be borne in mind by players who feel tempted to bid as South did in the following hand.

South, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

	♠KQJ7 ♥A64 ♦K9842 ♣6
♠8 ♥QJ92 ♦76 ♣AQJ542	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠543 ♥5 ♦QJ10 ♣K10987
	♠A10962 ♥K10873 ♦A53 ♣...

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	2♣	3♠	4♣
4♥	5♣	5♥	6♠
Pass	Pass	6♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

There was no real play for the six-spade contract—only the remote chance that one defender had the Q-J of hearts unguarded—and South ended up with only 11 tricks.

This outcome was directly attributable to South's unwarranted bid of four hearts over East's four clubs. North, an expert, undoubtedly would have chosen to double six clubs instead of slamming if South had not made his heart bid.

Spades had already been agreed on by virtue of North's jump raise, hence the only justification for the heart bid from North's point of view was that South had aspirations beyond game. Obviously, since South had opened the bidding on the barest of top-card values, he had no right to acquire such ambition; the very most he could afford, over East's four clubs, was to bid four spades. If South had done just that, North would not have had the shadow of a right to continue to a slam on his own.

It is such subtle points as this that make the distinction between expert and good-average players.

Temporary Changes

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

EVERY young mother finds so many distractions in her daily life that it is hard to concentrate on any job for a long time. Indeed, sociologist David Snedden used to tell his students that a young mother should not be expected to be orderly, efficient and well-organized—it would be entirely unnatural.

Mrs. P., a very young mother, is disturbed by her experience: "I had my first baby just six weeks ago," she writes, "and my physician says I'm in perfect shape—but I'm not, Dr. Popenoe, I'm not. I'm in bad shape, emotionally, and I'm worried for fear that my husband will think I'm losing my mind, because I act so unreasonably a lot of the time. I fly off the handle without any excuse and am making my husband miserable. Can you suggest any book I could read to help me?"

★ ★ ★

TIME IS THE BEST CURE, Mrs. P.—since your physician says you are O.K. Husbands and wives alike should expect some temporary changes in a woman's life after childbirth.

One physician, Dr. Howard L. Eder, commented on them in the Archives of Pediatrics, suggesting that four changes were particularly worth noting, as likely to occur:

The young mother becomes more emotional or perhaps more accurately, loses some of her normal emotional control. The more emotional she has been before pregnancy, the more emotional she is likely to be after pregnancy. She may burst into tears "just because she's so happy." No use to take it personally.

The young mother becomes more irritable. She makes an an issue out of some trivial happening; resents advice or kindness proferred by her mother-in-law; complains about the physician or the milkman; is disturbed by the slamming of a door.

The young mother becomes more apprehensive. Trifling things about the baby assume major importance. She's sure something dreadful is going to happen.

The young mother becomes more forgetful. She will lay her thimble down and have no recollection where she put it.

★ ★ ★

SOME MOTHERS SHOW these symptoms in severe form; others not at all. In most instances the symptoms will disappear by the time the baby is three or four months old.

But you are going through a more or less normal phase that millions of other mothers have passed through, Mrs. P. If you remember this, you'll understand yourself better and worry about yourself less.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

A MOTHER writes me: "My daughter is going to Japan to be married. Her fiance is already there on military duty. I would like to give a large reception before she leaves for our relatives and friends, to take the place of the one we would have given had she been married here. Would such a reception be proper, and if so, how should the invitations be worded? Also, could there be a wedding cake?"

You can, of course, give her a "send off" party of any size you choose, but you should wait until she is married and her husband and she can be present before giving her any form of wedding reception.

DEAR MRS. POST: I have a lovely pair of five-branched sterling silver candelabra which I keep on the sideboard in the dining room when not in use. Should they be kept empty, filled with fresh candles, or left with the partially burned candles?

Answer: They should always have fresh candles in them when standing unlit. These may, however, be taken out and exchanged for the ones you are burning when lighted for your evening meal.

★ ★ ★

DEAR MRS. POST: When rising from the table, is one supposed to push the chair back where one found it?

Answer: Usually you leave it where it is—unless it might be in someone's way.

Fix It Yourself

By Hubbard Cobb

ONE of the things that keeps a lot of us indoors during the warm weather is the fact that once we go outdoors we have to give up the convenience of electricity which is a hard thing to give up these days.

One way to get around this little headache is to install some outdoor electrical outlets so that you can use your radio, power tools and other appliances.

If you've ever done any inside electrical wiring you won't have too much trouble with outdoor work as long as you use fittings that are approved for exterior work.

The wires to the outlet should be buried underground where they will be out of harm's way and where they won't spoil the appearance of your grounds or yard.

You can get a plastic covered underground cable for this job that is not expensive and will last for many a year. Ordinary rubber covered wire should not be used for in time the rubber will rot and the entire cable will have to be replaced.

You must also be sure to use a weatherproof outlet for these are designed in such a way that there is little if any chance of moisture getting inside to cause a short circuit.

The cable can be tapped into the house supply at any convenient outlet and then passed through the outside wall or basement foundation, metal pipe set in the foundation wall or exterior wall.

From here the cable goes underground until it is brought up to be connected to the weatherproof outlet.

Junior League Play Day at Country Club

THE St. Louis Junior League yesterday voted to extend its educational program, planned a new money-raising scheme to provide the working capital, and heard reports not only of its own accomplishments for a year but a resume of the conference of Association of Junior Leagues of America held recently in Coronado, Calif. The occasion was the annual meeting and play day held at the St. Louis Country Club.

Several hundred members, both active and sustaining, crowded the dining rooms and porches for a buffet luncheon before the business session. As a matter of fact, sports and card-minded members were out early for the tennis, golf, bridge and canasta tournaments which customarily precede the formalities.

Mrs. Robert Neill Jr., retiring president, presided, and an enthusiastic audience agreed unanimously to create a Junior League Children's Museum in the Missouri Historical Society as next year's project. A ground floor room in the west wing of the Jefferson Memorial is available for the museum in which there will be classes in music, folk dancing and crafts, and where history will be taught to school children with the use of museum objects which help make history. In the words of Charles Van Ravenswaay, director of the society, "The project will make children appreciate things which make the city and country great and will feel a personal relationship to this common heritage." More than 10,000 children visited the historical society from last September to April of this year.

The Junior League will appropriate funds with which to refurbish the room, now a storage place, and provide cases to house historical objects, tables for the children and attractive window coverings. League volunteers will assist the two paid instructors now on duty.

The league's newest fund-raising scheme is a three-day carnival—a Junior League Fair—to be held next May at a designated spot in St. Louis county. All sorts of entertainment, including square dancing, children's theater, refreshment stands, ferris wheels, pony rides and merry-go-rounds usually associated with such affairs, will be available according to Mrs. Robert F. Schlafly, who reported for the committee.

The speaker provoked long applause and loud laughter with her suggestion of quilt, baby sitting and jelly booths to be manned by sustaining members, who go into that category at the age of 40.

* * *

PROBABLY the most important announcement on the program was to the effect that the Forest Park Children's Center, a home for emotionally disturbed children which the league has operated for eight years, has become a Community Chest Agency and henceforth will receive only partial league support. The sale of Christmas trees, held in Clayton for several years, has been abandoned.

Mrs. Francis J. Pollnow Jr., newly elected president, reported on the national conference, attended by 500 delegates from the United States, Mexico and Canada. After quoting an official who said "In the Junior League IQ combines with I Will," Mrs. Pollnow told of the organization's efforts toward "How to Build a Better World," based the conference theme.

In her own report Mrs. Neill quoted figures which showed a profit of $9500 profit from the tea room, a $2795 profit from the Christmas tree sale and a $570 balance provided by professional members, and the disposition of the funds. She cited the fact that 548 league members work on 70 community boards and 150 are volunteers in agencies and hospitals.

Mrs. Kevin C. Morrin, a former president, recited a tribute, in poetry, to Mrs. Neill for her efforts as president and presented her with an inscribed gold bangle for a bracelet.

Mrs. Timothy Putnam and Mrs. Sanford McDonnell won the tennis tournament; Mrs. Edwin McC. Johnston and Mrs. Robert C. Green, bridge; Mrs. Robert K. Zelle and Mrs. James T. Chamness, canasta, and Mrs. Paul Goessling and Mrs. Horace B. Pomeroy Jr., golf.

The project committee, headed by Mrs. David Wells, who made the report, was composed of Mrs. Clarkson Carpenter Jr., Mrs. Neill, Mrs. B. B. Culver Jr., Mrs. Frank M. Mayfield, Miss Cynthia Hayward, Mrs. Donald Meyer, Mrs. Orrin S. Wightman Jr., Mrs. Gaylord Burke, Mrs. Pollnow and Mrs. Edson B. Cooke III, and Miss Elizabeth Smiley.

Mrs. F. A. Mesker, Mrs. K. M. Hickey To Head Group

THE Board of Trustees of the Missouri Historical Society announces the formation of a Women's Association under the chairmanship of Mrs. Francis A. Mesker, with Mrs. K. Myron Hickey as co-chairman. The newly-formed group, concerned with developing the year-round program of activities of the society, will have its initial meeting this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the east wing of Jefferson Memorial. Afterward the women will attend a preview of the Louisiana Purchase Exhibit in the Martin Lammert Gallery and remain for tea.

Housing Plan Bad News to Coney Island

By Harry Wilensky

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

NEW YORK, May 28.

THE hand of progress has cast a shadow over Coney Island.

Outsiders may not realize this, for the world-famous resort seems to be packing 'em in as usual. The beach is thronged and the boardwalk is crowded. In the amusement area the barkers are barking, the roller coasters are roaring their defiance of the law of gravity, the palaces of fun are evoking hilarious shrieks, the hot dogs are sizzling and the cash registers are playing a merry tune.

But the concessionaires, who can see beyond the hoopla, are unhappy. They consider the future definitely not bright. In fact, some are wondering if they have any future at all.

Park Commissioner Robert Moses has proposed that most of Coney Island be rezoned so that it may become a predominantly residential area. He believes that new housing projects provide the keynote for future development here, and the sprawling amusement area is bound to shrink. As the less popular rides and the unprofitable stands shut down, he suggests, they should be replaced by housing, playgrounds and stores.

* * *

HIS IDEA IS to speed the transition by changing the present unrestricted and business zones to a mixture of residential, retail and business classifications.

The City Planning Commission not only has approved the rezoning, but proposes that a waterfront tract covering three square blocks be taken over for a city-financed housing project to stimulate residential development and encourage private construction. The Coney Island Houses, a group of tall apartment buildings accommodating about 420 low-income families, would replace a cluster of nondescript buildings along the boardwalk.

* * *

THE DAY AFTER the rezoning plan was made public, directors of the Coney Island Chamber of Commerce held a council of war in the Clam Bar on Surf avenue. They voted to protest against changing the south side of the boardwalk with its amusements from a business to a residential area, contending that this would have a disastrous effect on property values on the north side.

Whether they can stem the tide of change remains to be seen. The final decision rests with the Board of Estimate, which has 30 days to make up its mind.

This is a long-range plan, says Moses; the effect will not be immediate, but over the years Coney Island will be "upgraded."

To which the concessionaires plaintively retort:

"Who wants to be upgraded?"

My Day

Invitation to Visit Korea Is Declined

By Eleanor Roosevelt

TOKYO.

I VISITED our military hospital Wednesday morning and had the good luck to see the chief surgeon for this area, Maj. Gen. William Shambora.

There are three different hospitals and, according to their needs, the men who have to be sent out of Korea are sent to one of these three.

I had so little time that they had arranged to have me speak with certain patients whom they had picked. This was done so that the same patients would not always get a chance to talk to the visitors coming to the hospital.

* * *

I HAVE BEEN invited by President Syngman Rhee to go to Korea. Much as I would like to see some of our soldiers there and some of the rehabilitation work that is being done by the United Nations, I felt that it would complicate too much the plans made by the committee here for my time in Japan, if I accepted President Rhee's invitation.

Quite truthfully, had it been an invitation to have a look at our own men, I would have found it harder to refuse, but I realize that visits to the Army in Korea just at the present time must be pretty difficult to arrange.

* * *

I WAS GRIEVED to read in the paper here that the Reds had turned down the United Nations latest offer on prisoners of war before the next meeting but, as long as there is to be a meeting, I hope that something may still come of it which will bring us an armistice.

* * *

FROM NOON until 2 o'clock on Monday I had a most interesting meeting in the Ministry of Labor during which some of the women and men who head such bureaus as women in industry, improvement of rural life, child welfare, conditions of labor for minors, etc., reported on their work. Much of what is set up here bears the stamp of American organization but, since it has been more or less imposed, getting it actually to work and fit into Japanese conditions must be quite a complicated problem.

There was a long discussion on the subject of children of mixed blood and on prostitutes. These age-old problems come to light wherever there are armies of occupation and they are never easy of solution.

The Dean Speaks Up

Wood Ticks in Dog's Life

By Adele Starbird

THESE hot sticky days I examine my boxer inch by inch, separating its toes, and the pads under its paws, looking into its ears. So far I haven't found a wood tick, but that is no reason for relaxing vigilance.

Dean Starbird

The wood tick is undoubtedly the most revolting subject I could choose to write about. That is why I do choose it. Many people are careless about examining their pets, not realizing that both they and their pets are hosts to a menacing parasite.

A family of my acquaintance closed their house and went off for an extended vacation, taking their dog with them. When they returned in the fall, their house was infested with wood ticks. The family had to move out and have the whole place renovated—fresh paint, new wallpaper throughout.

* * *

FIVE SUMMERS AGO a young English bulldog was given to me. Tory had a peculiar affinity for wood ticks; I had to groom him several times a day. We developed a routine. My equipment was a pair of tweezers, a box of matches, and a metal porringer; the only known way of killing a tick is by burning it. Tory seemed to enjoy the attention. As soon as Tory entered the house, it ran to the walnut lounge, covered by a sheet, which was the scene of our operations, and looked at me expectantly. Nobody will believe this, but I have removed as many as 37 ticks at one sitting.

I used to think, as I went about the grim business, of Albert Schweitzer's feeling which he calls "Reverence for Life," and which prevents him from destroying any form of life. While I have felt some compunction when killing spiders or flies, I must admit that the warfare of that summer became a sadistic obsession — I was wholly lacking in reverence for life.

A friend brought me a can of powder which was supposed to be a repellent. The thing repelled was Tory, hiding under the bed and snarling at me whenever I appeared with the can.

What puzzled me was the fact that Tory's predecessor, also a bulldog, rolled in exactly the same bushes summer after summer with complete immunity. And my boxer has picked up only two ticks in as many summers.

* * *

BUT TO RETURN to my poor Tory. In August I had put him in a kennel while I went off to attend a conference for a few days. I found the housekeeper very excited when I returned; a lively colony of ticks had got started under my bed; in spite of all my care, one must have dropped off Tory.

There were other reasons why I had to give Tory away that fall, so that I shall never know whether another summer would have been a duplication of the first. But I give you this as a household hint: go over your pets after every walk, every sortie.

And next time I promise to write about roses or starlight, something fragrant, remote or romantic.

Do you have a springtime pot of chives on your kitchen shelf? Use the minced chives as a savory seasoning for mashed potatoes. Add them to cream cheese softened with mayonnaise for a cracker or sandwich spread. Sprinkle them over bowls of tomato soup. Add them to hot cooked buttered rice and serve with meat or fish.

Citrus-Roquefort Salad

Ingredients: One small onion, one small green pepper, one grapefruit, one large orange, one-quarter cup firmly packed Roquefort cheese (at room temperature), four tablespoons olive oil, one tablespoon tarragon vinegar, salt, paprika, lettuce.

Method: Slice onion into thin rounds; separate into rings; place rings in cold water. Remove stem and seeds from pepper and slice into thin rings and put in cold water with onion. Peel grapefruit and orange so no white membrane remains; cut segments away from dividing membranes. Mash Roquefort in a small bowl with spoon; gradually blend in oil, then vinegar. Taste before adding salt. Stir in a dash of paprika. Arrange lettuce on salad plates; fill with grapefruit and orange sections; top with drained onion and green pepper rings. Beat the ring well with fork and dribble over salads. Makes four servings.

When painting a room it's a good idea to start at a window so that as you paint you will be moving away from the light. In this way it's easier to see at once if you've missed any spots and to catch them before the paint has begun to set.

BOOKS FOR THE BARON

by Anthony Morton

CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE

MANNERING was on the sixth book, and 20 minutes must have passed. But he had these papers. It was over—except for the chance of losing his own life and the risk that Mary would never be found. This man wasn't as dangerous as Fenner. Higby couldn't stop talking.

"And then Fenner and I saw a way of getting what we wanted without taking the books out—not easy to get those books; you can't slip them under your coat. We brought Wilberforce back at night. I let him in. We had the list of books, but knew only some had the papers—we didn't know which ones. Wilberforce worked on some of the books, cut them to try to find if the papers were hidden there. He found one. Then he got restive, and wanted more money than we were paying him. Started talking about giving us away. We couldn't risk a traitor, could we, Mannering? He went to the study one night, to get one of the books which was there, and tried to throw his weight about. So I knocked him out, put him on the rug and cut his throat. Then that girl—"

"Cut that out," said Higby harshly. "You know what happened. Fenner and one of the other boys was with me. We got the body and the bloodstained rug away, and we took the books, too. I thought Gloria might have seen me, and so I had another go at her, using the dog. Pity you weren't driving a little faster."

"You wasted your time," said Mannering. "But why did you kidnap Mary, when—"

"You thought it was a case of mistaken identity, didn't you?" Higby laughed again. "Your mistake. We had to get rid of anyone who'd examined those books, in case they discovered where the secret was. First the girl, and then Longley. I hoped I'd killed Longley."

"You haven't a strong right arm."

"I was in a hurry," growled Higby. "Then I went out, and that dog was waiting in the thicket. He wasn't easy to control, and Abel was near. So I killed him. I never did like the brute."

"You took a lot of chances."

* * *

HIGBY said: "You forced the pace too much. But the prize was worth it. When I've got those papers, Mannering, I've got something worth a million! Fenner can get that any time he wants—he might find a higher bidder. Know what's in them?"

"Does it matter? Haven't you gloated enough?"

"Nothing like enough," sneered Higby. "I like gloating over your type—the way I gloated over Lithom when I told him who I was. And the way I gloated over my dear mother. And my precious sister. Those papers, Mannering, contain priceless secrets which the great Earl of Lithom was allowed to have in his possession when he was this country's accredited representative to certain nations. Proper swine, Lithom, wasn't he: He thought that one day he might find these secrets useful. Armament secrets. Atomic bomb information. Bacteria warfare details—oh, a fine lot, carefully and cleverly collected by the great earl, and put in the backs of those books. But he made a mistake. He trusted a secretary who knew a lot about book binding, and Fenner got the secretary and extorted a confession. So he learned the titles of some of the books and where the papers were hidden. Beginning to see, Mannering?"

Mannering said: "Yes, I see." He put aside another book—the second with a slip of paper in, and this time Higby saw it.

Mannering smiled faintly and gave him the paper.

"What the hurry? Fenner's had the books since Wilberforce died, he had plenty of time before Why didn't he open the books?" Mannering sounded curious—no more.

Higby said: "We didn't know that the papers were in the spines. Fenner had a look through them. Then you got the books away but you left one behind. He found the paper in the spine. Satisfied?"

* * *

MANNERING went on with his task as if nothing had happened. The sound wasn't repeated. Mannering might be able to get at his own gun, to shoot the weapon out of Higby's hand. But Higby kept glancing at him, he was at point blank range and couldn't miss.

Mannering said: "Where's Mary Scott, Higby?"

"She'll be all right, if you get the papers out of the grounds," said Higby. "If you don't—I'll see that her throat's cut. You're a fine gentleman, aren't you, Mannering?" he sneered. "Gentlemen can't allow sweet young things to die, can they? But if you don't get those papers out, she's had it. No half measures about Fenner and me."

He seemed reassured about the noise outside.

Mannering said: "He lets you take the risk."

"He takes plenty," said Higby. "Fenner wouldn't put anything across me—I know too much, and he knows I could give him away even if I were dead. When you have the kind of upbringing I had, Mannering, you learn to take care of yourself. But Fenner's all right. He's got a little band of playmates with him. He pays high and looks after all who work for him, and they do exactly what he wants them to do."

Uncle Ray's Column

By Ramon Coffman

ONLY a little is being said these days about Prince Philip, otherwise known as the Duke of Edinburgh. He is the husband of Queen Elizabeth II, and the father of the little prince and princess, but the eyes of the world are on the queen. She is to be crowned as the monarch of the United Kingdom. Prince Philip is "the prince consort," but is without the title of king.

In the past century there was a similar case. Queen Victoria ruled in her own right, and Prince Albert, her husband, was the prince consort. Albert was regarded highly by the British public, but the rules of succession are strict. A new monarch must be, as directly as possible, in the royal line of descent. Albert started a fashion in dress for men. He wore a long frock coat, with a double row of buttons at the front. This coat was adopted by men of fashion, and became known as "the Prince Albert."

QUEEN VICTORIA reached the throne at the age of 18, and was crowned shortly after her nineteenth birthday. She enjoyed a long reign, often called the "Victorian period" or "Victorian era." Her reign lasted 63 and a half years, ending early in the present century.

The first Queen Elizabeth was on the throne for 44 years and four months. Except for Victoria, she had a longer reign than any other ruling queen in Britain's history.

When we speak of a king or queen "ruling," let us note the changes which have taken place. While Elizabeth I was on the throne, she controlled public affairs to a large extent. The will of Parliament was less strong than the queen's will.

NOWADAYS THE LAWS of the United Kingdom are made by Parliament, chiefly by the House of Commons, whose members are elected by popular vote. When a monarch speaks on public questions, he follows the outlines provided by the prime minister. On his part, the prime minister holds office only as long as he is favored by the majority of the House of Commons.
